There is new movement on foot and a new sensation. Ambulance classes are to be started for ladies. Surgeon Capt. Lees-Hall, A.M.S., is the originator. Dr. Hall has had a great deal of exper-perience in this line, not only in instructing but also in instructing and managing classes of ladies, and is I believe desirous of beating the record in this particular; he was also adjutant of the volunteer medical staff corps in London for a number of years. Many ladies have signified their intention of joining and some faint hearted ones are even now tumbling at the thought of blood and broken bones. When these red cross dames take their diplomas, they will be bound to attend any accident they may see. And this autumn when the football season is on, if any player chances to get hurt there will be a wild rush of ladies—from the A very useful thing is knowledge no matter how little, and if the class become proficient many a useful life may be saved and much suffering avoided. It is sincerely to be hoped that Surgeon-Capt. Lees-Hall will have the support of all the ladies of

There have been so many arrivals this last week that Halifax amusements are reviving. On Friday night last Sir John Ross arrived from England accompanied by his daughter Miss Ross, who will undertake the important duties of mistress at Belle Vue. Sir John looks exceedingly well after his trip to England, and I believe Bellevue is to be gayer than ever this year and that a large dance will be given very shorily.

Another Miss Ross, although no relative, came on the same boat, is going to spend the summer with her sister Mrs. Alexander.
Mrs. Wood, the wife of the commander of H. M

S. Blake, arrived at the same time accompanied by two children, and is now staying at the Waverly. Quite a contingent came from the West Indies and Bermuda on the Alpha. Mrs. Rolphe and her children, Mrs. Young, wife of the commander of H. M. S. Pylades, and the Misses Nicholson of St. John, who have been spending some time with their sister Mrs. Black-Barnes Mrs. John Taylor and her daughter Miss Lithgaw arrived on the same host. daughter, Miss Lithgow, arrived on the same boat.

In a recent number of The Queen an elaborate description is given of the trousseau of one of the brides of last week. If the description is not too elaborate the gowns must be lovely indeed. And the fortunate young lady is to be envied in the possession of so many faultless garments.

The ladies' ball is to come off on next Thursday, June 17. It is to be at Maplewood, and the energetic committee of ladies are now busy decorating and arranging the house. Maplewood is a lovely place for a ball in the summer time, but it has the great disadvantage in being too far out of town and troublesome to get at. I hear a large marquell is to to compose the greater part of the sitting out room, as the house is, after all, not large. There will be many heart-burnings over the invitations, say the un-initiated, but I hear on excellent authority that managing the affair will ask non-subscribers to with just the same heartiness and alarcity which they would display in asking people to their own houses. There will be no grudge either shown or felt to those ladies who were unable to subscribe.

We have had three concerts this week, all of which had excellent houses, though none of them seemed to have drawn particularly well in the strictly fashionable world. And indeed the concert season is over. People will not sit in a stuffy concert room at this time of year, but there lies a force of the strictly fashionable world. tune for some one in promenade concerts in Halifax, if they are properly managed.

The Wanderers' bazaar is occupying the minds of society at present. Great things are expected, and no doubt it will come up to expectation. The committee and ten ladies are working hard, and all the dresses have been decided upon. Some of these costumes are to be marvelous, the like never having been seen in Halifax. In fact in every detail this bazaar is to be above rivalry.

An extremely respectable atheletic association wished to reap a benefit from the Wanderers' bazaar. And proposed that a stall should be given to them, and they would sell goods pertaining to their own of atheletic sports; an idea which was all very well. But they further more said "We want all the receipts!" The Wanderers to supply the nuse enseene and we to reap the benefit!!" Somewhat of a one sided bargain, and hardly to the advantage and gain of the Wanderers — a fact which they were year. gain of the Wanderers,—a fact which they were remarkably quick in perceiving.

The polo club began the season last Friday, and played again on Tuesday. There wery few spectators, only those directly interested in the game. As a rule very few people turn up to see a game of polo, but the same few turn up each day. Some of this year's players are quite new blood, namely, Major O'Dell, Capt. Maloney, Capt. Duffus, Dr. Jones, Mr. Percy Lea and some others. Major O'Dell and Capt. Duffus are old hands at the game in India, and no doubt will be great acquisitions to the club which very much misses Major. game in India, and no doubt will be great acquisitions to the club which very much misses Major Maunsell and Capt. Jenkins. None of the Leicestshire men play, I believe, which seems a great pity, for if they did it would give a great impetus to the sport and make a quorum every day. The new flag-lieutenant is going to play, so perhaps the Polo club will be more fashionable in navar circles than it has been, and is, in regimental. The navy used to turn out in force when Prince George was playing.

The South End Lawn Tennis club opened for the season on Saturday. The ground is exceedingly pretty and has been improved in many particulars, and a very prosperous season is anticipated, as the

and a very prosperous season is anticipated, as the tennis tournament is to be held here.

"Dancing in the barn" as we call it, "the Militaire" as we print it on our programmes, is to be the fashion this year in London, a fact with which the influence of Prince George, who is exceedingly fond of this dance, is distinctly connected. It has gone still further afield and reached Paris, and here is a truly Parisian comment on it, which is not unjust, "as she is danced" in Halifax at least. "This novel Yankee dance reminds me of the gavotte, plus a large element of Sauvagerie. MORRIS GRANVILLE.

[Progress is for sale in Digby at the bookstore of JUNE 7 .- Three hundred assembled in Academy hall last evening to hear an entertainment given by the pupils of Principal Godfrey's department assisted by pupils from other departments. The affair passed off beyond the expectations of the teachers themselves. Dialogues, solos, essays and speeches constituted the programme. The singing by Misses Hattie and Maud Campbell and Master Campbell, was exceptionally fine. The essays of Miss Annie Stailing, Miss Sadie Durkee and Misses Blackadar, and Morse were well rendered, especially that of Mr. Blackadar. A handsome and fine toned organ was kindly loaned the board of school commissioners for the occasion by its makers, Messrs. Chute, Stall & Co., of Yarmouth.

On Thursday last Prof. and Mrs. Vroom gave a most enjoyable dance except that the men had the tables turned on them a bit, and instead of there being more partners than they could dance with were in the majority by about ten, a few were not dancing men, but those who were did not lose much time when the ladies appeared, in getting as many dances as their alacrity vouchsafed to us. The ladies were: Miss Onseley, Miss Frances Onseley, Miss Ogilvte, Mrs. Harley, Miss Hind, Miss Thom, Miss Edith Dimock, Miss Carre, the Misses Bowman, Miss Agnes Lawson, Miss Stubbing (Halifax) Miss King, Miss Sadie King, Miss Painter. The gentlemen, Mr. F. A. G. Onseley, Mr. Harry King, Mr. Percy King, Mr. T. Allison, Mr. C. Abbott, Mr. M. Abbott, Mr. Honcroft, Mr. G. Drysdale, Mr. Scovill, Mr. Schofield, Mr. Whitman, Mr. H. A large number of Windsor people went to Wolfville on Thursday last to attend the concert at Acadia college. This was partly responsible for the scarcity of ladies at Mrs. Vroom's dance that evening.
