The social event of this week was the very brilliant wedding of Miss Katie Murray, daughter of ex-United States Consul Murray, of this city, and Mr. George Washburn Sessions, of New York. All who were looking forward to it for weeks past, were not disappointed in their expectations. As the whole arrangements, both for the cerémony and reception, were most complete in every detail. Over 200 invitations had been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Murray, and long before 6.30 o'clock (the hour fixed for the ceremony) every pew in St. John's church was filled with elegantly dressed guests, while others who were not so fortunate as to receive cards of invitation and who were admitted by ticket, thronged to the church eager to catch a glimpse of the youthful bride.

June is always a favorite month for weddings for very many reasons. One of them, I should say, is the opportunity afforded the guests of wearing their pretty summer gowns in all their freshness, which adds much to the brilliancy of the scene.

The groom was accompanied by Mr. Alfred W. Trotter, of New York, who acted as best man. The ushers, Messrs. Charles Troop, B. H. Gordon, Jas. McMillan and H. A. K. Drury, after doing their duty by escorting the guests to seats, headed the bridal procession up the aisle. The bride, who was given away by her father, was elegantly attired in a wedding gown of rich white satin, made en traine, the front being embroidered in pearls, and trimmings of white chiffon, tulle veil, fastened with orange blossoms, and carrying a magnificent bouquet. She also wore a most elegant and unique diamond pin in the form of the sun, the gift of the groom. The bridesmaids were Miss Christine Wood and Miss Constance Murray of New York (cousin of the bride), Miss Grace McMillan, Miss Josie Troop and Miss Madeline Murray, sister of the bride. Four of them were dressed alike in most becoming costumes of pale pink silk, large leghorn hats, trimmed with pink feathers and carried in their hands magnificent bouquets of pink roses. Miss Madeline Murray, the maid of honor, wore a similar costume of white. The groom presented each maid with a very handsome crown of pansies and pearls.

The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. J. DeSoyres, and the choir rendered appropriate music. Several of the friends of Miss Murray had decorated the chancel of the church with apple blossoms for the occasion.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Mrs. Murray's residence, Princess street. The house was tastefully decorated with pink flowers, apple blossoms, etc., while over the arch (under which the bride and groom received the congratulations of their friends) hung a large horse-shoe composed entirely of apple blossoms. Pink was the prevailcolor used both in the decorations of the rooms and supper table, and as the bridesmaids wore pink it may be called a pink wedding.

To prevent overcrowding, a large marque had been put up in the rear of the house, and in which the supper tables were laid. After a very elegant repast was partaken of, the bride changed her dress for travelling and amid showers of rice the happy pair left for the depot, where many were assembled to see them off. Mr. and Mrs. Sessions have gone to Albany, and other American cities through which they will travel until August, when they hope to pay a short visit to St. John before settling in New York.

After the departure of the bride and groom a programme of dances was gone through to the music of Harrison's orchestra, who added much to the enjoyment of the dancers by the delightful music they furnished, many of their waltzes being quite new. It was two o'clock before the party broke up, and all were much pleased at the enjoyable evening they spent.

The bride was the recipient of many elegant and valuable gifts, many of which await her in New York. Following is a list of the presents received :
