A pretty cantata, entitled "A Day in the Woods" was pleasingly rendered by a number of the pupils of the presbyterian Sunday school on Tuesday evening, in "Elder Memorial Hall" under the management of Mrs. R. D. Ross The singing by the children showed careful training the strength of the woods with ing, and the rustic back-ground of the woods with the holiday attire of the young performers gave a picturesque effect to the scene. Excellent music was furnished by the orchestra, composed of Mr. Charles A. Black, violin; Mr. Frank McKenzie, violin; Mr. George P. Ryder, violincello; Mr. Will Murray, cornet; Mr. George Topping, cornet; Miss Murray, cornet; Mr. George Topping, cornet; Miss Rita Clark, piano. A graceful exercise called the Hoop drill was conducted by Miss Annie Moore, who was prettily imitated by six little grds, who received a merited encore. These charming little performers were: Sadie McVay, Elsie Anderson, Laura Morris, Lily McMullin, Ella McWha and Gertie McWilliams. The part of the sleeping children was taken by two little maidens, Jessie Smith and Dolly McKenzie, who, to all appearance was far away in the "Land of Nod." The sweet singing of Annie McGetchie in a picturesque costume, as the "Little Gipsy Girl," was admired by the audience, who expressed their appreciation by a hearty encore. The skipping-rope duett by Lottie Miller and Jessie McVay drew a round of applause. Among those McVay drew a round of applause. Among those taking part were the Misses Simpson, Grace Wilson, Mabel McMullin, Sadie McWilliams, and Jennie Carter, also those representing the planets, and whose names deserve especial mention. Alice Critley, Venus; Josie Campbell, the moon; Ethel Thompson, earth; Harold Clark, jupiter; Willie McVey, saturn; George Keys, mercury; Hallie Carter, neptune; Duncan McGetchie, mars; Edward McWha, uranus; Aubury McWha, comet. Gardiner, of the Merchants' bank, acted as groomsman with Messrs. J. Bauld, J. C. Lithgow; A. G. Corvie and H. C. Thomson, as ushers. After the ceremony the wedding party, which consisted only of the relatives, and Those taking part were: Mr. Helsby, Mr. Blois, Mr. Ormon, Miss Leedham, Miss Foster, Mr. Creighton, Mr. Drake, Dr. Smith. The best number on the programme was undoubtedly the "Dream of Fair Women," which was greatly enhanced by the recitation of the poem by Dr. M. A. B. Smith. The singing, especially of the quartette, was much admired, but a good deal of disappointment was felt because Mr. W. R. Foster was not down for a song.

The Dartmouth Lawn Tennis club held their first meeting at the house of Dr. Milsom the president, when the programme for the season was arranged and the following officers elected: President, Dr. Milsom (re-elected); vice-pres., Mr. J. W. Allison; secretary and treasurer, Miss Parker.

The St. George's club also had their meeting. The lawns are in fine condition and both clubs are looking forward to the opening day.

The annual Queen's birthday picnic to Port Wallace did not materialize this year. This is a pity, as
