EDITH-Wearing the engagement ring on the fore finger is a distinctly American custom, and one which I think is dying out. The proper finger is the third, of the left hand. On the morning of the wedding it is removed to make room for the wedding ring, and it is afterwards worn as a guard

ANXIOUS ONE.-You will never make pot pourri by using only rose leaves and alcohol, you want spices, essences, oils, perfumes, and orris root. I have mislaid my recipe just now, but it is an excellent one, and I will try to hunt it up.

MYRA .- No! Plutus was the god of wealth. Cræsus was only a Greek king of fabulous wealth. Midas was a king of Phrygia, who once entertained Bacchus, god of wine, and was given the power of turning everything he touched into gold ever after.

armless venus, and she derives her name not from the sculptor who created her, because his name is unknown, but from the fact that the statute was found in the island of Milo, dug up by some workmen who were making excavations. The statute is supposed to have been stolen from some temple and buried for security. She was originally represented with one arm uplifted holding the golden apple, which Paris awarded the Goddess of Beauty, but when found in Milo both arms were broken off close to the shoulders. I believe Milo is an island in the Greek Archipelago, but time and distance have separated me too far from my atlas for me to be very certain, so you had better hunt it up for yourself.

MAUDE C.—Heliotrope is still one of the most fashionable colors, but of course during the winter months it will only be worn in the evening.

QUERIST.—The quotation is from Jean Ingelow's most celebrated poem, "Divided." It is the very first line, An empty sky! a world of heather, and has been characterized as the most perfect description, in one line, that the English language contains.

MARY and MARTHA-Massage is the new process of healing, which consists of rubbing, patting, and general treatment of the muscles, called passive exercise. It consists of peculiar motions, and is a profession by itself. It is given the French pronunciation, with the accent on the last syllable, and the g soft, something like large-leaving out the r.

E. M. H.—Clip the end of your hair once cheek, replace melancholy with vivaciousness of youth, and renovate the whole system, by the use of Hanington's Quinine Wine and Iron, and splitting at the ends. Sage tea is an exity of champagne, because it doesn't. This time splitting at the ends. Sage tea is an exity of champagne, because it doesn't. poured over it, and left to steep for a little

A. R.-Platonic affection is that which was advocated by the great Greek philosopher Plato, who believed in the possibility of a perfectly pure and lasting affection existing between people of opposite sexes without any thought or intention of marriage or falling in love. I differ with Plato myself on that point, but as he was a disciple of Socrates, I suppose his opinion ought to rank somewhat ahead of mine.

H. F.—Galileo was a gifted Florentine, who first discovered that the earth was round and revolved around the sun instead of being a flat disk, like a pancake, fixed in space, around which the sun and moon circled. He was imprisoned by one of the popes for promulgating this doctrine, and compelled to deny his theory. He also physicians everywhere in a cup of boiling water seasoned to taste with pepper and salt. It is carefully prepared and highly recommended by physicians everywhere. For sale by J. S. invented the telescope and the pendulum, having discovered the value of the latter by watching the swaying of the great chan-delier in the cashedral at Pisa, which had been set in motion by a sudden jar.

Tom, Fredericton.—A gentleman always takes the right side of the lady in either walking or driving. He is always supposed to offer her his left arm, in order to leave the right free to defend her, in case of accident. It does not matter whether he happens to be on the inner or outer side of the sidewalk.

A. R. T .- The "Angelus" is the call to prayer which is rung in all Roman Cathotic countries at sundown. All good Catholics pause a moment and say a short prayer for aid and protection during the coming darkness. This is what Millet's celebrated picture represents.

PUZZLED ONE.-No wonder the gentleman cut you as you say, if you waited for him to bow first. It is the lady's place always to recognise a male acquaintance first, and no man accustomed to the usages of society, would ever dream of lifting his hat to a lady on the street, unless he was quite sure she had bowed to him. You can easily explain the matter to your friend when next you meet, otherwise, he may think you intended to slight him.

ETIQUETTE.—To leave a card at the house of a triend, with the upper left hand corner turned down, indicates that the visit is intended for the whole tamily. It is a convenient device to adopt at the end of a round of calls, when one's card case is nearly empty, but, of course, it is better form to leave a card for each member of the family, especially if you are not on particularly intimate terms with them. The letters P. P. C. should be placed in the lower left hand corner, and indicate a visit of farewell, from the French words pour prendre congi, "for taking leave." The old fashioned custom was, to put T. T. L., to take leave, but the French fashion has been universally adopted.

HILDEGARDE.—Return the ring, of course, unless there was been a special arrangement between you with reference to presents. It is not at all unusual when an engagement is broken off, and the couple remain good friends, for each to agree to keep the other's gifts in token of amity and good feeling. For example a man could scarcely return a half worn dressing gown, or slippers to the ex-lady of his love, nor could she return a sealskin muff rather the worse for wear, and of late years furs have been considered as appropriate for gifts between engaged couples, as jewelry, or confectionary, but it is a very thoroughly established custom, to return the ring when the bond between the two is broken.

Notes Among Insurance People.

Announcements in other columns of this paper show that there has been a considerable change in the city insurance world. Messrs. Macdonald & Knowlton are now on Prince William Street in the former spacious and comfortable office of the Glasgow and London which, since its amalgamation with the Citizens, they are represent. Since that time the agency of that staunch and popular Canadian company, the British American resigned by Mr. Frink has been secured by them. The Phænix of Hartford is also included in their list. The firm is young, active and capable of doing an extensive business. The companies will not be likely to regret any confidence plac-

Mr. Frink with that well known and favorite company the Western at Philippa.—The Venus of Milo is the his back can always take his full share of what is going. His agency has always been a most successful and satisfactory one Another announcement in this line this morning is that of Mr. D. R. Jack, who represents the Manchester Fire Insurance Company, an English corporation that has grown in strength and popularity with its years. Mr. Jack is as well known in the local insurance world as any of his confreres and never forgets to look after a desirable

How They Manage It.

"We use pearline." Well, we don't at our house! We have a better way, which saves our hands more than even pearline. We have no washing day; no cold dinner, without the æsthetic and comforting influence of pie. No smell of soap suds, and general sloppiness in the domestic circle; Monday is just as good as any other day with us.

"Why, how do you manage it? Don't you ever get any washing done?"

"Oh, yes, we do; but we send our clothes to Ungar's Steam Laundry, and they come home all ready for ironing; you know he makes a specialty now of tamily washing, sent home rough-dried, to be ironed at home."-A.

"A Really Pretty Girl."

Don't imagine when you see the "Health" Brand advertised opposite the figure of a a month, taking off very little at a time; it | pretty girl that it alludes to a new vintage cellent thing for the hair; make it like | newly-introduced undervests by that name, ordinary tea, a handful of dried sage, with | which embody the greatest amount of coma little more than a pint of boiling water fort for the wearer, and are a sure safeguard against any such thing as rheumatism or cold. The first time you are out go into any first-class dry goods house, and ask them to show you these goods, and you will realize the truth of what we say .- A.

No Use for Soap.

In the family song "Pull for the Shore" there is a line, "Cling to self no more," which, as sung by the colored children in one of the schools, sounded strangely, and on having it said slowly it was discovered that they were singing, "Clean yourself no more."-American Missionary.
