MONCTON.

[Progress is for sale in Moncton at the bookstore of W. H. Murray, Main street, and on the streets by J. E. McCoy.]

SEPr. 7-The most exciting event of last week was the Gipsy camp, held in Outing park, for the purpose of paying off the debt on the grounds, and the manner in which this decidedly unique and picturesque entertainment was planned and carried out reflects the utmost credit upon Mrs. T. V. Cooke, who was its chief promoter. The grounds were transformed, and hedges of spruce and trees thrust so firmly into the earth as to present every appear-ance of being indigenous to the soil. Each tree was hung with Chinese lanterns, and the numerous electric lights and colored lamps made a very brilli-ant scene. Two large pavilions, built of spruce boughs, contained the refreshment booth and band boughs, contained the retreshment booth and band stand, while smaller booths sheltered the gaudy dressed venders of peanuts and popcorn, cigars and fans. Huge bonfires, scattered about, served various purposes of adding to the illusion that you were among real gipsies, boiling the water for coffee, lighting up the scene in primitive gipsy style, and keeping the atmosphere warm enough to prevent the rather lightly clad performers from catching cold. A traised platform was erected near the grand stand on which one of the Spanish gipsy dances was executed every evening. Spanish gipsy dances was executed every evening, the dancers accompanying their rythmic movements, with castanets and tambourines, in true Zingara manner. The gipsies were divided into two tribes, a fair, and a dark one, and their dresses were most effective, and charming, many of the ladies wearing sashes and Figaro jackets bordered with tiny cres-cents, sequins and bells which tinkled softly as they sanes and rigaro jackets bordered with they cents, sequins and bells which tink led softly as they walked, and were very suggestive of the Spanish damsels they represented. The representatives of the sterner sex where arrayed with singular unanimity in a nondescrpt attire which might have been mistaken for the national costume of any country during any era from that of a jester of the court of King John to the dazzling uniform of a Venetian gondolier, or a Spanish matador; consisting as it did of peaked felt hat, decorated with feathers, bright colored blouse Figaro jacket of velvet, "smallcloths" of any material or color preferred by the wearer, worsted stockings, low, buckled shots, plenty of jewelry, and an artificial complexion. One well known gentleman was the solitary exception to this dead level of similarity, and wore the insignia of a Spanish buccaneer of the middle ages. I do not mean to laugh at the dear boys—far from it, because they all looked lovely, but somehow there is usual lines of modern costume and dress him in bright colors silken stuffs. I must not forget to mention the fireworks which added greatly to the scene, nor the excellent music discoursed by the cornet band. At the close of the entertainment on Saturday night the camps and booths together with the shrubbery were burned, making a series of immense bonfires the beauty of which almost compensated the spectators for the amount of smoke and spruce cinders they were compelled to swallow, but I believe spruce is excellent for the system when taken internally. The goodly sum of $200 clear of expenses was realized, and Mrs. Cooke and her army of willing workers are to be warmly congratulated upon the success of their dif-

cause they all looked lovely, but somehow there is curious grotesqueness about the stiff and starched youth of the period when you take him out of the ficult undertaking.

One very excellent scheme which had been formulated for freeing Outing park debt was the dividing of the ground into lots of one square yard each, which were sold for 25 cents. Each purchaser presented his lot to the association receiving a ticket in return; when all the lots were sold the duplicate tickets were drawn and the one containing a certain number won a prize consisting of a handsome chair.
