If ever an entertainment deserved a prize for being a success under difficulties the "Wanderer's At Home" unquestionably did so. The weather, (1 seem to write lately of nothing but weather, but that of this summer has certainly done its best to interrupt every out-door gaiety we have had, and so make even the ubiquitous Sunday school picnic despair!) was the wettest of wet, after a most promising morning, and the only thing to be said in favor of it was that the rain held off long enough to let about half of the club's expected guests arrive.

People all took shelter in the stand, excepting the very finely dressed and therefore faint-hearted, who departed hastily for home, and there made the very best of a bad jon. Some of the events could not come off, but most of the sports were gone on with as if the rain was not descending in torrents. The lacrosse match went on gaily, though the grass was terribly slippery, and was much enjoyed by the spectators, who seemed to grow orly more checrful with increasing dampness. It was out of the ques tion to adjourn to the refreshment tent for tea, so trays were improvished from pieces of board and barrel staves, and delicious ices, tea and cake handed round to everyone. There must have been quantities left over, and it is to be hoped that the hosts enjoyed them as well as the guests, for things had been beautifully done, and it would have been sad to think such good refreshments were wasted.

It was late when the people bundled themselves up in mackintoshes and cloaks and took their departure, after a very pleasant and cheery entertainment. The "Wanderers" are the best of hosts, and it is to hoped, that if next year, they see fit to give another party, the weather will be less merciless.

They have announced sports by electric light for Thursday, and one of the amusing events on the programme is the obstacle race, which is a quite original one. The competitors have all sorts of things to accomplish, from taking off their boots, and finding them, after they have been thoroughly mixed with all the others, and lacing them on again, putting on a long blouse and a cap with strings, drinking a cup of hot tea, (which in the name of humanity one hopes will not be scalding;) to getting up a rope and securing the coveted prize. The band will play as on the last occasion, and the club grounds are sure to be pretty well filed.

Monday was so very hot a day that there was very little doing with the exception of the usual meetings of the garrison tennis court, and one or two small picnics. One of the pleasantest of these took place in the evening, and was given by one of the lucky owners of the steam launches. The night being so fine, it was late when the picnic party re-

Aug. 8 .- The marriage of Mr. Douglas R. Street

of Ottawa, and Miss Christie took place at the home of the bride's parents on Wednesday last, Rev. Mr.

McMillan officiating. Every maiden is supposed to look her best on her wedding day, which was certainly true of this one, but the bridal robes were almost too pret'y for a quiet home wedding-that is if anything can be too festive for such an occasion.

The wedding dress was a slip of white satin, with a beautiful overdress of embroidered chiffon. The bride carried a bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern, and wore the orthodox veil of white tulle. Miss Tillie Barrington, as maid of honor, was sarbed in a white frock of some soft

m.terial with wide bretelles of mauve silk. The bridesmaid's souvenir was a gold chain bracelet with a padlock on which the initials of bride and groom were engraved with the date of the wedding.

Mrs. Corbett's large at home took place on Tuesday afternoon at Boscobel, and during the time it lasted had every sort of weather, from sunshine to pouring rain and back again. Boats at Maple wood wharf took the guests across the Arm to Mr. Corbett's place which is one of the prettiest of the summer colony out there, and people enjoyed themselves very much, though for a short time the rain kept them within goors. Many people, of course, were kept away by the weather, and any very smart dresses or bonnets were out of the ques-Indeed the affair was more like a rather small tea than the large garden party it was meant to have been, but it was very pleasant in spite of the diminished number of guests.

The event of Tuesday evening was the benefit concert at Orphans' Hall for Miss F. A. Grant, who at one time was a very tamiliar figure in society circles here. The hall was crowded, every one being there. General and Mrs. Montgomery had a large party, and all the smortest people and prettiest frocks in the town were to be seen. A very pleasant little programme had been arranged which was slightly departed from by the unfor-tunate illness of two of the performers, Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Morris The non appearance of the latter was perhaps the greatest disappointment, as Mrs. Morris, who is a sister of Mrs. Edwardes, and here from Canada on a visit only, is quite new to a Hali-fax audience and has a wide reputation for her charming singing. Mr. Currie and Mrs. Mellon, who were both down on the programme for songs, kindly filled the vacant places left by Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Morris. The former sang "Thy settinel am I," very excellently, and Mrs. Mellon quite took the audience by storm with her little song for which Miss Slayter played the accompaniment. The little comedicta "A Fair Encounter," came next, and was very well played indeed by Miss Grant, the beneficiare of the evening, and Mrs. W.

Miss Grant has improved very much during her absence from Halifax, and has gone a long way on the road to gool a in . Mrs. Tob'n was charming. There was nothing about her clever impersonation which could have been bettered and she was received by the audience with the applause she deserved. Miss Grant was presented with a very pretty bouquet which as Lady Clara Farintosh, she received most gracefully.

Another great success was the very creditable performance of another tiny comedy, "Twenty min-utes under an umbrel a," by Miss Sara Nicholson, of St. John, and Captain Duflus, R. A. Miss Nicholson's undoubted histrionic ability was a surprise to a great portion of her audience; she did admirably and looked very pretty in a bright red gown and black hat. Her success was scored by her really charming acting which grew upon her audience throughout the little piece. Captain Duffus was also very good, he was perhaps a little too farcical, or is bluff a better word?-but that is only a matter of taste. He certainly had no easy task in making a proposal when encumbered with a large umbrella. It is to be hoped that a Halifax andience will have another chance of seeing Miss Nicholson on the

The 'evening's entertainment finished with two more songs by Mrs. Mellor and Mr. Currie, and the audience left in a very contented trame of mind. I have not yet heard what money was realized, but it ought to be a substantial sum. * * *

Talking of St. John people,"H.M.S. Blake" seems to have made a great sensation in the sister city. Halifax people take their naval visitors more phlegmatically though they are quite as pleased. People do not turn out here to see military and naval displays with any great degree of enthusiasm, probably because one never really values what one has. The "Blake's" crew is a very good looking lot of men and thoroughly deserve the appreciation which they and their ship have had in St. John.

The Lorne Club regatta is a fixture for today, and will doubtless be well attended. Their crew did splendidly at the Banker's regatta and will probably repeat the performance. Speaking of regattas, I hear that Colonel Leach and the officers of the R A. and R. E. are to be largely instrumental in get-ting up one on the N. W. Arm during the early part of September. Besides the afternoon events the affairs will be continued during the evening, racing giving place to illuminated boats with bonfires and colored lanterns along the shores of the Arm, most of the residents having signified their willingness to lluminate.

Dewar and though last, but by no means least, the three pretty little daughters of the house, and Miss Beatrice Whidden.

Many of the ladies' gowns had been worn at Mrs. Harvey's on Friday last, but the majority were fresh and new and wondertully pretty. However, in this connection I have the same scruples about distinguishing which I felt at the other teas, and will not attempt to describe any particular gowns. I will simply say in passing that a better dressed assemblage (of ladies I never saw anywhere, or a more cheery and more thoroughly enjoyable tea. The Christ-church Young Men's Society had a driving party and picnic to Cow Bay on the 1st, and I regret to say that the day was anything but pleasant, being dark and damp with occasional showers, which, however, did not seem to effect the spirits of the jolly members and their genial rector in the least, to judge by the sounds of song and laughter which made the evening merry as they returned at an early hour. This society, by the way, is only one of the many pleasant things which the present rector, Mr. Mellor has developed in the parish since his administration. May it continue to grow and flourish.
