Halifax has produced another weekly. Ye gods! When are we going to stop? This time it is literary girls attending the ladies college who have dashed into print. Might we suggest something? Would it not be a good idea for the three weeklies to unite? We will suppose a meeting where it is decided to compile the three papers in one. It could be managed in this way: by selecting the strongest writers from each; they would thus be able to produce something really readable. And we should no more be afflicted by having to wade through those worthless columns, which are written merely to fill up.

The mission in the Roman Catholic cathedral of St. Mary's is still continuing. The men's week opened on Sunday night last. Every evening since the great edifice has been crowded to its utmost capacity. Father Himmel, S. J., the conductor of the exercises, is a most eloquent speaker, possessing that rare gift of captivating his audience without any seeming effort on his part, and at the close of his sermon making them feel that instead of an hour, it has endured but a few minutes, a tall, dark southerner, his very presence commands respect, and looking at that gaunt form, at the rather sallow face, lit up by wonderful dark eyes, which give a charm to the whole countenance, we can alm imagine that there stands before us some medævial saint, who has lately been in such close communion with heavenly things, that there still beams in his countenance something of that beauty which we

RICHIBUCTO.

MARCH 17 .- Mr. J. R. Creelman, assisted by scholars from the different departments of our schools gave a successful concert in the Temperance hall, last Thursday evening. The children acquitted themselves in good style. Vocalists are a scarce article here at present, but the coming generation promises to more than supply the want. Mr. Creelman sings with the same vigor he did 40
