SACKVILLE.

[PROGRESS is for sale in Sackville at C. H. Moore's bookstore.]

Tracy 30.—Society was awakened from her lethargy last week by a pink dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Parsons, at their new home, when a company of twelve of Sackville's elite enjoyed themselves over the choicest of viands, after which eucure and whist were the pleasures of the evening. The pink effects were given by the lights and flowers, which were all of that beautiful color. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Milner, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fallison, Mr. and Mrs. J. Rennie, Mr. and Mrs. F. MacDougall, Miss Estabrook, Mr. Thomas Murray.

It is very unusual for us to be so fortunate as to have two young brides at one time, but such I really believe the case at present. Mr. Winthrop S. Fawcett and bride of Boston, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fawcett. Capt. Casey and bride are the guests of Mrs. Casey's father, Mr. A. Fawcett.

Mrs. A. R. Dickey, and Mrs. Dolson, of Amherst, spent Tuesday in town.

Last Wednesday morning a dozen or so of our fair maidens might be seen stowing away in neat little baskets, faintly parcels, which suggested array of those as you please surprise parties. As their ideas seemed to run in a romantic channel this time, they decided to take possession of the house of a hospitable matron in Dorchester. The boys whistled and the girls looked so happy over the prospect of a drive through the fat-damed Dorchester woods, but, alas! at seven o'clock, the time appointed for starting, the clerk of the weather (who by the way was not invited) seemed bent on putting a stop to all this frivolity, and all the imploring looks and wishes of the crestfallen butterflies proved of no avail. I understand it has been indefinitely postponed.

SCRIBBLER.

"ASTRA'S" TALKS WITH GIRLS.

[Correspondents seeking information in this department should address their queries to "Astra," Progress, St. John.]

My dear girls, "do you know" that I am seriously thinking of changing the name of this column, and heading it—"Astra's Talks with Boys?" because the boys seem to have a great deal more to talk to me about than the girls, and they seem to stand by me better, too, bless their dear hearts—and they are sure to come back again and again after they have once written. I believe I am disappointed in the girls somehow, fond as I am of them. They write and tell me that they are so fond of me, and they think I am lovely, and could not do without me at all, and then they proceed to forget my very existence. Never mind, girls! Blessings brighten as they take their flight, and when you no longer have Astra you will want her, and will not be comforted by

A Handsome Top Phaeton.

WE have been showing heavier Carriages for some time. This is a top Phaeton, so popular with many people. The advantages of such a vehicle for driving need not be spoken of here, for they are apparent. This carriage weighs 160 pounds. Among the numerous testimonials received by us from time to time is one from Mr. Golding, of Fredericton, who says:

I have been using JOHN EDGECOMBE & SONS' Carriages and Sleighs for twenty years in the livery business and have patronized during that time other manufacturers in the province, but can say I never found any to give me as good satisfaction as those manufactured by John Edgecombe & Sons.

like you at all, but as it is, I can't help myself. No, I had not heard the latest bit of slang—"what about that elephant?" and at first sight I must confess that there does not seem to be much point in it, but I suppose thereby hangs a tale. I really did not mean to make a pun, but I see that I have been quite guilty of it unintentionally and it is too late to run it out now. (1) I am delighted to hear that you approve of my personal appearance, but are you sure you did not see the wrong person? (2) The idea of asking me if I am engaged yet? What would Geoffrey say if he heard you? Why he is the happy young man of course, or at least he ought to be happy. (3) The best definition of flirting that I ever heard was this: "Flirting consists of attentions without intentions." Yes, I used to do a good deal of it once in a time, and I believe I should still, if I got a chance, and Geoffrey was not around, because he likes to have a monopoly of that sort of amusement himself.

GREEN BEANS, Fredericton.—I should be very happy to give you all the help in my power, were it not that your questions are utterly unreasonable, because you must be aware that space is a great object in a newspaper like PROGRESS and if I were to undertake to explain the many and varied theories of different astronomers concerning the influences which cause meteors or shooting stars. If I were to give you even a brief sketch of the law of gases, or even outline the law of the planets, I should require at least two columns of space and that would be more than my entire allowance for the week. If you want a copy of Dr. Dick's Sideral Moments at any library, you will gain some information about shooting stars. Borrow Ganot's Physics—you will have no difficulty in getting it at the Normal school or from the University library—and read the chapter on gases, page 122; the opening sentence is "Gases are bodies which, unlike solids, have an independent shape, and unlike liquids have no independent volume. Their molecules possess the most perfect mobility and are continually tending to occupy a greater space. This property of gases is known by the names expansibility, tension or elastic force, from which they are often called elastic fluids. If you will consult the Encyclopaedia Britannica you will find the law of the planets concerning the planets. I am sorry if this information is not as full as you require, but you see it has taken up a good deal of space to give you even these few directions for finding out what you wished to know. I hope you will not be discouraged by your first effort.

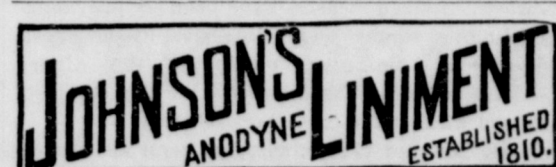

J. W., St. John.—Many thanks for the information about electrolysis. It was very kind of you to write and tell me, and I will give you my message with pleasure. I had understood, on what I considered the best authority, that it was impossible to have the operation performed any nearer than Toronto.

JUNE SHOWERS.—My dear child, what in the world made you choose such a name? and why under the sun—sky, I mean, for I have not seen the sun for so long that I forget what he looks like. Did you inflict one more shower on a suffering mortal who has already had all the ambition washed out of her by the incessant showers of the past week? Go to, June flowers! Were it not for the delightful manner in which you begin your letter, I should not have received it differently. Don't you know that the practice of writing poetry to young ladies is very much out of date? (2) Probably the young lady in question had some excellent reason for wearing her apron, or she would not have done so, and I must say that I think it was entirely her own concern, although of course it is not usually considered by any means etiquette to wear an apron in company. Don't you know that circumstances alter cases? (3) Your questions are a little singular I must admit, and they read more as if they emanated from a girl than a man. Your writing is quite good.

S. S., Fredericton.—I had not intended taking any notice of your letter, but as there are some people on whom silent contempt is lost, I decided to inform you that when I opened my column to young men I intended receiving those who knew enough not to abuse the privilege thus granted them; also that my column is not to be utilized for making appointments, and finally, that I hope the girls who write to me have too much respect for themselves to make any appointments with strange young men. I know I respect them sufficiently to believe they would be as indignant at the suggestion as I am. The young lady you have taken the liberty of referring to would, I am quite sure, regard your suggestion as an insult, and treat it with the contempt it so justly merits. If you erred through ignorance, I can only say that I am sorry for you and hope the candid opinion you have now received from one woman may prove to be a lesson which will prevent your committing a like offence against good breeding in the future. If so you will always have something for which you should be grateful to ASTRA.
