India is administratively divided into British territory and native or feudatory states. The former is under the direct control, in all respects, of British officials. The control which the supreme government | ed:exercises over the native states varies in degree. There were in March, 1890, 755 municipal towns, with a population of 14,-250,000. In all the larger towns, and in many of the smaller towns, the majority of members of committees are elected by the rate (tax) payers. Everywhere the majority of town committees consist of natives.

According to Arago, the celebrated French physicist, there are three kinds of lightning, which he names lightning of the first, second and third classes. Lightning of the first class is known as fork lightning. That of the second class as sheet lightning, which has no definite form, but seems to be a great mass of light. It has not the intensity of lightning of the first class. When it occurs behind a cloud, it lights up its outline only. Occasionally it illumines the entire body of clouds, and appears to come forth from the very heart of it. Sheet lightning is very much more frequent than forked lightning. Lightning of the third kind is called ball lightning. Ball lightning lasts for several seconds, and, in this respect, differs widely from lightning of the first and second classes, which are, in the strictest sense, momentary.

MEN AND WOMEN TALKED ABOUT.

Lord Salisbury, it is said, drinks a bottle of port wine for dinner every day. Pitt, frail and delicate as he was, used to consume two, so Lord Acaulay tells us.

During the eight months that the Rev. Dr. A. T. Pierson filled Dr. Spurgeon's pulpit both the attendance and offerings were larger, it is stated, than during any corresponding period in the history of the famous London tabernacle.

Mr. Charles Dickens makes it a standing rule never to purchase any momentoes of, or patronize any movements in connection with, his late father. If he took notice of half the offers made him to patronize Dickensian relics he would simply have no peace. Therefore he invariably thanks a correspondent and declines.

The favorite pastime of the Prince of Wales, when a child, was that of sailing little boats. These were specially made for him, and consisted of every kind of river craft. His Royal Highness still preserves these-now very valuable-playthings, and they are carefully kept in a large cupboard at one of his residences.

A rustic inhabitant of Cape Cod, who was escorting Mr. Cleveland and Joseph Jefferson to the fishing grounds last year, and who had heard something of the latter gentleman's artistic gifts, addressed him as follows: "Do you act. Mr. Jefferson?" "Yes, a little." "Well, I'll give you fifty cents to cut up a little right here." But he couldn't, or at least didn't.

John Burns, the English M. P., is a rian of the people, living within the limit of $500 a year, and he will not take a penny more. This income is made up from individual subscriptions of one penny willingly contributed by those on behalf of whom he toils. He fixed the amount himself, it being the equivalent of his yearly earnings before he became an agitator.

The following are some of the characteristic gestures of European royalties when engaged in conversation: The Prince of Wales, if annoyed or nervous, winks his Lady-And how is your master getting left eye rapidly. The Emperor of Gertache affectionately. The Emperor of Austria puffs out his cheeks. The Czar runs his fingers through his hair or lays his hand flat on top of his head. The Khedive taps impatiently with his left foot.

Prince Bismarck has been very handsomely rewarded for his public services. After the Austrian war he received $300,-000 (equivalent to one-half per cent. on the total war indemnity), with which he purchased his Varzin estate; and after the one which extends from the trontier of I am not a popin'jay."-Chicago Tribune. French war he received Friedrichsruh, valued at $750,000 (or one-fifteenth per cent. on the whole five milliards indemnity.) To the gratitude of his country he is indebted for almost every penny of his present income, which exceeds $100,000.

> One of the most remarkable business men in London is Mr. Alfred W. Ranger, the solicitor to the salvation army. He is totally blind, having lost his sight at the age of fourteen. Until he was one-andtwenty he did nothing in particular. At that age he went to a school at Worcester, and afterwards matriculated at Oxford, when he took his M. A. and D. C. L. degrees. He was then articled to a solicitor in the Old Jewry, was admitted in 1879, took an office and started business with one clerk. He has now a very large business, and is recognised as one of the ablest solicitors in practice.

> If her Majesty lives a few months, she will take second place for length of reign among English sovereigns. Before her tween 55 and 56 years; Edward III. was king for 50 years; while her Majesty's grandfather, George III. was nominal ruler for 59 years. Of these, only the last was over age when he came to throne, he being in his 23rd year. Henry III. was only nine, and Edward III. only 15, when they entered on their respective reigns.

The late Charles Stewart Parnell left two brothers, John Howard Parnell, a man of nearly fifty, who lives in Georgia, and Henry Tudor Parnell, a barrister-at-law, who is a few years younger, and who lives on an estate in Ireland. Each of these brothers is college-bred, and each, like the late Mr. Parnell, is a man of fine physique. Americans are more familiarly acquainted with the elder brother, whose Georgia peach farm is occasionally "written up" in the press. He bears a marked facial resemblance to the deceased home-ruler, and is a strong adherent of his cause, but an unconquerable diffidence prevents him from advocating it with success on the platform.
