upon the division of the real estate, which is to be divided between the five heirs, Mrs. Botsford, Mrs.
W. C. Crossland, Mrs. T. W. Byers, Mrs. George C. Peters, and Dr. Botsford.Miss Laura Humphrey, who has been spending the winter in Bermuda, returned home last week.
Dr. T. F. Smith, one of Moncton's most popular young physicians, who went over to Edinburgh in March, accompanied by his mother, has accepted a temporary position in the sick children's hospital in that city. He intends remaining until the first week in July, when he will return to Moncton and practice his profession as usual.Mr. C. J. Osman, of Hillsboro, was in town on Monday.We are trying very hard to secure the militia camp this year, but as we have started a little late. So whether we get it or not remains to be seen. Fortune favors the brave, and we are busy enough in making our requests known, if we are not very swift, indeed, envious people who want the camp themselves are vying to secure it. We Moncton wants the camp. Well, what if we do? We certainly seem to have secured a very large share of it, as anyone taking a bird's-eye view of Main street at the present time can readily see, so why should we not want a little more of it? only we would prefer the next assignment to be a little drier, please.The postponed entertainment by St. George's Sunday school children, which has been long looked forward to, came off last night, and was in every way a most successful success. The little children in at all times a difficult task, and how Miss Thomson, who has been almost without assistance in instructing the little ones, succeeded in bringing them to such a state of perfection is a mystery to those who have less talent for organization, and, above all, less patience. Any one with a less strong hold upon the affections of the children could never have succeeded.The opening number consisted of selections by the ever popular Petros, parlor orchestra, after which the curtain rose upon 21 little dandies dressed in white, who sang very sweetly, "Hurrah for Canada," waving kerchiefs in time to the music at the end of each verse. They received a rapturous encore, to which they graciously responded.Next came selections on the harp by the Imperial Banjo club—there's everything in a name—which also received an enthusiastic encore.The third number was perhaps the most quietly charming of all, "The Kindergarten Lullaby." It consisted of some sixteen wee tots, some of whom looked scarcely old enough to walk alone. Each was accompanied by a doll in long clothes, which she patted and lulled to sleep with a delightful little lullaby song, the chorus of which was, "Swing cradle, swing." The little maids sang out bravely with their sweet small voices, and if the dolls did not go to sleep, it was not for want of careful rock-ing. Too much can scarcely be said in praise of the manner in which these little ones acquitted themselves.Next on the programme came "The Gipsies' Festival," in which Mrs. C. J. Butcher took the part of the Gipsy queen, with 20 little girls in Gipsy costume as subjects. The little dandies performed their parts to perfection, and Mrs. Butcher made a most charming queen. I heard many warm words of praise for Miss Edith Nae, who took the part of Gipsy Jane, the fortune-teller, and sang a solo descriptive of her perspective of unfolding the future. Her voice is both sweet and true, and her stage presence —to use a technical term—unusually graceful for an amateur.Mr. Botsford Peters who represented, as well I could understand the plot, a sort of Gipsy King, covered himself with glory and captured the audience as usual.The boat song, and tableau, in which a number of little boys stood up in a boat and sang "A Life on the Ocean Wave" was well done, and the tableau remarkable. After the entertainment came the most difficult revolution of the evening, the "Tambourine Drill," in which twenty girls went through the mazes of a most intricate drill, marching, retreating, advancing, and saluting, raising their tambourines in tune to the music, and grounding them in true military style at the word of their leader, Miss Thomson. It is really hard to imagine growing people doing better than these clever little ladies. Next came the laughable tragedy of "Vil-kens and his Dinah," in which Miss Campbell, Mr.
Botsford Peters, and Dr. Jasper D'Alay portrayed in skilful pantomime, the woes of that celebrated pair of lovers, while Miss Thomson sang the song descriptive of their sorrows. The death scene was really sufficiently grisly for Romeo and Juliet, Miss Campbell and her broken-hearted lover did look so very dead.A banjo solo by little Master Brooks Peters came next, followed by "Visitors from Story Land," some more banjo, a tableau, in which little MissBeulah Archibald charmed the audience by bounding out of a barrel which was rolled upon the stage and singing a song. And last, though, by no means least, "The Infantry Regiment, in which a number of young ladies represented sweet babies eating their pap and scraping their pap-bowls in time to the music, finally falling asleep upon each other's shoulders, and there were some very pretty babies there, I can assure you.
"Good-bye the Queen" ended a very pleasant evening, and enabled a lot of very sleepy little people to go home to bed.

morrow afternoon at the residence of Mrs. James Murray, in honor of her little niece, Miss Hazel Inches' third birthday.Elder hall was crowded with music-loving people, on Thursday and Friday evenings, to listen to the cantata, "Genevieve," and her sweet voice and prize assumption of it quite delighted the audience. Miss Annie Clarke, as Isadore, was also very pleasing. Miss Flora Brown and Miss Kate Dauphinee, with their dark beauty and rich voices, made charming gypsies. Miss Addie Strien, as Grace, sang her part in a most creditable manner.
The choruses were all well sung, and in every way the cantata was a success, and pronounced to be one of the best amateur entertainments we have had this year.Elder hall was looking forward to much pleasure from the concert to be given next Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the ladies of Christ church congregation. I hear that the Rev. J. M. the rector, port of St. John, and several other distinguished singers from away are to take part.
