Miss Frankie Tibbitts gave a small party on Wed nesday night last for her friends, Miss Josephine Wood and Miss Margaret Hunt, of Boston. Two large rooms were thrown into one for dancing, the piano which furnished the music being out of the way in a bay window. The programme of fifteen dances was gone through with much spirit. The night was fine and there were cosy nooks on the lawn and verandah, dimly lit with Chinese lanterns and conducive to flirtations, in which to rest between dances or to "sit out" dances as the case

The invited guests were: Misses Wood, Margaret Hunt, Maggie Allen, Maud Beckwith, Tabor, Frank Babbitt, Bessie Babbitt, Robinson, Burnside, Mc-Allister (Milltown), Crookshank, Messrs. Tabor, Stavert, Harry Chestnut, Cowie, J. A. Winslow, A. R. Wetmore, J. S. Campbell, Cannon, R. S. Barker, Arthur Wood (Boston), Edgecombe, Sharpe, Sturdee. (St. John) and L. Fenety.

A brilliant wedding took place today at twelve o'clock at the residence of the bride's tather, corner of Campbell and Regent streets, when Mr. Arthur Sterling Johnston, of Charlottetown, P. E. I., was married to Miss Fanny, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lemont. The ceremony took place in the drawing-room and was performed by the Rev. Dr. Brecken, the bridal couple standing in the bay window which was beautiful decorated with smilax and potted plants. The bride looked charming in a costume of cream satin and watered silk, trimmed lace, with bridal veil and bossoms. The bridesmaid was Thompson, of St. John, the bride's, cousin, who wore a becoming costume of blue crepe de chene. Little Misses Fisher and Flewel ling, the maids of honor, looked sweet in costumes of white. The groom was supported by Mr. Brun Lemont, the bride's brother. After the cermony there was luncheon and a reception, after which the happy couple took the afternoon train for Halifax, where a portion of the honeymoon will be spent. chain. To the bridesmaid he gave a ring, and a gold heart pin set with a diamond to each of of honor. The bride's father gave her a parlor suite, dinning room suite and bedroom suite, her brother James a piano, and her uncle Martin a silver service, and she was the cipient of many other handsome presents. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will reside in Charlottetown, where already a fine residence, the gitt of the groom's father awaits them. Miss Lamont was a popular member of the methodist church and a eading voice in the choir. She will be much missed

Grey, Bazaar Co., and at Carter's Bookstore. SEPT. 4 .- Mr. and Mrs. Hall, of the hotel Acadia, were "at home" to a large number of guests on Wednesday evening. The dance was a fancy dress affair, and somewhat of a novelty for Charlottetown people. The evening was a fine one, and dancing was kept up until a late-or rather early hour. So many of the ladies looked charming in their costumes that it is hard to say who was belle, but Miss MacDonald, in her "dairy maid's" dress, and Miss Peak, as a "fairy queen" were particularly attractive; occasionally a simple evening dress was to be seen, and this somewhat relieved the gayer costumes. Several of the gentlemen wore very effective costumes. Mr. Hali's Mexican dress was particularly good, and Mr. Donald MacDonald's Highland costume very picture sque and becoming. The supper room and tables were prettily timmed and decorated, and presented a charming effect, altogether the whole arrangement could not have been improved upon. A number of the guests from Charlottetown remained at the "Acadia" until the next day, whilst a few who preferred a moonlight drive returned home after the dance.

SEPT. 5 .- An event which has been looked forward to in society circles for some weeks, the marriage of Miss Margaret MacKean to Mr. W. H. Burns of Montreal, took place last Wednesday evening in the Central methodist church, which had been very kindly lent for the occasion, St. John's presbyterian church, of which the bride's family are members, being still in course of reconstruction after

The hour fixed for the ceremony was six o'clock in the evening, and long before the appointed time, the large church was filled almost to suffication, and even the sidewa'k was crowded with eager spectators, so well and tavorably was the bride

The church was exquisitely decorated by the skilful hands of Mrs. George W. Daniel and was a per_ fect bower of beauty. The communion rail was wreathed in white, over which was a garland of ferns, in front of the prayer desk was a bank of potted plants, and cu: flowers, conspicuous amongst which were two noble specimens of the hardy Scotch thistle, placed there out of compliment to the bridegroom who is a native of the land o' kilts and cakes. The pews in which the bridal party sat were also decorated with ferns and thistles.

Fully one-third of the nave of the church was filled with the wedding guests who numbered over a hundred, and whose elegant dresses made the church, as some one fancifully remarked, like a mosaic flower garden.

During the interval of waiting for the bride, Professor | W. H. Watts rendered Berg's "Nuptial March," the march from Meyerbeer's "Il Prophete" and the bridal procession and the march from Wagner's "Lohengrin."

At a few minutes past six the groom, accompanied by his groomsman, Mr. J. E. G. Boulton of Halifax, entered through the vestry door, and shortly after the bridal procession led by the six ushers, came slowly up the main aisle, the bride leaning on the arm of her brother. After the ushers came the maid of honor, Miss Adelaide Mace Kean, sister of the bride, who walked alone, followed by the two little bridesmaids, Misses Dorothy Williams, daughter of Mr. Thomas Williams, treasurer of the I. C. R., and Miss Helen Harris, daughter of Mr. C. P. Harris.

The maid of honor wore a beautiful costume of buttercup crepon, trimmed with cut jet, and a Gainsborough hat of black chip trimmed with black ostrich tips and jet, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. The little bridesmaids wore dresses of pink crepon, with wide Kate Greenaway hats of pink chiffon, and carried baskets of sweet peas. Last of all came the bride, leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. John MacKean, of Watertown, Maine, and wearing a most lovely bridal costume of ivory faille Francais, made with square court train, and trim- in Moncton engaged as stenographer on the fam

As the couple were pronounced man and wife, the choir burst forth into the triumphant melody of 'How welcome was the call," and after the benediction the "Wedding March" pealed out under the skilful fingers of the organist, and the bridal party moved down the aisle to its glorious strains.

The ushers were Mr. John MacKean, of St. John, cousin of the bride, Judge Wells, Mr. Sargent, of Newcastle, Mr. George Babbitt, Mr. J. A. Harris and Mr. Geo. Harris. After the ceremony the guests returned to Ravenswood, the residence of Mrs. McKean, where Mr. and Mrs. Burns neld their first reception. After the beautiful array of presents had been duly admired, and a dainty | John on Saturday. supper disposed of, the entire party accompanied the oride and groom to the station to bid Godspeed on the first stage of their journey through life.

Mrs. Burns' going away dress was of bouclé cloth of a cheviot design, with vest and cuffs of electric blue bordered with jet. Hat of black chip trimmed with electric blue ribbon and forget me nots.

The bride followed the pretty custom of throwing ner bouquet into the crowd of guests, as the train moved out, so that the happy lad or lass who caught it might be sure of being the next to wed. The train moved out of the station amidst showers f rice, and enthusiastic cheers.

Mr. Burns' present to his bride was a gold watch and chain, and to the bridesmaids rings set with iamond and turquoise.

It would be impossible to attempt a description of the presents, as more columns of space would be equired for a mere list than Progress could well spare, but they are very beautiful, and chosen with excellent taste. Conspicuous amongst them was a very handsome set of silver truit knives and torks, from the staff of the bank of Nova Scotia at Monreal, of which institution Mr. Burns is accountant. The dresses worn were very handsome; and the partial description I obtained scarcely does them
