A quiet but very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. J. M. Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. J. M. Stone, Germain street, when Miss Eliza Lawton Wickwire, daughter of the late J. L. Wickwire, of Canning, N. S., and Dr. Kirkpatrick, of Halifax, were united in marriage. Owing to the ill health of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Lawton, the ccre-mony took place at her aunt's, Mrs. Stone. The drawing rooms were most tastefully decorated for the occasion with plants and cut flowers. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. NacNiel in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives of the bride and groom. Miss Wickwire was most charm-ingly dressed in a bridal robe of white corded silk with petticoat of silver cloth with trimmings of chifton and orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white roses and illy of the valley tied with wide white ribbons. She was attended by her sister Miss Janie Wickwire, Miss Edith Gregory of Fred-ericton, Miss Olive Thomson and Miss Janie Stone. The bridesmaids dresses were of white silk trimmed with chiffon, and they carried lovely bouquets of ericton, Miss Onive Thomson and Miss Janie Stone. The bridesmaids dresses were of white silk trimmed with chiffon, and they carried lovely bouquets of white and pink roses. They also wore handsome gold bracelets set with pearls, the gitt of the groom. Dr. Kirkpatrick was altended by Mr. W. P. Hunt of the Bank of N. S., Halıfax. After the ceremony, the bridal party and guests sat down to a most elegant supper, the tables being rich in dainties and floral decorations. While the bride was changing her bridal dress for her travelling costume, the young people indulged in dancing. Mrs. Kirkpatrick's going away dress was of light brown cloth, tailor made, with hat to match. They left for P. E. I., that evening, followed by the best wishes of hosts of friends. The bridal gitts were very numerous, and included a piano from the groom, cheque from Mrs. Lawton and a set of solid silver from Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stone. Tuesday, the wedding day of Miss Florence Robertson, second daughter of Mr. James F. Robertson, second daughter of Mr. Janes F. Robertson was a a lovely day, an ideal one for a June wedding, but alas! towards evening "the clouds had come in crowds" and by the hour ap-pointed for the ceremony the weathar looked threatening in the extreme. But inside the pretty little village church at Rothesay, all was bright-ness, bustle and expectation. Loving hands had transformed the interior into a floral bower, gay with blossoms and fragrant with pertune. Over the main entrance from the porch was an arch of white horse chestnut flowers and leaves, while a beautiful wedding bell of white lilacs hung from the beautiful wedding bell of white lilacs hung from the arch under the gallery. The communion rails were wreathed with apple blossoms, and the window sills, chancel, and chancel steps were decorated with ferns, palms, white lilacs, white hydrangeas and tulips. White cloth was laid in front of the chancel rails and down the aisles. Guests kept coming in in brilliant groups, coaches drove up discharged their precious freight and re-turned for other guests. The ushers were kept busily engaged in showing the guests to their seats and long before the hour fixed for the ceremony the body of the church was filled with a brilliant throng. Mr. James Ford, organist of the Stone church, pre-sided at the organ and enlivened the time of wait-ing before the arrival of the wedding party, with ing before the arrival of the wedding party, with music. Punctually at the hour appointed the choir arose and began the grand old wedding hymn "The Voice that Breathed o'er Eden," during the singing of which the bridal party entered the church. First came the ushers, walking two and two, next the bridesmaids and then the bride, leaning on the arm of her father. The grouping of the wedding party during the ceremony was very effective, and well managed, the ushers standing directly behind the pridesmaids in readiness to escort them out.

The service, which was short, was impressively read by the rector, Rev. George E. Lloyd, and in a very few minutes Miss Robertson was transformed into Mrs. Currie, and the bridal party moved into the vestry the choir singing the 238 hymn as a recessional. The music was a very special feature in the service, being provided by the Rothesay choir assisted by the Rothesay musical club, and twelve of the best voices selected from amongst the boys of the Rothesay collegiate school.

Bride and groom, guests and spectators, were detained in the church for some time after the ceremony, until the electric storm had sufficiently abated to allow them to drive to the residence of the bride's parents, where all was brightness, cheer, and com-fort. Lines of flags almost concealed the house, Chinese lanterns hung from the trees and illuminatchnese latterns hing from the trees and mininate ed the grounds, and strains of music floated through the open windows. Shortly after 8 o'clock a special train took a fresh instalment of guests from the city and supper was served at 9 o'clock. The bride's health was proposed by Dr. William Bayard, in a neat and felicitious speech, and responded to by the trees.

the maritime provinces. Of the wedding presents it is almost impossible to speak. They were simply bewildering in their beauty and variety, coming from relatives and friends in England, Ottawa, Toronto, Halifax, Montreal, Quebec, and Windsor, as well as from the city. They included the choicest specimens of Royal Worcester, Crown Derby, Dresden and Faience china, soup tureens, tea and coffee services, in silver, bronze and silver lamps, cut glass salad bowls, etchings; in fact everything that refined taste could suggest, or affection supply. Mrs. Currie will leave a void in the society both of St. John and Rothesay which will not soon be filled, as she was a universal favorite in both places, yet there is consolation in the fact that while St. John has lost one of its fairest daughters, the sister John has lost one of its fairest daughters, the sister city of Halifax has gained a charming young mat-ron, and that the union of two such widely known and influential families will add another strong link to the social chain uniting the two cities by the sea. Tuesday evening a pretty wedding took place at the residence of Rev. J. E. Hopper, Leinster street, when Mr. Emery A. Titus, of St. Martins, and Miss S. Jenny Hopper were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, assisted by Rev. W. J. Stewart. The bride wore a costume of grey cloth, with blue silk trimmings. Miss E.
