HUMOR IN THE HOUSE.

How the Members Relieve the Monotony at Fredericton.

The present session of the Assembly has been more than commonly prolific in humorous allusions. Somons of our Solons, perhaps, are beginning to learn that an ounce of ridicule is mightier than a ton of ble for any position from governor down to abuse. Even Daniel Lionel has a vague Bacchanalian feast days. perception of this. Certainly nothing that has happened in his 21 years of political NOTICE. - Whereas, Wherefor, (and life has caused him such unmitigated woe Where is?) my wife, Lucinda Isabella. as Lemuel's scorching retort in the budget debate. Not only the lemon squeezer but the Leary telegram has become a burden, and has been laid to rest forever. Daniel attended the funeral as the only mourner and for the space of a week he was speechless with grief at the loss of his noble proas there are several or more persons in geny. On Monday last, however, he had sufficiently recovered to make the following laudable effort to get even with Lemuel:

Long after the policy of the government has depleted the forests of our country and the tuneful saw mill has ceased to hum; long after the wild bears of the Miramichi have ceased to howl and the long tailed moose has ceased to switch; long after poor Selick has forsaken the waters of the Canaan and the Renous in search of the badger and the hare—oh! then it will not be the howling of bears nor the baying of brindle dogs we will hear, nor the voice of Hanington pleading for the poor man's voice of Haning on pleading for the poor man's rights, but it will be the wails of the children and grandchildren of the surveyor-general that will be heard: "Oh! was it my grandfather that sold him-self and his country for a mess of pottage?" It will be the wild cry of lamentation over the reputation their forefather might have had that will be heard on the shores of the Miramichi, and not the cry of the moore or the bear or even of the poor old Selick.

Unfortunately for Lemuel, perhaps otherwise for Daniel, the former was not in the house. During the discussion upon the government's new taxation proposal, Lemuel again stirred up the animals.

"Pardon me a moment! now pardon me," roare the doughty Daniel, "I entirely disagree with the resolution, and I want it to go to the country." To which quoth Lemuel:

It was always a mystery to me in my boyhood's days, Mr. Chairman, how it was that Daniel of old managed to escape from the lion's den. But of late years a flood of light on that subject has poured in upon my mind. If the ancient Daniel was anything like the modern one, the reason the lions did not eat him was, because he wouldn't agree with them.

Charlotte County is famous for its "Big Four," and, of the Four, Bill Douglas is the biggest. It is the firm belief of Wil-SMYTHE.—At the manse, to the wife of liam that the real object of this life is draw Aquarius mourns, for she saved the money the Rev. Wm. Smythe, twins; girls. poker; all else is a delusion and a sham. and melted some snow. Mr. Hetherington—I am going to use unqualified language and take the risk of the law. I say if there is one lie bigger than another that has been told by the honorable gentleman, that is the lie.

Mr. Hanington—I say it is so.
Mr. Hether rington—And I say your statement is a mean, cowardly insult. I ask the House what can a decent man do with such a—a—a bluff as that?

Bill Douglas (in subterranean tones)—Raise

It tell to the lot of Mr. Powell to close the debate on Friday night and in the course of his remarks he touched up brother Pugsley rather neatly.

"The Solicitor General is anxious to help the farmer. He proposes to ask $2,000 in aid of the dairying industry—which means a three cent stamp for each farmer. He thinks by scattering this generous sum over the face of nature that he car capture the farmers of this Province. But I am inclined to think the farmers will have about the same opinion of their 'three-cent bill' as they now have of their 'three-cent Billy!"

Perhaps the tollowing hardly belongs to the domain of humor, but as it shows what Marcus Atkinson, M. D., thinks of William Wilson, Esq., it ought to be preserv-

"I obj ct to being interrupted, Mr. Chairman, and especially by this frowsy-headed, blear-eyed, foul-mouthed buff-on from York—this bell-wether—this automatic puppet that jumps whatever way his leader pulls the string!"

Neither is the tollowing intensely humorous, but it is a good sample of Marcus: I see an empty chair—Oh guity, vacant chair! You look descreed. You look forlorn. Your expression is not the guise of innocency. But it, Mr. Chairman, across the back of that empty chair, as upon the walls of Belsahzzar's coffee-room, were painted the words, "Trickery, Subterfuge, Treachery, Insincerity and Tyranny," and if these words could be transferred from that chair and branded on comfortable circumstances, thanks to that the alabaster brow of the Attorney General, they would be the insigna of dishonor, and the badge of infamy, indeed; but they would have been placed there by the Hammering Hand of Justice!

Life in India.

Everything in India is cheap writes a traveller. I remained thirteen months and had a retinue of twenty-two servants, each of whom I paid the princely salary of five cents a day. It only costs a Hindoo two cents a day to live, so my employes made money. They do little work, and each one has his or her caste ideas that limit their usefulness. One man attended to my horse, and I could not get him to do anything else. He went by a name that denoted he was attending to horses. Then I had a personal attendant who acted as interpreter, and who addressed me always as Sahib. The Hindoo never eats meat, and they have no aggressiveness. They are opposed to killing chickens or any kind of fowls. One time I stopped in a big hotel and wasps had built a nest in the top of my

HOW THEY KEEP LENT.

Amherst Ladies Meet and Tell Some Interesting Experiences.

The members of the Amherst W. C. T. U. have been practicing Lent-keeping this year, with excellent results, as was shown at their "experience meeting" in the presbyterian class room, Amherst, last Friday evening, in which they modestly told how they were helping others by helping themselves. The ladies of the union told of their experiences in saving money to be used to purchase leaflets for those wicked men who get as drunk in Lent as at any other time of the year, with the possible exception of St. Patrick's day in the morning, election day, and other

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. deny themselves and the men in whom they are most interested, the solace of anti-Scott Act beverages the whole year round (except on certain festal days before mentioned, when men must drink and women must weep); so extra self-denial on their part is far more commendable than the abnegation of those who deny themselves but once a year, and then only because it s fashionable.

The experiences of the ladies were varied and interesting. One lady "swore off " candy and oranges; another abstained from the deadly plum-pudding and the indigestable mince-pie.

One lady saved a car-fare, and another trimmed an Easter bonnet, saving the millinery bill, and another member was disappointed on whashing day. The boiler had been filled with clear, cold water, the beverage of our first parents; the well had been pumped dry; the wringer had been hauled out of a barrel in the wood shed; the clothes line had been spliced, and a clothes-pole had been manufactured. The big tub was tound to have discarded its hoop-skirt; so it was replaced by a flour barrel, converted into a tub by an unruly bucksaw. The half-dollar reward had been placed on the clock shelf-all these events of washing day had happened according to programme but the washerwoman did not come. So the lady of the house earned leaflets for men who have been driven to drink by wash-day experiences, by doing the washing herself, to the discomfiture of the Wash-Ladies'

One lady made and sold a pot of mustard and some lemon snaps. A peculiar instance of denial was that of the lady who saved seventy-five cents "by not treating two friends and self to oyster stews." The husband of a lady member gave her money to buy water with. Amherst's

The lady, who evidently did not believe delirious ecstacy of holding a "king full" rise in the market, sold one dozen eggs, or the occult mystery of "skinning for a straight." These remarks will render more lucid the following:

the production of a great Canadian hen.

This lady also made the fire three times in the W. C. T. U. hall.

A lady who is fortunate enough to have a genuine boy to train in the way he should go, made a suit of clothes for the lad, instead of employing the tailor. One can excuse the pride the lady took in this labor Box 283, Woodstock, N. B. of love and self-denial, for, as she said, it was no easy work, as she had to put fitteen pockets in the suit. But the crowning instance of self-denial was that of a lady member who saved not only money for useful literature, but also in all probability, the uttering of curses both loud and deep. She actually took down the kitchen stovepipe, cleaned it, and put it up again. Who says that the women of today lack the fortitude of their

After this, O gilded Amherst youth whenever you see a wall-pocket filled with tracts with the mystic letters W. C. T. U and the legend "Take One," on the outside, accept the invitation. Do not leave the tracts in prominent obscurity- take them down, and hearken to their tale of woe. Do not take the leaflets to light your deadly cigarette, but take them, and (figuratively speaking of course) put them in your pipe and smoke them. Remember that they were bought for your benefit with sacred money-money earned by loving self-denial. Praise not Philippa-she never worried over a suit with fifteen pockets, talk not of Joan of Arc, she never put up a stove pipe. The self denial of the members of the Amhert Women's Christian Temperance Union would cause the heroines of history to hide their haughty heads in heaviest humility.

A SMOKE HELMET.

Firemen May Now Remain in Burning Buildings With safety.

A protector for use of firemen in burning buildings has recently been devised and it is said that it not only shields the eyesight from blinding smoke, but turnishes sufficient fresh air for breathing purposes the firemen is thereby enabled to continue his efforts for the saving of life and property under circumstances absolutely impossible without an air supply. The helmet comprises a large flexible hood that entirely incloses the head and neck, the head being forced upward through a yielding neck orifice which closes snugly about the neck. The front portion is provided with a tranpareat screen of glass or mica giving a clear view. A strong cylindrical reservoir. supported back of the neck, contains a supply of fresh air, strongly com-pressed, which will serve to supply the respiration for a considerable time. The cylinder communicates with the interior of the hood, the air being let in gradually by a valve that controls its admission to any desired rate. A small pressure guage is connected with the cylinder, which indicates the amount of compression. There is also connected with the device an air pump to replenish the air when necessary before taking another plunge into the dense smoke. The hood is of the heat. The arrangement is likely to be larged used, as by its use a fireman can rescue helpless persons under circumstances where it would be certain death to linger -Philadelphia Record.

The will is an interesting piece of literature under any circumstances, but the gentleman who sends it to Progress has a personal acquaintance with several of the heirs and can vouch for its authority. The will reads as follows:

Ere that time will arrive, men of sense must agree, Now I'm well, strong, and hearty, my age forty three,
I make this my last will, for I think it quite time,

REPORT ON "THE ISLAY BLEND" WHISKEY. Registered by request of Messrs. MACKIE & CO., Lagavulin and Laphroaig, Island of Islay. Argylshire, Scotland.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S HOSPITAL,

I have carefully analyzed and tested the above Whiskey, and am of the opinion that it is a very High Class Brand, of very delicate flavor, and mellow throughout; there is an entire absence of any artificial sweetening, or any other matter which render the majority of Whiskey deleterious. It is also entirely free from tusel oil. The slight color it has is obtained from lying in bond, and from a porportion of the Whiskey being matured in sherry casks. I can safely recommend it for medicinal purposes as being a reliable and thoroughly genuine article. (Signed)
