St. John—South End.

Cards of invitation have been issued by Mrs. W. F. Harrison and Mrs. Charles Holden (jointly) for a ball to be given at the Institute assembly rooms on Monday next. This promises to be a most brilliant affair, and for which over 400 invitations have been issued. Giving a private dance outside one's own home is perhaps a novel idea in St. John, though in England and on the continent it is quite an ordinary custom, and one which recommends itself from the fact that it enables one to entertain a larger number of guests than at one's own rooms, and saves an immense deal of labor in turning out one's house.

The second of the series of assemblies comes off in the Pugsley building New Year's eve. The one which took place last week was such an enormous success that the young people are looking forward to the next with even more than usual interest. The informality of these dances are likely to be their great charm. The ladies provide the light supper, while the gentlemen look after all the rest under the following committee of management: Messrs. R. P. Hazen, W. S. Barker, J. C. Keator, James McMillan, C. McL. Troop, F. E. Sayre and R. H. Gordon.

The reception at the Union Club on Friday last was most successful, and was attended by a very large number of the friends of the members. The rooms were, perhaps, a little overcrowded and prevented many from seeing the building in its entirety. Refreshments, consisting of tea, coffee and sweetmeats, were passed around by the different waiters of the club.

The social event of this week was the opening of the "Nurse's Home" on Tuesday evening, when the keys of that institution were handed over to the commissioners of the general Public Hospital with an appropriate address by Lady Tilley. After speeches from Dr. Barker, and the several ladies present, coffee and light refreshments were served in the pretty dining room, where hangs Lady Tilley's fine copy of Jules Breton's celebrated picture, "The First Communion." A valuable oil painting, "Waiting at the Ferry," presented by Mr. Hammond, ornaments the reception hall, and the luxurious and comfortable furnishings of the different rooms, called forth expressions of warm admiration from those present, and I am sure that everyone who has in any way helped to the success of the project forward must feel fully satisfied with its completion, and that all are delighted that the nurses have now such a quiet and cozy home.

Raymond, a handsome gift, consisting of a cap, collar, and cuffs of Persian lamb. Mrs. Raymond was the recipient of a beautiful hanging lamp, and Mr. Raymond's children each received a pretty present, thus testing to the esteem in which the rector and his family are held.
