| Progress is for sale in Yarmouth at the stores of E. I. Vickery and Harris & Horsfall.] SEPT. 9 .- Blessed are they that have their holidays during September or October, and thrice blest they that have them during September and October! I don't have any holidays myself, but if I had, these are the months I would like to have them in. They are the pleasantest months of the year, either to enjoy one's self around home here, or to take a trip elsewhere. But use and wont have generally decreed otherwise, and with the end of August the holiday season also ends. This grim truth was borne in upon me very forcibly the other evening, when I strolled down to the wharf to see one of our Yarmouth greyhounds leave for Boston. The train had not yet arrived with its contingent of passengers, but the boat seemed to be already as full of them as it could hold. All sorts and conditions of his ways represented and the second the s ditions of life were represented, and the great majority seemed to be, and were, returning to their homes, after a holiday trip. Some of them looked sad, and some looked glad, but the crowd as a whole had a much healthier look than the average incoming crowd of a month or six weeks before.

Their holiday had evidently done them good. By and by along came the train—the Flying Blue-nose—and out of its six passenger coaches poured what seemed a big enough crowd to fill another steamer. The first to get out started on the run for the boat in order to secure first choice of what was left of the state rooms. Some others didn't exactly run, but did just what you would do if you were very anxious to get there quickly, but were also a little anxious not to be undignified in your method of locomotion. One can always see some some funny sights on such an occasion and if philosophically inclined, can find much food for thought. I am cally inclined, can find much food for thought. I am a bit of a philosophess myself, and got quite a lot of cerebral aliment out of the crowd, but perhaps I had better not trouble you and your readers with the assimilated product of it just at present.

WINDSOR, N. S.

SEPT. 9 .- This week, wonderful to tell, as this is the quiet season, I have a festivity to tell of. On Saturday Mrs. Arthur Drysdale gave an 'at home' from 4.30 to 6.30. On the arrival of guests coffee and tea were served in the house, then people repaired to the lawn, where a long table was spread under the pear trees, with many good things. Several smaller tables were scattered here and there, a very pretty nook being under a grape vine trellis. The nook being under a grape vine treins. The following guests were present: Mrs. Wiggins, Mrs. S. Weston Jones, Mrs. H. W. Dimock, Miss Edith Dimock, Mrs. W. Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Blanchard, Mrs. A. Blanchard, Mrs. Christie, Mrs. J. W. Ouseley, Dr. and Mrs. Reid, Mrs. W. Lawson, Miss Lawson, Miss Alice Lawson, Mrs. Modesle, Dr. and Mrs. Gossin and Mrs. Reid, Mrs. W. Lawson, Miss Lawson, Miss Alice Lawson, Mrs. Medcalfe, Dr. and Mrs. Gossip, the Misses Curry, Miss Hind, Miss Hensley, Mr. C. Hensley, Miss Geldert, Miss Mary Dimock, Mr. W. K. Dimock, Dr. Ryan, Mr. Stephen Wiggins, Mrs. Jas. Russell, Mrs. Chas. Hobart, Miss Gossip, Hon. M. H. Gondre, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dimock, Miss Thom, Miss Carre, Miss Locke, Miss Annie Wilson, Miss Ouseley, and Mrs. Drysdale's guests, Miss Chipman and Miss Mitchell, of Halifax, It will be noticed that gentlemen were in the minority, but I think it is quite wonderful to muster minority, but I think it is quite wonderful to muster even so many as that at an afternoon affair, in a business like town such as Windsor. In Halifax for instance there are lots of officers with nothing particular to do in the afternoon, and glad of a change to take understance of the grantle arts of chance to take advantage of the gentle arts of peace for there is an art in being a successful man peace' for there is an art in being a successful man at an afternoon tea party. The awkward man who blandy pours tea over your best gown is not a success, neither is the man who leads a lady to what he thinks is a comfortable nook—beside her arch enemy. For despite what people call "christian principles" some of us have arch enemies. I might enumerate for the henefit of young men, starting on the young for the benefit of young men starting on the voyage of afternoon teas a few of the paths that lead to success, but space fails for more than this one hint. The art of making the woman to whom he is talking to for the moment—be she the queen of bores—think that his whole soul is—for the time at least—absorbthat his whole soul is—for the time at least—absorbed in her atterances. Such, let me say is the secret of much—al success with the fair sex. The man who let sais thoughts run off on such subjects as the chemical affinity of bodies, on the differential calculus, is out of it completely, unless she is master of his art sufficiently to think of what he likes and make the other peaks think he has not a thought beyond the other people think he has not a thought beyond themselves. If it is the average married lady, bounded on the north by the kitchen, on the south by the baby, on the east by the maid, and on the west by her gowns. This judgment is general, not particular. I know many ladies who in spite of being married are still quite bright and companion-members of the old choir have resigned, and danke most things it seems to grow younger.

What might have been a serious accident happened last week. Mrs. Snider, sister of Mr. John B. Mills, M. P. for Annapolis county was driving with her little niece, when the horse took fright at the street.

Mrs. Howe was one of the losers by the daring robbery of F. T. Withycombe's store last week. She had left a handsome gold watch, presented her by the Parish of Windsor, with Mr. Withycombe to have regired and it was among the jewelry stolen. Among the Digby people who came up to see the cricket match, I noticed Mrs. Ambro, the Misses Edith and Jo Ambrose, and the Misses Merkle.

Miss Grace Campbell, of St. John, was also in town or Evident.

I wonder if we could not secure a lease of the Garrison to the town? It does seem too bad that it should be turned into a pasture. The games there are quite an attraction, and if a genuine park can-not be made of it, at least the cows should be kept out. For its historic associations alone the Garrison should be preserved. I understand that the family now occupying it intend moving in a short time, and I think the house should either be pulled down or repaired, but certainly not used as a dwelling

I cannot understand how it was that the Annapolis people allowed the old block house to be destroyed. It was outrageous. Built of good old English oak, I am told the timbers were as sound when it was torn down as the day it was built, the oldest structure of the kind in America, it should have been preserved for generations to come. I do not think the people are lacking in loyalty, but they are too indifferent, or too easy going.

I must give our most enterprising and energetic young citizen a hint, and who knows what may not be done. be done! Possibly we can lease the garrison from the government forever, and have no further danger of its being sold off in building lots. Surely that would be too much for even Annapolis to stand.

will supply a long felt want. Although the rink is not to be despised since it was fitted up as a hall, still it is an immense building not very good for speaking or singing in, and of course impossible to heat sufficiently for use in winter, even were there skating. I must admit that to me the new building looks small, but it is difficult to judge when only the foundation is laid. A stage entrance is something we have never had, but will have I hope in the academy. The fact that Mr. J. H. Runciman is president of the company insures its suc-

DORCHESTER.

[Progress is for sale in Dorchester at George M. Fairweather's store.]

SEPT. 9.-Dorchester has a sensation before which engagements pale and parties are as nothing. A real genuine burglary has been committed in our midst, and we feel that we can hold up our heads among the nations. The sufferers, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Emmerson, may not appreciate the situation so keenly, perhaps, as they are the losers of a gold watch and a portion of Mr. Emmerson's raiment. The thief did not lack cool assurance, at least, as the things were taken from a room where two people were sleeping. Now we visit each window at night, covered with pieces of lath and kindred barricades, and shall continue to do so until about the time the burglar thinks its safe to try again, when we shall have torgotten all about it, and he will find a clear

I have another more welcome sign of well-being to record. Mr. J. W. Y. Smith has received plans for a handsome house, to be erected early next summer, I believe. It is delightful to find one of our young men settling in his native village, instead of moving to pastures new, particularly, as in this case, where there is no lack of means to add to its

There is not much in the way of gaiety to write about this week. Mrs. E. V. Tait gave a card party last Wednesday evening, and though the heavy rain prevented several invited guests from being there, the evening was extremely pleasant for those who were more fortunate.

Mrs. T. B. Millidge, of St John, arrived on Friday to spend the winter, I believe. She is staying with Mrs. Hickman, at Rocklyn, at present.

Mrs. R. W. Hewson and little Miss Hewson, of Moncton, have returned to their home, to the deep Moncton, have returned to their home, to the deep regret of their many friends. I suppose we cannot hope to keep our summer visitors later than the early part of September, but it is really after this that we need them. When nature dons her sad autumn dress, we instinctively turn to our fellow-man—and woman—to supply the needed brightness. Mrs. T. R. Wetmore, who has been spending the summer with Mrs. Tait, went to St. John last night, en route for Boston. She was accompanied by Mrs. D. L. Hanington, who will spend a week in Clifton. Miss Treen, of North Sydney, is visiting Mrs. J. F. Teed. It is unfortunate that her first visit should be made now, when the summer's pleasant days and festivities are about done. But we shall hope she shail like Dorchester so well that it may hope she shall like Dorchester so well that it may seem deserving of another visit at a pleasanter Mr. W. W. Wells was in town on Monday looking somewhat better for his month's trip, but not quite so well as his friends would like to see him. mother at the rectory. We regret that his visit is of so short duration.

A number of Dorchester people are going to Sackville this evening to be present at the marriage of Mr. Lane to Miss Alice Estabrooks. It is to take place at nine o'clock, and will be quite a large affair, I believe. Mr. C. S. Hickman is to officiate as groomsman. During his year's stay in Dorchester, Mr. Lane has made himself an universal favorite, both in the bank and in social circles, and the warmest good wishes of all will be extended to the warmest good wishes of all will be extended to the warmest good wishes of all will be extended to his bride and himself. Another young lady will be gladly welcomed in society, and we hope they may live here for a long time. There is always a decided uncertainty about a bank officer's stay in any place, and too often, just as people learn to know and like them and theirs, the stern mandate is issued, "move up higher."

Mr. Foster of Sackville will take Mr. Lane's place in the bank for the next two weeks.

Mr. Foster of Sackvine will call place in the bank for the next two weeks.

Parson, Miss Hattie Towse, Miss Smith, and too many others to mention, I met in town, all laden with parcels. Why cannot the ladies and gentlemen do their shopping here? It is positively discouraging the way our fine shops are passed by and the more indifferent ones of Amherst patronized; and this in another province! On Thursday quite a large party started on one of those merry out-of-door expeditions that has pleasure for its object and freedom for its inspiring principle. This social reunion directed their course to Dalhousie mountain. The way there is a little rugged, but when you find yourself at the top of the limestone rock and viewing the surrounding country, including the river scenery, for twenty or 30 miles, you are well repaid for your exertions. After adding their names to the many already carved there, they descended to the glen, where they par-took of an al fresco repast under the fragrant foliage of tall pine trees. The large delegation of summer revellers who have the necessary amount of means and leisure to enjoy the health-giving pleasures that are to be found here have nearly all fled. They carry away rare collections of views of some of the most en-trancing scenery, pleasant recollections of the most agreeable outing and baskets of the choicest fish that swim, and will return when another season of smiles and sunshine will lure them back again. They say, too, that absence makes the heart of host and guest grow fonder. They relish one another all the better for an interval of separation.

From an Occasional Correspondent. SEPT. 9 .- The event of the week was the excursion to Battery Point, which was a very enjoyable affair. There was, however, one drawback to the pleasure of the day, viz., the absence of Mr. P. McIntyre, one of the committee, who was obliged to remain home on account of illness. their boats and had a delightful sail home. Quite a number of sportsmen visited our town recently. Among the number may be mentioned Mr. F. B. Morgan, of England, and Mr. H. R.
