JUNE 8 .- The encoenial exercises at the University on Thursday evening last, were of more than usual interest, and despite the heavy thunder storm that closed the warmest day of the season, the college library was well filled at an early hour. On the platform were many distinguished visitors, among them Sir S. L. Tilley, Dr. W. Mills, of McGill university, Dr. Warburton, of Edinburgh, and Profs. Robertson and Saunders of Ottawa. Dr. Bridges delivered the oration in praise of founders of the institution. The address by Dr. Milis was considered the masterpiece of the evening. Mr. Baxter, the valedictorian of the graduating class gave some practical suggestions for the future welfare of their Alma Mater.

At the close of the encoenial exercises dancing was indulged in, and the booming of the cannon in the college grove, in the early morning hours, awakened many citizens from their slumbers announcing the departure of the class of 92. [Progress is for sale in Sussex by R. D. Boal and Geo. D. Martin.]

JUNE 8 .- The quietude of the last few weeks seems quite broken up now. We have had two entertainments in the last few days, and there are more to follow. Already I hear wonderful reports of events to take place during camp. One is an invasion of our quiet little town by a number of Moncton's fair ladies, who will live under canvas and are armed, so rumor says, with broomsticks. No doubt the array will be formidable, but as their errand is a peaceable and highly civilized one, a hearty recepion will be extended to them.

The large and fashionable audience that greeted the St. John School of Music, on Friday evening, was in no way disappointed by the programme prepared for them, unless it was in the lack of decorations on the stage. A fur rug and a solitary little table laden with apple blosssoms, did what they could to relieve the bareness and monotony, but the could to relieve the bareness and monotony, but the effect was not picturesque. However, nobody thought of the stage while they were listening to the entrancing strains of Miss Ogden's violin, or watching Miss Alexander's artistic attitudes, or convulsed with laughter at Miss Brown's funny recitations. Miss Ogden, with her curly black hair and her trailing gown of pale blue, trimmed with cream lace, looked very pretty especially when she tucked her violin under her chin, and was admired for the graceful as well as skilful way in which she managed the bow. Miss Alexander's readings were fine, notably the minuet, which she triaded in a stately and graceful manner that called forth much applause. She wore a quaint dress of light green with a cream sash, and carried a lovely cream feather fan that played no unimportant part in the proceedings. Miss Grace Hallett was in very good voice and gave her selections in her usual charming way. Miss Ina Brown quite brought down the house with her rendition of "the Scotchman at the Theatre" and was called back three times. The pieces she gave for encores served only to deepen the favorable impression made at first. Miss Nettie Pidgeon's songs were a treat and very much enjoyed by all lovers of good music. Miss Orlo Roach and Mr. Ogden also came in for their

The pink tea given by the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance on Monday evening was a great success and the large number of whom about 200 were guests, who filled the hall seemed to enjoy themselves very much. ### [PROGRESS is for sale at Amherst, by George Douglas and H. A. Hillcoat.] JUNE 8 .- The marriage of Miss Donkin to Mr. B.

L. Oakes of Weymouth, N. S., took place at 11 a.m. on Thursday at the pretty residence of the bride's father, Mr. C. E. Donkin, Spring street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Strothard, pastor of the methodist church, and the guests with few exceptions were relatives of the family. The bride was attired in a pretty and very becoming travelling costume and carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses. She was attended by Miss May Donkin who looked charming. Mr. F. Donkin supported the groom. Many valuable and elegant presents were received by the bride which included the useful as well as the more ornamental. After enjoying a very sumptuous repast a number of the guests accompanied the happy couple to the depot where they were abundantly showered with rice as they left on the St. John train en route for their fu-Mr. E.
