A PINCH OF SNUFF.

At the period of the emigration, Coblentz seemed to become the refuge of nearly all sailles might be said to have been trans- hope! ported to the banks of the Rhine. However portentous might be political events, they men bent upon pleasure.

most part, their position, and though many | now no means of replacing it. were reduced to their last expedients, all each day new conquests in every rank of hope.

who escaped this general infatuation, there needs of some companions in exile had alwas one who merits particular mention. He | ready decreased his means. What he was was called the chevalier De Roquincourt; able to do was far too trifling a thing to and though originally from the south of draw Barker from the abyss to the bottom France, his family had resided for a long of which he had tallen. It was necessary time in Alsace, where he was born. In to have recourse to the generosity of one yielding to the necessity which forced him more opulent. De Roquincourt decided to quit France, the chevalier accepted all upon the instant what to do. Never havthe consequences of his exile. The small | ing solicited anything for himself, he was sum with which he had fled to Germany | the bolder in asking for another; the rewas placed by him in the hands of a banker | tusal might pain without humiliating him. worthy of his confidence, and the interest | He addressed to the young man some last which he received, joined to the money ob- encouraging words, promised to busy himtained by teaching, permitted him to sat- self for him, and took his way to the resiisfy his needs and meet with honor his en- dence of the Vicomte de Roullac.

This sagacity was at first attributed to raillery, and he became for the most obtuse a model fit to be imitated, though inimit-

he believe all lost because his own class | month from France. were in difficulties.

Roquincourt gives lessons in grammar."

the chevalier lodged in the suburbs at the found at the roulette table. Although the house of a Jew who rented furnished apart- | chevalier had an especial horror of gamblments at a moderate price. Above him ing houses, and had never passed the thresdwelt a young German named Aloisius hold of one, the circumstances appeared Barker. He was from Neuwied, where he too pressing to allow his repugnance to had been in engaged in busines in a small | sway him. If M. de Roullac proved to be way with his mother and young sister; but in a lucky vein, as often happened, no a fire had suddenly destroyed all that he doubt he would listen favorably to his repossessed, and he had come to Coblentz in | quest. So he decided to enter the hall hopes of collecting some doubtful accounts where a number of the noble exiles were which would henceforth be all his fortune. Unfortunately his demands had been fruitless. Unknown to the manfacturers, without money to claim justice in the courts, adroitness nor the force to wring payment from debtors. One put him off, others denied indebtedness; in short, having lost his last hope and spent his last thaler, he De Roquincourt!" he exclaimed. "What had been for some days in a state of despair | miracle has led our Cato into this cave?" which nearly deprived him of the hope of they met on the stairs he inquired with interest in regard to them and his expectations; but not having seen him now for a week, he was unaware of the position of vicomte. "By heaven, my dear friend, actual distress to which the unfortunate take what you require young man was reduced.

house with the postman, who extended to our lead." him a letter. The young man looked at by name, and his air of benevolence evi- take." dently solicited an explanation of the "N5, no!" the German insisted. "You trouble in which he showed himself involv- must not withdraw the money staked. It but the courier turned toward De Roquin- little.

"Since you are acquainted with this gentleman, monsieur, he might perhaps be assisted by you.' "In what manner?" inquired the cheval-

"It is a little embarassing," returned has come from Neuwied for the gentleman; the postage is a quarter of a silver groschen, and he does not happen to have the amount-with him. "Say no more," answered the Frenchman, putting his hand in his pocket. But Aloisius stopped him with a gesture. "No." said he in a bitter tone, "I have this sum neither upon my person-nor elsewhere. I am not able to repay you, sir." "This is fortunate, for I owe it to you," said De Roquincourt. "Take it, monsieur. Since the letter comes from Neu-

He paid the postman, who departed, and handed the letter to Barker. The latter had not the power to thank him, but he opened the letter and rapidly perused | the tactiturn German. it. As he proceeded in his reading his features changed, and upon concluding he "Have you received bad news?" asked the chevalier, who had begun to ascend "Merely the intention of the vicomte to him in subsequent wagers, sometimes a-made by the young man. ing!" stammered Aloisius, raising the able to propose?" said the chevalier. letter to his brow with a despairing gesture.

man, with tears choking his voice, "they have sold what remained to my sister and er," interrupted the German, "I would not and then the quarter where he resided. my mother, and they are now without withdraw a Frederick. The table money is Night had come. The chevalier, having

The chevalier signified his sympathy and

"And they appeal to me for aid," continued Aloisius, "to me, who had not even the money to pay the postage on this letthe French nobility, and the court of Ver- ter! I am without resources and without

The chevalier attempted to calm him by some kindly words, and invited him to enwere not able to disturb the exiles in their ter his chamber to be interrogated in detail. careless life. To remark the noise and The distress of the young man rendered movement of this crowd, who had carried him more communicative than he had ever into Germany all their native habits of been before, and he explained to De Rolevity, one would have taken Coblentz for quincourt how the fire had suddenly desa city of amusement, and imagined that troyed all that the little shop contained, the there was a reunion here of French gentle- property of his mother and himself. The loss amounted to twelve hundred thalers, However precarious might be, for the comprising all their fortune, and they had

As Barker entered into these details his perserved a gay exterior, their only wealth, despair seemed to be augmented. While which could not be dissipated by the revo- picturing the frightful position in which his lutionary movement. Fetes continued to mother and sister were placed, he seemed be given as in France, visits were paid, the himself to see it the more distinctly. He rights of precedence disputed, and the last | was angry because of his impotence to serve coin wagered in play. A roulette table, them. He accused heaven, and fell more lately established in a house open to the and more into that wildress of sorrow which public, above all attracted the refugees by is the supreme misery of the unfortunate. that deceitful hope of gain of which one De Roquincourt comprehended that all dreams but never realizes. Some German | consolation would be useless. What was noblemen gathered there also, led by ex- required at the moment to relieve the ample, and the fatal passion for play made | stricken heart of Aloisius was reality, not

The chevalier was too poor to come him-Among the small number of gentlemen | self to the young man's assistance; the

Through the assistance of a man of business who, by means of a pretended sale, avarice by the malevolent, and to mercan | had preserved De Roullac's property from tile shrewdness by his friends. But when confiscation, the vicomte enjoyed in exile it was seen that the chevalier was enabled all the fortune left him by his father. He to assist, from his slender revenue, the employed it with a liberality which did not more needy gentlemen, esteem succeeded even arouse jealousy. His hand, ever those who bestow favors at the expense of open, resembled those fountains which be- of his creditors. stow their waters on all travellers. Never voluntarily refusing any one assistance, De Roquincourt merited this admiration. | none wished his fortune had another pos-In the loss of position and fortune caused | sessor; but his extravagant habits frequentby his flight, the revolution had in no wise | ly interfered with his good intentions. A changed his character; there was always the spendthrift and gambler, M. de Roullac same equity in his manner of judging men and things; the same sympathy for all that Most important, then, was it to apply to "A was good; the same pity for suffering which met his eyes. He had never concentrated tastes, like a flock of birds, had harvested your pocket?" the world into his own personality, nor did the golden grain which came to him each

My affairs are not those of the human | ed his steps in the hope of presenting himrace, he said, "and they have not fallen | self in advance of some other solicitor on into decadence because the chevalier De | the road, perhaps, like himself; but he was informed at the hotel that the vicomte had In following out his system of economy, not returned since morning, and would be gathered about the green cloth.

He at once perceived the vicomte, who was engaged in a very spirited game. The golden Fredericks were piled before him already discouraged by the misfortune in a little movable and sonorous heaps that which had come upon him, he had not the one saw successively increased or depicted. When he saw the chevalier he made a gesture of suprise.

"May the Lord pardon me, if here is not "Seeking you," responded the chevalier.

"I'll be with you presently," replied M. The chevalier was cognizant of the general state of Barker's affairs; every time me two or three thousand Fredericks." "Be careful to reserve a few," said the other, in an undertone. "You have need of them?" said the

"Gently!" interrupted a large German,

One day, upon returning from lesson who had placed himself behind M. de Roulgiving, he met Aloisius at the door of the lac. "It is necessary first that you tollow "Ah, the deuce! I forgot that Baron it with eyes dim with tears, but without d'Arembergt was my partner." observed taking it. The postman seemed undecided. the Frenchman, laughing. "But I will The chevalier, pausing, saluted Barker account to you, baron, for what I may

ed. Aloisius appeared not to comprehend, brings bad luck. Let the chavelier wait a

De Roquincourt bowed in token of consent, and the game was resumed. But one might have said that the arrival of the chevalier caused the luck to suddenly change. M. de Roullac, who before was winning, now began to lose repeatedly, and in less than a quarter of an hour all the messenger, hesitating. "This letter his Fredericks had departed under the banker's rake.

Though thus despoiled, the vicomte rose without betraying any emotion, excused himself almost with levity to the chevalier, ordered his carriage to be called, and de-

De Roquincourt had remained in the same place, sad, disappointed, his eyes fixed upon the fatal green cloth which had swallowed up the salvation and consolation of Aloisius. The baron of the Arembergt had not, however, imitated the prudent retreat vicomte, but continued to play with that obstancy characteristic of races of the wied it must be from your mother or your north. The game appeared to wish to recompense him for his persistence by an unexpected turn. The heaps of gold recommenced to form before him, and as they increased, words were dispensed by

"I warned you that to withdraw the table money would bring bad luck," said he, turning toward De Roquincourt, who was regarding him with a pensive air.

the stairs, but turned at the exclamation | take it turned the luck against him." "Then of course it is useless for me to "Ah, this last blow alone was want- ask you to accomplish what he was only

"What? I give the play money?" cried "For heaven's sake, what is it? What | the German.

how the luck continues; every play is successful now."

In fact, a new deposit of gold pieces came to be added to the heaps near the baron. The chevalier could only return a gesture of chagrin, comparing mentally the fortunes of the German with that of the vicomte and indignant at the injustice of play.

The baron observed the movement. "You envy me my good fortune," said he, with the insolent laugh of a successful

"No, not for myself," responded De Roquincourt, "but only for the unfortunate person that the smallest portion of this gold would console.' "Ah, that is true!" replied the baron. "I forgot that you were the Saint Vincent de Paul of the refugees. Well, my dear sir, why do you not assault the bank for his benefit? Follow the fashion, as I do."

"I have always feared to play and avoid-"Another reason for your trying. You have not drained your luck. One's always fortunate at the start. That is an axiom." "I have no confidence in the favors of "You have never sought them." "True."

"Therefore it is prejudice." "Suppose I lose?

"Suppose you win?"

The chevalier made no answer; but he felt influenced by the baron's words and yet more by the sight of the Fredericks, which continued to augment by the winnings of the latter. After all, it sufficed if by good fortune two or three throws were successful. A thaler risked upon the green board might give him in a few minutes the sum required to bring peace to Aloisius.

The temptation was singularly strong, and De Roquincourt instincetively carried his hand to his pocket; but the slender resources of the purse which he felt under his fingers cut short his desire. He recollected that atter his last alms to his indigent compatriots he had carefully calculated what remained to him and the least diminution of his resources would destroy the and his expenses. For the chevalier's generosity was not unreflective; his wish to oblige did not make him forgetful of duties he owed to himself, and he was not of

His hand rested for some time upon the purse which he had encountered. He recalculated his monthly expenses, and convinced of the impossibility of following the baron's advice, resigned.

The baron, observing him, shook his "Ah, well, chevalier," said he, ironical-

De Roquincourt reddened in spite of De Roquincourt knew this, and quicken- snuff box, upon which was a miniature of hurried to the rooms of his landlady, which his mother.

> ing some Fredericks?" his snuff box. The impertinence of the his head supported upon one of his hands baron jarred upon his nerves.

"Come," added the other still railing, chevalier, we will say no more; but give me a pinch of your snuff." He had extended his hand toward the snuff box of the chevalier, who made a thought crossed his mind. He drew back the box and closed it. "What!" cried the astonished German who had his hand extended.

"I beg vou to pardon me, baron," replied De Roquincourt seriously, "but each has his maxims. Yours prevent you from giving anything from your coins; mine imposes on me the same obligations as I look

"How so? Is it a jest?" "Not at all."

"You refuse me a pinch of snuff?"

"I refuse to give it to you, baron." "That is to say it must be purchased?"

"If you are willing."

The German gave a shout of laughter.

"Good Lord, this is curious!" he cried. 'The chevalier transformed into a tobacco dealer! And how much do you ask, my

"A Frederick, baron." "A Frederick! Why, that is usurous!"

"It is a speculation.

"With a pinch of snuff." "The subject does not matter. All economists will inform you that the selling price depends not alone upon the thing vended, but the circumstances. Have not rats been paid for at their weight in gold in beseiged cities? And wandering travellers in the desert of Sahara, would they not give a pearl for a draught of water?"

"And you consider me in an analogous "Near it, baron, for I saw you just now seeking in vain for your tobacco box, and you are not willing to leave your game to seek it. I consider, then, for the moment, that your nose is dependent upon me; and I do not abuse my position, but only use it in demanding of you a Frederick."

"Upon my soul! Give it to me for the curiosity of the thing," laughed the baron. De Roquincourt immediately extended his snuff box. "I only made a bargain for one pinch." continued the German, as he plunged his fingers into the box of mother-of-pearl, "but, in faith, my winnings allow me some foolish expenses, I will take two, my dear | garments. sir, and here are two gold pieces."

"Leave them upon the cloth," said Roquincourt. "They will be my wager." "You intend to risk them on a single

"On a single stroke." The game was called, and the chevalier won. He immediately drew away threequarters of the stake and risked one Frederick, which he lost; then he risked two, with which he recovered double the sum he had laid out. The same fortune followed gamst him but often favorable. He watched each turn with an anxious curiosity which one might have taken for the cupidity of a gamester. At length he counted the Fredericks which were before him, gathered them into a roll and rose. He do they announce to you?" asked De Roquincourt, descending hastily the steps.
"If you would know," said the young one of your compatriots."

"It is for a good purpose, baron," urged bad his twelve hundred thalers. Crossing the hall rapidly, which re-echoed with exclamations, and eductions, cries of rage and had his twelve hundred thalers. Crossing a few of joy, he quickly gained the street

Eagar's Wine of Rennet.

The Original and Genuine!

It makes a delicious Dessert or Dish for Supper in 5 minutes, and at a cost of a few cents.

This is the strongest preparation of Rennet ever made. Thirty drops will coagulate one Imperial pint of Milk.

BEWARE of Imitations and Substitutes.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND GROCERS.

of his habit, the better to hurry across the pools of mud and water which abounded in the suburbs. His heart beat violently at the thought of the delight Aloisius would experience, and he arrived almost breathless from joy and his speed.

Quickly ascending the three flights of stairs, he came to Barker's door. It was | gow, N. S. closed. He descended to his own apartment, hoping that the young man might have remained there since his departure, but it was empty. He was about to seek the landlady to ask where Aloisius could be balance established between his revenues found, when his eye fell upon a letter placed upon his bureau. He looked at the handwriting, which was unknown to him, and then opened it. It was signed by Barker, and contained the following lines:

"You bade me hope, but I have not the power. God himself has abandoned me. am not able to assist either my sister or my mother. I even lack the courage to support the sight of their sorrow. Adieu, you who have had pity for me, you who would have succored me if good will could serve in place of means. But Providence resembles man; she assists but the suc-ALOISIUS BARKER."

This letter overwhelmed the chevalier. It announced a desperate resolution which himselt, and drew abruptly forth a shell perhaps there was no time to prevent. He were upon the lower floor, and inquired if the baron. "I believed that you were ed that he had not gone out, and De action, and promotes healthy digestion. pursuaded. What risk is there in expos- Roquincourt remounted to the mansard. Try K. D. C. The door, fastened on the inside, for some De Roquincourt was not able to make a time resisted his efforts, but it at last vieldcomprehensive reply, so contented himself ed. He was arrested at the threshold; with a shrug of his shoulders and opened | the young man was lying upon the floor, a brazier of charcoal burned at his feet.

The chevalier sprang toward him, and 'since you will dety your fortune, dear raising him in his arms carried him to the head of the stairs, where the landlady had also arrived. The effect of the gas was happily not complete, and by prodigious exertion the young man was recalled to life. movement toward him. Then a sudden Regaining his senses, little by little, he cast about him a glance vague and wandering; then, at sight of the chevalier, all his memory returned. He started up abruptly, clasping his hands with a cry. "Ah, why have you resuscitated me?" he said brokenly.

"To prove to you that God has not abandoned you," said De Roquincourt, who, while he supported the young man's head with one hand, displayed the roll of Frederick's in the other.

Aloisius appeared struck by an electric

"It is gold!" he cried.

"There are twelve hundred thalers," replied the chevalier; "just the amount you have lost. Carry them quickly to your mother, and remember, another time, that Providence does not assist those only who are successful."

We need not attempt to paint Barker's joy, there are emotions too strong for words to express. Cured by happiness, he departed the next day for Neuwied, where he re-opened his little store, the profits of which had sufficed before, and wherein he re-found comfort and peace.

As for De Roquincourt, he returned some years afterward to France. There he recovered a small part of his fortune, enough for one of his simple tastes, and with which he still found means of solacing those more needy than himself; for, as is sometimes said, good will double one's resources, and though only possessing a pinch of snuff, one may yet save a family.-From the #### Politics Versus Science.

There are two subjects that are engrossing the conversational powers of the Dominion at present, and they are both worth discussing. One of them is the political situation, and the other is the new discovery of science, Rigby Waterproof Cloth. The latter we think rather holds the floor, as the Ladies are participating. The goods are now on the market in Ladies cloth as well as in gentlemen's cloth and #### powders, and the clothes, CET HER SUNLIGHT SOAP.

DOES YOUR WIFE DO HER OWN WASHING?

It will be a blessing to her and to your home.

sacred; it belongs to the game. You see no fear of observation, drew up the skirts Sunlight Soap Depot for Quebec and Eastern Provinces: Frank Magor & Co., Montreal.

Extracts from Letters:

One says :- "I would not be without your Wine of Rennet in the house for double its price. I can make a delicious dessert for my husband, which he enjoys after dinner, and which I believe has at the same time cured his dyspepsia."

Another says :- "Nothing makes one's dinner pass off more pleasantly than to have nice little dishes which are easily digested. Eagar's Wine of Rennet has enabled my cook to put three extra dishes on the table with which I puzzle my friends."

Another says :- "I am a hearty eater, but as my work is mostly mental, and as I find it impossible to take muscular exercise, I naturally suffer distress after a heavy dinner; but since Mrs, --- has been giving me a dish made from your Wine of Rennet over which she puts sometimes one. sometimes another sauce, I do not suffer at all, and I am almost inclined to give your Rennet the credit for it, and I must say for it that it is simply GORGEOUS as a dessert"

Another says :- "I have used your Wine of Rennet for my children find it to be the only preparation which will keep them in health. I have also sent it to friends in Baltimore, and they say that it enables their children to digest their food, and save them from those summer stomach troubles so prevalent and fatal in that climate."

Factory and Office 18 Sackville Street, Halifax, N. S.

RAILWAYS.

TOURIST SLEEPING CARS,

Will leave MONTREAL from (Windsor Street

PACIFIC COAST!

Wednesday at 8.15 p.m.

Minneapolis & St. Paul

Saturday at 11.45 a.m.

For particulars enquire of nearest Railway Ticket

Gen'l Pass. Agent, Ass't Gen'l Pass. Ag't.

MONTREAL. ST. JOHN, N.B.

Intercolonial Railway.

After Oct. 19, Trains leave St. John, Standard Time, for Halifax and Campbellton, 7.05; for Point du Chene, 10.30; for Halifax, 14.00; for Sussex, 16.30; for Quebec and Montreal, 16.55.

Will arrive at St. John from Sussex, 8.30; from Quebec and Montreal (excepted Monday), 9.35; from Point du Chene, 12.55; from Halifax, 19.20; from Halifax, 22.30.

WESTERN COUNTIES R.Y.

Summer Arrangement.

On and after Tuesday 7th June, 1892, trains will run daily (Sunday excepted) as follows:

LEAVE YARMOUTH—Express daily at 8.00 a. 11.30a.m; Passenger and Freight Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 1.30 p.m.; arrive at Weymouth 4.13 p.m.

LEAVE ANNAPOLIS—Express daily at 12.55p.
4.25 p.m.; Passenger and Freight Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 5.50 a.m., arrive at Yarmouth

LEAVE WEYMOUTH—Passenger and Freight Monday, Wednesday and

Friday at 8.30 a.m., arrive at Yarmouth at 10.55a.m.

CONNECTIONS—At Annapolis with trains of way.; at Digby with Steamer City of Monticello for St. John Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday; from St. John Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. At Yarmouth with steamers Yarmouth and Boston for Boston every Wednesday and Saturday evenings; and from Boston every Wednesday and Saturday mornings. With Stage daily (Sunday excepted) to and from Barrington, Shelburne and Liverpool.

Liverpool.
Through tickets may be obtained at 126 Hollis St.,

Halifax, and the principal Stations on the Windsor and Annapolis Railway.

J. BRIGNELL,

General Superintendent

Yarmouth, N.S.

C. E. McPHERSON,

D. McNICOLL,

Excursions

CANADIAN

One-Way

THINGS OF VALUE.

The greatest of faults is to be conscious of none.—Carlyle.

When you want to be cured of Dyspepsia try the Greatest Known Cure, K. D. C Free sample. K. D. C. Co., New Glas-

Young men think old men fools, and old men know young men to be so .- Metcalf. Are you debilitated from want of nourishment? K. D. C. will cause your food to nourish you by restoring your stomach to health action.

Example is the school of mankind, and they will learn at no other .- Burke. Palpitation is one form of indigestion. K. D. C. cures indigestion. Free sample to any address. K. D. C. Company, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia.

Many men have been capable of doing a wise thing, but very few a generous thing. Take K. D. C., and, like others who have tried it, you will say: "It is the Greatest Dyspepsia Cure of the age, and worth its weight in gold." He is truly good who desires always to bear the inspection of good men.-Roche-

Health digestion is one of the most im-"So you are not going to play?" said she had seen Aloisius. The Jewess affirm- K. D. C. restores the stomach to healthy

> No man ever offended his own conscience, but first or last it was revenged upon him

If in the next three years the sale of K. D. C. increases in the same ratio as in the past year the sale for 1883 will amount to over $1,000,000 worth, a convincing proof of its great merit.

It is more from carelessness about truth than from intentional lying that there is so much falsehood in the world.-Johnson.

Pelee Island Co.'s Grape Juice is invaluable for sickness and as a tonic is unequalled. It is recommended by Physicians, being pure and unadulterated juice of the grape. Our agent, E. G. Scovil, Tea importer and liquor merchant, No. 62 Union street, can supply our Brands of Grape Juice by the case of one dozen, or on

There is no man so friendless but what he can find a friend sincere enough to tell him disagreeable truths.—Bulwer Lytton. C. C. RICHARDS & Co. Gents-I sprained my leg so badly that I had to be driven home in a carriage. I immediately applied MINARD'S LINI-MENT freely and in 48 hours could use my leg again as well as ever.

JOSHUA WYNAUGHT. That string on your finger means "Bring home a bottle of MINARD'S LINI-

If fortune wishes to make a man estimable, she gives him virtues; if she wishes to make him esteemed, she gives him success.

Such as Sick Headache, Wind and Pain in the Stomach, Giddiness, Fullness, Swelling after Meals, Dizziness, Drowsiness, Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the Skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, All Nervous and Trembling Sensations, and Irregularities Incidental to Ladies. Covered with a Tasteless and Soluble Coating.

If you regard her health and strength, and want to keep your home free from hot steam and smell, and save fuel, washing

Wholesale Agts. Evans & Sons, Ld. Montreal. For sale by all druggists.

STEAMERS.

THE above Steamer will make three trips a week during the season, leaving Hampton MON-DAY, WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY mornings, at 5 o'clock; returning from Indiantown on to same days, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, stopping at the usual landings.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. CO.

Three Trips a Week

Wednesday Trip the Steamer will not call at July 4 to September 5, Daily Service (except Sunday).
Connections made at Eastport with steamer for St. Andrews, Calais and St. Stephen. C. E. LAECHLER, Agent.

BAY OF FUNDY S.S. CO.-(LTD.)

SEASON 1892. The following is the proposed sailings of the

S. S. CITY OF MONTICELLO. ROBERT H. FLEMING, Commander. MAY .- From St. John-Monday, Wednesday and day and Saturday.

JUNE.—From St. John—Menday, Wednesday,
Thursday and Friday; Annapolis and Digby—Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturdays.
JULY and AUGTST.—From St. John—Daily Trips,

(Sundays excepted.)
SEPTEMBER.—From St. John—Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday; Annapolis and Digby—Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday. Steamer sails from St. John at 7.00 a.m., local time, return trip, sails from Annapolis upon the arrival of the morning express from Halifax.

HOWARD D. TROOP, President. (Sg4)