The dance given by Sir John and Miss Ross, on the birthday of the latter, was very cheery, bright, and full of "go." There were about ninety guests, of whom a goodly percentage were navy men, and there were a great many pretty women and some pretty girls. Captain Fleet and the officers of II. M. S. Tartar made their debut in Halifax society I hear; and I also hear en passant that the former a great bicylist. One of the preffiest dresses at Bellevue was worn by Miss Smith, of Newport. Bellevue was worn by Miss Smith, of Newport. All gray, it was carried out very thoroughly, and was most becoming to her. Miss Nagle also looked very well in green and pink; and Mrs. M. K. Morrow, in white, was one of the beauties of the evening. Miss Beatrice Ritchie, daughter of Sir William Ritchie, had a very smart little dress in black and wisher the state of the evening of the state of th

Ritchie, had a very smart little dress in black and pink; and Miss Kenny, a very pretty white one. Several ladies were in white and gold; among them, Mrs. Reader and Mrs. Fleet; and of other colors, perhaps pink and heliotrope were in the ascendant. On the whole it was one of the prettiest and best done parties of the summer, and was certainly thoroughly appreciated.

Next week, Sir John Ross, Miss Ross and Major and Mrs. Waldron leave on a six weeks trip to British Columbia. Mr. Van Horne having placed his car on the C. P. R. at the general's disposal. Major Ferguson and Mr. White will spend this period in pursuit of big game in Montana. So that Bellevue house will be deserted for the next month or more.

On Monday evening Major W. H. Odell, who leaves next week for Burmah on the expiration of his year's leave, gave a farewell dinner to some of his friends. I hear there were some fifteen or twenty gu sts, and it was of course a bachelor twenty gu sts, and it was of course a bachelor party.

Tuesday evening was quite taken up by the yacht squadron's farewell dinner to their Commodore, Mr. A. C. Edwards, which took place at the Halitax hotel. The tables were very prettily arranged and decorated, the main table, at which the principal guests were seated, being arranged in the shape of an anchor, and loaded with the various cups belonging to the squadron. The Vice-Commodore presided and Mr. T. W. Stairs did duty as Vice-Chairman. On one of the tables was a very smart design in colors, the motto of which was "Farewell to Our Commodore," and behind the Vice-Chairman hung the squadron ensign and burgee. There were about seventy guests, for whom the Messrs. Hessein had provided a very good dinner, among them being Mr. Kenney, M. P.; Mr. J. F. Stairs, M. P., and Consul-General Frye. The many toasts natural to such an occasion and the farewell speeches took up pretty well all the The many toasts natural to such an occasion and the farewell speeches took up pretty well all the evening. Mr. Edwards replied very happily, and on rising, was cheered to the echo. He has certainly made himself thoroughly popular and done brilliant work for the N. S. Yacht Squadron during the years he has been connected with it, and all its members are sincerely sorry to see him go. There were several songs after the speeches had been disposed of, Mr. McDonald's far and away the best. During the dinner the sixty-sixth band played a very good programme, and played it exceedingly well. It was late when the dinner broke up, as thoroughly successful a function as can be imagined. Mr. Edwards will carry with him to his new home in Chicago the re memberance of this tangible expression of heart-felt good will from his comrades in the squadron, the present standing of which is, in some measure, due to his untiring and patient work in an official capacity. I had almost forgotten to mention one of the prettiest details of the Yacht club dinner, the charming souvenir menus displayed for the occasion. On the centre of the cover was a photograph of Combuded to the cover was a photograph of the modore Edwards, surmounted by the seal of the squadron, while the lower part of the page was decorated with a very pretty little sketch of the squadron pier, and another of a race on the inside course. On the other cover was a view of Halifax, and the list of the officers of the squudron; altogether a menu card work keeping.

The only other thing doing Tuesday (excepting the bazaar which is perennial for this week), was a small dinner at which, among other guests, were Sir John and Miss Ross.

The marriage of Miss Lithgow to Mr. G. C. Hart takes place at St. Andrew's church next week. On September the fifteenth Miss Florrie Baker of Yarmouth will be married at that place to the Hon.Victor Stopford, R. N. A great many of Miss Baker's Halifax friends are going to Yarmouth to her weding, which will, however, not be a very large one. On Monday the Blake, Tartar and Magicienne leave for Quebec, and there is some talk of the last two going to Montreal, in which case the admiral will go with them in H. M. S. Tartar. Mr. Montgomerie, first lieutenant on the Magicienne, received his promotion last week, and has gone to England go on another ship in the position of com-

Ever since the beginning of the summer there has been talk of a large ball to be given by the fleet before their departure in the autumn; and I hear now that the scheme is likely to be realized. Certainly the navy are doing a very good share of the entertaining of the season; we are indebted to them for much of its pleasure.

On Wednesday evening the gunroom officers of H. M. S. Blake gave a small dance at the old commissioners' home in the dockyard. There were not a very great number of guests, but everything went off very well and successfully, reflecting much credit on the young hosts.

The commissioners' house is an excellent place for a small dance, the sitting out room is endless especially on a fine night, if the dancing room is limited. There were a great many pretty frocks and pretty faces to be seen, and the whole affair went off capitally the band of the flagship playing

Very prettily and well.

On Thursday afternoon Commander Bayley, H.

M. S. Blake, and Mr. Sandeman, flag lieutenant; gave a picnic of some 50 people at Walker's on the Preston road, the guests at which drove up from the ferry during the afternoon, dined or supped, as you like, and got home in the evening.
