AN IMPORTANT FEATURE. With the first issue of 1894 we will begin the publication in these columns of the Political Notes of Mr. G. E. FENETY of Fredericton whose first volume upon the political history of New Brunswick was published some years ago. Mr. FENETY has been urged repeatedly to complete the work that he undertook but until a few months ago could not be induced to undertake a task that involved so much labor and his Political Notes from 1854, where the first volume ended to 1867, the date of contederation will appear in PROGRESS. the writer has read of them already will possess an interest and a value that can hardly be estimated. There are few thinking people who do not desire all the knowledge they can obtain of their own country and especially that province in which they reside. The history of New Brunswick-the political history-before confederation is full of interest to those advanced in years who played their part in the events of those stirring days.

occur to any one who has followed the case that it would have been far better for both parties if it had been settled out of court. No one will question the right of a man to dispose of his money as he pleases but the Foreign Mission Board of the Baptist church would be held in higher estimation by the public to day if it had made a generous settlement with the widow of Mr. BRADSHAW years ago.

PELHAM'S PARAGRAPHS.

O gentlemen, the time of life is short ! To spend that shortness basely were too long, If life did ride upon a dial's point, Still ending at the arrival of an hour.

-Shakespeare in King Henry IV.

Old '93 is gray with age and weak with the pangs of approaching dissolution. His record is about filled up and the time of his departure is at hand. Another day and we will be holding his requiem service and then, when the last words have been said, the "watch-night" bells will peal out a welcome to the new comer and, blithe and strong, young '94 will slip upon the stage and doff his cap with an "at your service good ladies and gentlemen." What shall we make of 94? 'Tis hard to say. But let us resolve to be and do the best that lieth in us and to spend no portion of time "basely." The present only is ours. "the present is our eternity" so let us make the most of it. We know not how soon the bells which ring in the New Year may toll some of us out of Vanity Fair altogether and into The Unknown Land. Let us hope that when we come to enter that land, there may be there some sweet bells to ring us welcome to a New Year and a New Life of perfect satisfaction.

* * The midnight service or "watch-night," held on the last night of the year, is to most people a service of the greatest interest. The time seems peculiarly fitted for Chirp and I hope to convince him not only religious observance. The Methodists, it appears, were the first to discover this and seems to think, but also that he has not and research. He has done so however to originate the "watch-night." Later on a leg to stand upon when he poses as a various other common denominations fell meek and lowly martyr who belongs to the into line and finally "the church" itself down-trodden class, and never gets a hearadopted "watch-night." So that now the ing, or any sympathy. Why Chirp, my sainted John Wesley can look down upon dear boy, you are not as well up in your They will begin next week and from what this sphere and see very many members of own family history as I would like to see various Christian bodies, of varied degree, bending the knee at the solemn midnight hour and reverently observing that "watchnight" which he instituted when here upon earth. The American Eagle is an ambitious bird. It does not appear to be satisfied with spreading over one of the biggest countries that there is out-of-doors but it seems to feel as if it would like to perch up on top of the Washington monument or the Statue of Liberty or some other very high place and spread its pinions away out over the length and breadth of this entire continent. But towards the north here it knocks up against the 49th. parallel of latitude, and the boundary of Canada generally, and cannot reach further, and so it feels constrained and unhappy. The follow-

The number of affidavits which can be supplied by any one person is not known but the colour line should certainly be drawn somewhere.

FACTS FOR CHIRP SPARROW JR.

and How He Came To This Country. So " Chirp Sparrow jr." did not approve of what I said about his friends and relatives in PROGRESS, of the week before last ! He was perched on a window sill and heard it read aloud ? Well now won't all his sisters and his cousins and aunts, not to mention his small relatives, laugh when they hear that the "piece" in question was written by their own Astra, their valiant defender and faithful friend who has never held her hand or spared ink in taking the part of all bird creation, and who has never worn a feather in her hat lest some bird's life would be sacrificed to provide it, or even, failing that, a bad example be set and others encouraged to make the fashion of killing birds in order to get their plumage, popular ?

I must say a few words to my friend that I am not so hard upon his race as he you, and I really think there are a few little c reumstances about your family's immigration on which I can inform you. In the first place your grandmother did not come over to this country of her own accord, she ever get. Most pigeons are just as homeless as you, and even more forlorn because they cannot huddle together in spruce trees, or creep into crannies which would easily shelter you, they are so large; and they have been just sufficiently domesticated to deprive them of the ability to shift for themselves, which all wild things possess, and then they have been thrown out into the cold to live or die, as may be. We have a number of feathered pensioners ourselves Chirp, and more than half of them are relations of yours, and sturdy impudent little fellows they are but you never see a sparrow with all the toes frozen off one loot, as I can assure you you will often see a pigeon in the winter and "heft" him as the country people say, and you will not want to change places with him because he s often a mere rack of bones made plump and comfortable looking by his coat of feathers, and it you could see his poor feet. I am sure you would feel like crying.

I am not very fond of pigeons Chirp, and I do love all the wild creatures especially the dear birds, but I believe in giving even a pigeon his due, and if I hurt your feelings by saying you belonged to a quarrelsome family, I am very sorry, but I think you do all the same, and you will doubtless remember it you really heard my little story read, that I began it by saying we all loved impudence and now I wind up by announcing that in spite of all things we shall love you and cherish you still, impudence and all, at least I shall

The Better Path.

A Hymn for the New Year. Forsaken and cast down art thou. Do men look gladly on and cry : A poor forsaken wretch is he, How holy and how good am I. Be not thou overcome of fear. The time is near to act thy part; The noble soul is still within, With them is the unrighteous heart.

Have sprung and grown around the best; The better path still open lies, Press on and good from evil wrest The better path the upward way, No hindrance offers to thy tread; Thy willing feet are free to clubb To living things beyond the dead.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I.

[PROGRESS is for sale in Charlottetown at S. Grey Bazaar Co., and Carter's Bookstore.]

I EC. 26th .- The long looked forward to Christmas day was ushered in clear and fine. The beautiful snow had fallen in abundance the night before, and the sun shining on it made it sparkle in its freshness and purity, as if its surface was a mass of glittering diamonds. The church bells pealed out their joyful chimes, and the usual Christmas greetings, were heard on every side. The churches all held festival services, and some of them adhering to the time honoured custom of decorating for Christmas, looked pretty indeed in their holiday garb. But before I say anything about the decorations, I must speak of the scene that was presented on Christmas eve, when those anxious to obtain a seat in the Cathedral for midnight mass, wended their way in the clear moonlight, to the doors, only to find that they were still closed, and that the virtue of patience had to be called into requisition until such time as the portals should be thrown open. Shortly after eleven o'clock, the doors were unlocked. Then ensued such a rush for admittance that made one appreciate fully the wisdom, of the admission fee.. For if it had not been charged, the crowd would have been past management. As it was the Cathedral was well filled, the service was very grand. The high altar was a blaze of lights, the midnight mass, which has got to be almost a feature of the past here, was said by the Bishop. The ceremony was most imposing, and when the organ peeled forth in the music that was so well rendered, and appreciated, the accompaniement of an orchestre of six pieces was a fitting addition, to the choir and organ, and helped to make the whole musical part of the service one to be long remembered. The sermon preached by Dr. Millman, was from the text. "Unto you is born in the city of David a Saviour which is Christ the Lord." His listeners were held spellbound as the words came from lips that seemed to be overflowing with truth he loved to speak, and the sermon heard in old St. Dunstans on Christmas eve, was one not soon to be forgotten, and one that showed clearly and forcibly, that "from the abundance of the heart, the lips speaketh," and that the Christmas, was sung on Christmas eve. The church was prettily decorated with palm leaves and native spruce, and looked well. Over the rood screen is the text, "Come let us adore Him," and the palm leaves are conspicuous everywhere. The altar has only natural flowers upon it, and looks exceedingly pretty and effective. The services Christmas day were very impressive, the priest incumbent, Rev. James Simpson, preaching a forcible and earnest sermon from the same text that was chosen for the midnight service in St. Dunstans.

WORKING FOR THE CITY.

It is pleasant to note the interest that a number of the merchants and manufacturers are taking in the city and its industries and the chances there are for inducing other manufacturers to locate here. This is the right spirit and even if there are no immediate results such consultation, work and mutual explanations and the relation of experiences must have a beneficial result. The meetings of the manufacturers held at the Board of Trade rooms have not induced any addition to our industries as yet but they have encouraged thought in new directions, they have attracted the attention of some people in other sections who are looking for suitable manufacturing sites and, what is perhaps of the most value up to the present time they have created an interest among our own people in this matter and obtained much information that cannot fail to be interesting and useful.

The efforts of the chairman of the committee, Mr. W.S. FISHER, and a few of its members, with the secretary of the board are thoroughly praiseworthy. They have spent much time and given a great deal of attention to the question of St. John as a manufacturing centre, and thus managed to not only keep alive the interest in it but to attract the attention of the community.

It now appears that it was not until Dr. DAY made an acknowledgment of his error to his old church at Yarmouth and asked their forgiveness together with a letter of dismission that some members of that church determined to have a council called to consider the matter. This may be right from their point of view but it did not give ing paragraph in reference to Canada was not long since going the rounds of the Yankee press ascribed to the New York Sun :-Its poverty is voluntary. It is the result of Canada's folly and conceit. Riches and power are within Canada's reach. The poverty of Canada would be exchanged for wealth by union with the United States. By this union Canada would obtain an inheritance worth tens of millions of dollars every year. If these Canadians choose to live in poverty, they should bear its ills without a groan and never ask for pity, never beg favors, never try to get hold of the money earned by other people, never wear wry faces when they look across the line.

I do not see the New York Sun but I believe it is not supposed to be a comic paper. I have understood that it not long since thoughtlessly took up the task of bringing about the union of Canada and the United States. It appears now to realize the utter futility of the task and hence the awful "sour grapes." The above paragraph is calculated to make Canadians laugh-a laugh both long, deep and loud. We do not appear to be suffering from poverty to any great extent here in Canada at present. We are not groaning very hard, we never ask for pity, never beg for favors and never try to get hold of Yankee money without giving the very best of value for it. Unfortunately they don't seem to have any money over there at present that we could beg, borrow or steal. So we don't make any wry faces though we may wear a little grin of satisfaction, once in a while over our own prosperous and solid condition compared with the financial wreck in the United States and the poverty-stricken condition of the people there, where grim death by starvation appears to be staring thousands in the face. If the New York Sun values truth it would not be difficult for it to ascertain (what it probably realizes by this time) that there cannot evidence of a christian spirit of any breadth be said to be any "annexation" sentiment or depth. And the fact that the council in Canada at the present time. and your grandfather and quite a number of their friends were specially imported into one of the great American cities because the caterpillars were making such havoc amongst the beautiful trees with which the streets were lined, and for which their parks were famous, and some one suggested that a few pairs of English sparrows be imported to destroy the worms. So the little strangers were sent for and let loose in the parks and they very soon made themselves thoroughly at home and fulfilled the scriptural injunction to be truitful and multiply, in fact they fulfilled it so well that in a short time they succeeded in almost exterminating the feeble little American sparrows, and driving out every other bird in the city. Then they spread to the most remote parts of the state and finally proved so much worse a pest than the caterpillars, that the farmers began to try every means of getting rid of them, and finally they became such a plague that a bounty was set Amusements of the Japanese.
