Society people are much interested at present in discussing two engagements which have lately been announced. Both of the young men in question are bank clerks, and the ladies daughters of prominent citizens, one holding an official position in the city. I withhold anything further, out of regard for the feelings of the interested parties.

The London Society Herald has a most flattering account of Miss Nita Carritte's debut as an operatic singer in London. It speaks of her as having "a high soprano voice of beautiful quality and phenomenal flexibility," and as being exceedingly pretty and graceful. She achieved great success in Rossini's Bel Raggio from the opera Semiramide, which music is considered very difficult and intricate for the powers of the ordinary vocalist.

On Friday last, July 5, a very pleasant dance was given by Mrs. John H. Parks, at her residence on Mount Pleasant. Strange to say, the weather was all that could be desired, being rather a notable exception, as when any dances have been held of late out of town the weather has been wet and stormy, much to the disgust of the young people who enjoy a ramble in the grounds between dances. Among some of the guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Gellibrande (Fredericton,) the Misses Dever, Miss Beatrice Hatheway, the Misses Dunn, Misses De-Veber, the Misses Burpee, Miss Katie Burpee, Miss Maclauchlan, the Misses Steeves, Miss Katie Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Busby, Dr. Steeves, Dr.

After spending a few hours roaming about, they finished the day by a pleasant walk home | to the barracks yard to the music of the R. S. I. by moonlight.

A large party was held at the residence of Mrs. S. S. Hall, Rothesay, on Thursday last. The guests | the same time: Mrs. A. G. Beckwith, Mrs. Melwere invited from 7 till 12, so it gave them ample time to stroll about the grounds and play tennis, etc., before they commenced dancing. The quests, who numbered over 150, returned home much pleased with their evening's entertainment. The occasion served as an introduction into society of Mrs. Hall's daughter, Miss Winnie Hall, who, as the saying is, "came out" on that evening.

In consideration of this, the performance of Athalie was creditable to the society and to Mr. Morley, in his office of leader and organist. Mr. Bristowe made an excellent conductor, and Mrs. Black delighted all who listened to her remarkably powerful and tuneful voice. Mrs. Gilchrist, Mrs. T. July 10 .- Nearly a week of most wretched weather has very effectually extinguished all plans for gaeity, especially of an outdoor nature. This is certainly the very heart of the picnic season, and there is something awfully incongrous in sitting by a fire, as most of us have been doing, these past few evenings. All that was needed to make life in Moncton like a page out of one of William Black's novels was a sprig or two of heather and a collie dog, for the mist has been so thick that it was impossible to know there weren't any mountains of the name of "Ben" in the near vicinity, and so intensely Scotch that one felt as if they must talk Gaelic to be in any harmony with nature.

I believe there have been arrangements made for several very pleasant al fresco festivities, but of course the weather stepped in and-like the president of the neighboring republic-"vetoed the measure." Among others, I heard rumors of a delightful excursion down the river, on the little steamer Arbutus, which was to have taken place yesterday, but waterproofs and umbrellas would have been necessary to the comfort of the guests, so it was postponed till a warmer and finer day.

Some few society people spent last Sunday at the
