YARMOUTH.

[Progress is for sale in Yarmouth at the stores of E. L. Vickery and Harris & Horsfall.]

JAN. 21.—Mr. R. H. Ross left for Halifax yesterday, and goes into the P. O. inspector's office for a few months, when it is hoped he will be able to resume work in his old position, as postal clerk on the Western Counties railway.

Miss Mary Brown, who has been residing in this town the past three years, left for Boston Saturday evening. She leaves many sore hearts behind, for undoubtedly she was a great favorite among the young folk of the town.

Mr. James L. Crosby paid a flying visit to Montreal last week, and returned with Mr. Leeter, a friend from Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. E. F. Clements left Saturday evening for Boston on business.

Miss Prue Wood, of Spring Hill, is visiting Miss Sarah Lovitt, of Salem.

Mr. Allison, organist at Holy Trinity, made a short visit home last week.

Miss Julia Moody presided at the organ. She is a skilful musician.

The rink has opened, but there has been very little skating so far. The young people would like to get the worth of their tickets in some way. Will the committee allow canoes out there.

Rev. E. J. McCarthy has been ill and confined to his house this week.

Mr. A. Cameron, principal of the academy, was laid up the past week.

Mr. Kempton, of the Milton school, has been unable to teach the last few days.

Mr. William Moody, Collector of customs, who has been very sick the last two weeks, is able to be out and about again.

BATHURST.

[Progress is for sale in Bathurst at A. C. Smith & Co's store.]

JAN. 22.—A very successful carnival was held in the skating rink last evening. The Moncton band furnished excellent music. The ice was in splendid condition, and every detail of the management perfect. There were some very pretty costumes. Miss Josie Burns, as "Liberty," took the ladies' prize, the gentlemen's prize being won by Mr. G. Dudley, of the Merchants' bank, who, as a "Clown," was irresistibly comic. I have not been able to obtain a list of the skaters, but must mention Mrs. Dudley, who looked lovely as a "Swiss Peasant." Mr. W. F. Pepper made a capital "Negro."

Miss C. Cameron, artist, of Quebec, has been giving lessons in decorative and china painting, and her pupils pronounce her an excellent teacher. She intends visiting Newcastle and some other New Brunswick towns before returning home.

It speaks well for Miss Laura Mordant's popularity as a teacher that her pupils are all so delighted to see her home again. All her friends are pleased to see her so much improved by her visit to Boston.

The curlers' social takes place tonight, and a good time is anticipated. Tom Brown.

How He Looks.

There is something unmistakable about a victim of la grippe, writes a correspondent who has been there. In the first place, his knees are always so weak, and in the second, he invariably has a conscious, not to say defiant, look, as though he were saying, "I just wish you had it, that's all." He wears his cap well down over his ears and his coat collar turned up to meet it, and if he should chance to be a lady, his head is wrapped securely up in a cloud, and two or three folds of fur boa veil his charms from the rude gaze of the multitude. In either case the victim is sure to wear a stout cane, and lean heavily upon it as he staggers along. Perhaps you don't see any fun in the description. Well, never mind. Other people will see lots of fun in your appearance the first time you go out. So it does not matter, as long as there is fun somewhere.

Doing the Right Thing.

The train was just pulling out of Weston, Mo., for St. Joe when one of the passengers in the smoker put his head so far out of the window that a man near him felt it his duty to utter a note of warning.

"Yes, it is a little risky," replied the man, as he pulled in his head and sat down, "but I was looking for a grave in that field. Reckon it has been ploughed under and forgotten."

"How did they happen to bury him there?"

"It's a sad story, gentlemen—very sad. It was just ten years this month, and I was living here then. A stranger came in from the West with three horses to sell, and he acted so queerly that we clapped him in jail. He never denied that he stole them 'em, and one night the boys turned out and hung him to a tree back there. That used to our way of discouraging the business, and I believe it is still practised further west. We buried him near the tree, and it was his grave I was looking for."

"Never denied it, eh?" queried one of the listeners.

Never did, although we gave him every chance. Just a week from the time he was hung we found out that he was an honest, honorable farmer, living about 40 miles below us. While he hadn't stolen the horses, he had killed a man, and he had no doubt believed we were hanging him for that. We felt mean enough when we discovered that he was no horse thief, and that all he had done was to pop a man over, and a Kansas man at that, and he must have been sadly puzzled over our conduct. We made such reparation as we could, however.

"In what way?"

"Oh, we rounded up the grave, passed resolutions of sympathy for his wife, sent the horses on home, and a few months later went I up and married his widow. She's in the next car behind."—N. Y. Sun.

Did It Strike You This Way?

T. Bailey Aldrich, who is a recent victim of the grip, compares the sensation to that of "a misfit skull, that is too tight across the forehead and that pinches behind the ears."—N. Y. Sun.

Henry Grady's Last Christmas.

There are so many little incidents of his life among us, which are made up of pleasure and pain at this hour. Well do I remember how he spent his last year's holiday season, and the little story he told me of it, as I sat in his office one morning after New Year's. He had visited his mother in Athens, Christmas week, and he said, "I don't think I ever felt happier than when I reached the little home of my boyhood. I got there at night. She had saved supper for me, and she had remembered all the things I liked. She toasted me some cheese over the fire. Why, I hadn't tasted anything like it since I put off my round jackets. And then she had some homemade candy she knew I used to love and bless her heart! I just felt sixteen again as we sat and talked, and she told me how she prayed for me and thought of me always, and what a brightness I had been to her life, and how she heard me coming home in every boy that whistled along the street. When I went to bed she came and tucked the covers all around me in the dear old way that none but a mother's hands know, and I felt so happy and so peaceful and so full of tender love and tender memories that I cried happy, grateful tears until I went to sleep." When he finished his eyes were full of tears, and so were mine. He brushed his hand across his brow swiftly and said laughingly, "Why, what are you crying about? What do you know about all this sort of feeling?"—Atlanta Constitution.

Wisdom in Short Sentences.

John McCullough's Voice in a Phonograph.

One of the treasures of the Edison Phonograph Works at Orange is a cylinder that was impressed with the voice of the late John McCullough, the actor, who died in a madhouse. The impression was taken while he was in confinement. Rambling passages from the plays in which he acted were recited in a voice of wonderful power and pathos, but at the end of each passage the actor would stop and say, in a voice to chill the blood, "But now I'm mad—ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha—ah-h-h-h." The end of the laugh was almost indescribable, for he drew in his breath with a sound that was partly a shriek and partly a gasp. If there is ever a voice heard from the tomb it is when this cylinder is put in the phonograph.—New York Sun.

She Did Not Appreciate It.

"Not many men know how to behave when they give a minister his fee for marrying them," said Rev. Robert Collyer a few nights ago. "It seems to embarrass them for some reason. I remember once out in Indiana that a man whom I had just united in marriage to a very comely young woman gave me $10 for the fee. As he did so he blushed and stammered. Then he said with perfect candor: 'I would like to give you more, Doctor, and—and I will next time.' His bride overheard him, and looked at him in a queer way, but he evidently did not realize what he had said in his embarrassment."—N. Y. Sun.
