Miss Jones of St. John, is visiting Mr. and Mrs.

R. M. Stevens.

Miss Susie Thomson, who has been visiting relatives in St. John, returned to Moncton last week. The Moncton Amateur Dramatic club, played "Love's Difficulties" and "Aunt Charlotte's Maid" to a large audience in the opera house last Thursday evening. Both playes were good and a fair sum realized for the commendable object the club has in view, but somehow the acting was scarcely as suc cessful, or as brilliant as the members of this gifted association has proved themselves capable of on former occasions, it seems to lack the spirit generally so prominent a feather in the plays they have presented before. Perhaps this apparent lack of nerve may have clue in some measure to the coldness of the audience who seemed somewhat apathetic and and were singularly chary of applause. The tab-leat in "Love's Difficulties" showing the sleeping guests, has decidedly the gem of the piece, the brilliant light and the pretty costumes of the guests adding greatly to the effect. W. C. Ross accompanied by his friend Mr. R. B. Jack, lef town on Friday last for Sydney, Cape Breton to spend ten days. Cecil Gwynne.

As soon as it was known that the warrant had been issued, and Marshal Foster and Deputy Sheriff Sweeney were about to serve it, and make the arrest, a dense crowd began to gather on Main street, and the two officers were accompanied on their way up town by a guard of some hundreds. It was reported that Mrs. Stevens would be taken to the police station; and prompted by the morbid curiosity, the crowd gathered around the Steven's residence, in rapidly increasing numbers, until street and sidewalks were almost blocked. But their curiosity was not destined to be gratified, as the accused was not removed from her own house, being placed in charge of Marshal Foster and Constable Charles McLaren for the night. Mrs. Stevens showed great nerve and self-possession during the reading of the warrant, and after it was served announced her willingness to do as the law required. Mr. Stevens was deeply affected throughout the proceedings and seemed to feel the unhappy position in which his wife was placed very keenly. The crowd slowly dispersed when it was understood that the prisonor would not be removed. The preliminary examination was opened on Tuesday morning in the police court, before Justice Wortman, Mrs. Stevens arriving shortly before the hour named, in charge of Deputy Sheriff Sweeney. She was accompanied by her husband, and by her friend Miss McDonald. The court room was crowded with eager spectators, the interest taken in the case being phenomenal The evidence presented was substantially the same as that given at the inquest; Mr. W. B. Chandler appearing for the crown, and Mr. W. W. Wells, Q. C., for Mrs. Stevens. The afternoon session of the court was held in the city council chamber, nearly all the afternoon being occupied almost altogether by the examination of Mr. Hallett and Dr. Ross.

Mrs. Stevens preserves a composure and self-possession truly wonderful, considering the grave position in which she is placed and the serious charge against her.

IT WAS A MEMORABLE SCENE. How Archbishop Hughes Controlled the

Angry Multitude. Memorable among all the documents issued during the war was that sent forth by John, Archbishop of New York. "To men whom some call rioters," it began; and the invitation to call next day at the archepiscopal residence, was extended. It was my good fortune to be one of a little group in the front parlor in the archbishop's | yards at Tilsonburg. home while he awaited the summons to The evidence taken recently at Montreal speak. head was bowed, and the sublime spectacle of at least twenty thousand men in submission was presented to the officials of the city, to the newspaper writers of the day, to the friends and subordinates of the great prelate, who must have been more or less than man if his very soul were not absolutely thrilled by the sight. His voice could not be heard beyond the range of a very few lines of men, but it was evident to every one there, that he was counselling peace, moderation, submission to the law, and a quiet dispersal to their individual homes. Whatever they may have thought, that is precisely what they did. They departed peacefully, quietly, decorously, every man to his own home. After this nerve tension rest of Mrs. Stevens on the charge of felon- the archbishop returned to his room, iously killing and slaying Mabel Glennie and sat exhausted in his arm-chair, while scores of the privileged came to extend to him their grateful congratulations, but the chief of his household, seeing that the good Father had tested his strength too far, courteously suggested that rest was needed and we all left, conscious that we had been in the presence of a man, indeed !- Joseph Howard, in Donahoe's Magazine.

Zola and his Babies.

"I could write a book," says M. Zola "called 'The Errors of my Interviewers.' The funniest mistake ever made by any of them was perpetrated by De Amicis, the well-known Italian writer. In an adjoining room when he interviewed me were two puppies, who were playing and barking. De Amicis mistook the yelps of these dogs for chi.dren's cries, and he imparted to the world in his interview that I was the happy tather of two bouncing babies."

Not Many of This Kind.

Two wealthy brothers, well known to London society, not long since had £200,000 left equally octween them by a departed relative. Both being very displeased that large a sum should have been "willed" to them exclusively, invited nine less favoured members of the family to a quiet dinner, and presented each of them with £10,000 worth of government Consols.

Canadian Wines.

There is no subject in which many school ars in our schools are nore deficient than the geography of our own dominion. They can tell you where Damascus is and that it was celebrated for its sword-blades, but if you ask them to describe the situation of the Pelee Island, whom it belongs to, and what it is famous for, there is a hesitation, and a random answer that evidences deplorable ignorance. Just in the southern extremity of the Province of Ontario jutting on lake Erie, and looking across to the American shore, is Pelee Point, and off from it in the lake stands Pelee Island. Here quite unknown to us, but firmly planted for the last twenty-six years, have flourished the vineyards represented in this city by Mr. E. G. Scovil,. now numbering some forty odd, all devoted to the culture of those luscious varieties off grapes the Catawaba, Virginia seedling and the Isabella, producing under ripening influence of the mild clim te of the island a peculiarly excellent wir e which rivals the finest brands of France, Spain, and Germany.

Mr. Scovil controls not or ly the products of Pelee Island, but other flourishing vine-
