JULY 1 .- After enduring ten days of dark, cold disagreeable weather, the bright sunshine of today was doubly welcome, and I am sure the strangers who are visiting our beautiful little city cannot help admiring it, as it is certainly looking very lovely. We may now expect some very hot weather, as the city is full of clergymen, and they always bring us extreme heat no matter how cool it is before their

Although a large number of our citizens went out of town to spend the holiday, there have been num-erous attractions here. This morning the lacrosse match drew a goodly number of our beauty and fash ion out to the athletic grounds, where they watched with great interest the process of our national grounds. tional game, which is so entirely new to us here. Among other attractions were the oddfellows parade, horse and bicycle races; also the ladies of the methodist church had a dinner and refreshments on their beautiful grounds near the church, and a pro-menade concert this evening. It has been a charming day for driving, consequently every available team has been out. This has been an exceedingly gay week, the so-cial attractions have been varied and numerous. On Saturday evening the cheopian friends of Mr. On Saturday evening the cheopian friends of Mr. Geo. Graham of the Bank of B. N. A. met at the Barker house for the purpose of giving him a farewell dinner on the eve of his departure to visit his home and friends in Scotland. Mr. O. F. Street, in the absence of Mayor Allen, presided at the head of the table, the vice-chair was filled by Mr. E. Byron Wirnston. Winslow. At the right of the chair sat the guest of the evening, and scattered around the board were Messrs. T. B. Winslow, F. St. John Bliss, Hedley Messrs. T. B. Winslow, F. St. John Bliss, Hedley V. C. Bridges, Manager Inglis of Bank of B. N. A., Schoffield Lewis A. Bliss, J. W. Wetmore, W. Emile Smith, Lieut. Carpenter, Major Buchan, Lieut. Heming, Dr. McLearn, C. Fred Chestnut, George A. Hughes, Geo. F. Gregory, Sharp, E. H. Allen. The table was beautifully arranged and decorated with flowers, the centre piece being very beautiful. The menu was of a very artistic and pretty design, and was inscribed with quotations and mottos suitable to the occasion. It contained all that the most fastidious appetite could demand, and was served in a very satisfactory manner. Its discussion occupied two hours. After the different toasts were responded to, songs were sung by Maj. Buchan and Mr. Bridges; the rendering by the latter gentleman of "Scots Wha Heal" will not soon

The reception given by the "Y's" on Friday afternoon in the temperance hall, in honor of Miss Tilley, of Toronto, and Miss Scott of Ottawa, was a very pleasant affair. Tuesday evening Mrs. Bailey gave one of her delightful dances in honor of her son Mr. J. W. Bailey, barrister, of Boston, who is visiting his parents. The parties given by Dr. and Mrs. Bailey are always very enjoyable, and this was no exception. The charming music, furnished by the F. O. M. W. orchestra, the cool evening, and well waxed floors, made the dancing lirresistible; the only drawback being the usual one in Fredericton, more ladies than gentlemen. Supper was served about 12 o'clock and at 2a.m., the orchestra played "God Save the Queen." Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beckwith, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. JULY 1 .- Now that the fleet is in port, Halifax is supposed to be very gay, but as I uncork my inkstand preparatory to settling down for "our chat," I rather fear my readers, judging from the meagreness of the items which I am about to chronicle, may consider it merely a supposition-a myth or a fable so to speak-and come to the conclusion that, after all, a garrison town can occasionally be quite as slow as some other cities. But all things considered, who could expect it to be otherwise than dull during the past week? In such weather how could society put on its gay and festive air! When not enveloped in fog we were greeted with downpours of rain, or if such did not happen to be on the programme for the day the atmosphere continued so raw and chilly that the sealskin sacque which was donned by so many ladies during the past week, did not look by any means amiss or out of season. Still we are almost inclined to think that the uninviting aspect without would have prompted folks to make it as inviting as possible within doors, and given a few dances or something of that sort, don't you know? Besides so apropos one would imagine during the cool evenings. However, it is the same old story—imagining how differently we should have acted had we been in that other person's place. I think I had better not presume to dietate. Instead let us throw all the blame consequent upon the dullness of things in general, on the shoulders of that most difficult individual to conciliate—the clerk of the weather! Despite the unpleasant weather during the past week the several tennis clubs were patronized by a fair number of members, among whom we noticed a sprinkling of naval men-a goodly assemblage of gallant young midshipmen, who, as a general rule, are capital hands at tennis, in consequence of which are a welcome addition to these afternoon parties. But boating was out of the question. I was told of two or three very pleasant private picnics that were, owing to the cold, indefinitely postponed. Let us hope July may prove more propitious to pleasure

Sir John Ross, who, accompanied by his niece, has been making a tour through the most interesting province of Nova Scotia, returned to "Bellon Monday.

On Friday last, at admiralty house, Lady Watson gave a large "at home." Unfortunately the day was quite a drawback to an affair of this description as the unpromising weather deterred many from wearing some fetching gown especially gotten up for the occasion, and, you know, rather than not appear in that recherche costume those ladies stopped away. Imagine the disappointment after picturing yourself 'the observed of all observers, admired and envied by all your friends: imagine I say to look out and find on the appointed day that the weather is too threatening to admit of your appearing in it—after such a disappointment who would care to be present at all! From this we may draw our own conclusions as to why so many bright faces were absent on Friday last from Lady

Watson's "at home." Mrs. M. Wallace entertained a large number of friends at her residence, Morris street, one atternoon last week. It was voted by all present as one of the most successful five o'clock teas of the season. The Harkins dramatic company still continues to draw very large houses. Miss Arthur may be considered the chief attraction. All her old admirers may be observed each evening conspicuously in the front seats. Miss Arthur returns to the city after more than a year's absence, immensely improved in her acting, or perhaps we should more aptly ex-press it, that during those months the lady has gained a wider experience of the stage.

Mrs. Frank Doull during the past week gave two large parties to the young folk. On the two afternoons in question this lady's drawing rooms were well filled with young ladies and gentlemen, whose ages ranged from six to sweet sixteen, all decked out in the very best "Sunday go to meeting frock."

JUNE 30 .- The yearly week of festivities has come and gone and the rain still lingers In spite of its persistency last week people succeeded in being festive. The closing exercises of the church school for girls took place on Tuesday morning. A large number of people were present, the wet weather unfortunately interfered with the calisthenics which were to have been gone through in the open air if it had been fine. The exhibition of drawings and paintings by the pupils was good. I have heard Miss Forsters, of Dorchester, specially mentioned. Several little maidens performed very creditably upon the piano, and there were a few vocal selections. Sir John Allen, of Fredericton, distributed the prizes. Miss Ruth Scott, of Quebec, received the first, a gold star, which Sir John Allen pinned the first, a gold star, which Sir John Allen plined to her dress, in some trepidation, I imagine, as to the resisting qualities of the fabric. Miss Mary Partridge, of Halifax, also received a gold star. Misses Marie Trenaman, Susie Dow, Margaret Leckie, Emily Snooks, and and Mabel Burstall, each a silver star. In the junior class, Misses Agnes Dimock, Bertha Miller, Amy Miller, Ellen Dodwell, and Madge O'Brien, each received a badge. Sergeant Cunningham, forte, German, singing. Sergeant Cunningham, calisthenics. In the afternoon the corner stone of the new building was laid by Sir John Allen. This building is expected to be completed by September 1st. Prof. H. T. Hind, M. A. D. C. L., who is the secretary and promoter of the enterprise must feel considerable satisfaction in its marked success.

At the conversazione on Wednesday evening, the many styles of garb were a matter for wonder and bewilderment. The "dressing fit" was interpreted in all degrees, from the full evening dress with shoulder blades ad lib, to the modest attire suitable for morning many same had affected. for morning wear. Some had effected a compromfor morning wear. Some had effected a compromise, and to the regulation evening tollet had added a hat, which, in conjunction with uncovered arms and neck, struck the uninitiated beholder as being slightly incongruous. How thankful men should be that they are saved the mental wear and tear of how to clothe themselves. They put on their swallow tail, and an expanse of white shirt front, and have no further anxiety, but unfortunate woman must be continually racking her brain for some new combination in which to adorn (or disfigure) hermust be continually racking her brain for some new combination in which to adorn (or disfigure) herself. At the students' ball on Thursday evening a greater uniformity of attire prevailed. No one kept on their hat, and everyone left their morning dress at home, and enjoyed themselves thoroughly.
