We are beginning to be scriously alarmed about the sugar refinery. Of course, everyone knows that it is one of our most cherished institutions; and, now, it seems to be slipping gradually, but surely, now, it seems to be slipping gradually, but surely, out of our grasp. An English syndicate has fixed its covetous eyes on our beloved refinery; even as David fixed his on Uriah's wife, and last week Mr. Spencer, of Toronto, an emissary of that same syndicate was here for the second or third time negotiating for its purchase. Of course, we don't propose Andrews.

to follow King David's example, to the extent of desperate measures, and dropping Mr. Spencer over Harris' wharf when the tide is in, but still we don't want to feel that the refinery belongs to anyone but its present owners; and for two pins, we'd just buy it ourselves and say nothing except—"hang the "Edith Ellis and her Wizards" played here Monday and Tuesday evenings, and are the best variety company that has visited Dorchester for a long time. Miss Ellis and her father, Dr. Ellis, are well known throughout the provinces, on account of their connection with the Wizard Oil company a year or two ago. They have severed that connection, and now have a new troupe of nine good performers, meeting with crowded houses everywhere, in spite of the fact that the low admission and prize distribution features of the old company are lacking in the new, as is of course the sale of oil. The company are billed for Sackville for four nights, but arrangements are being made by a "syndicate" of Dorchester men to bring them back to Dorchester for one more performence on Saturday evening.
