The Christian church, North street, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon of last week, the principals being Mr. W. R. McEwan, of Miiton, and Miss Evelyn Wallace, daughter of Mr. James Wallace, Lockman street. The ceremony was performed by W. F. Shaw, assisted by Rev. D. G. Macdonald. The church was prettily decorated with flowers. The bride entered the church accompanied by her father, by whom she was given away. She wore a handsome wedding gown of cream cashmere, with trimmings of lace and moire silk, tulle veil, and carried a larg. bouquet. Miss Edith Macdonald, as bridesmaid, was attired in a gown of cream challie, trimmed with cream silk crepe and lace. She also wore a white felt hat trimmed with ostrich feathers. Miss Annie Dumaresq and Miss Winnie Stevens acted as maids of honor, and wore pretty dresses of pink crepon with pink ribbons and lace as trimmings. They each carried a basket of flowers with which they strewed the path of the bride as she left the church. The groom was attended by Mr. G. D. Weaver, of

After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's father, after which Mr. and Mrs. McEwan started for their future home in Milton.

The bride received many handsome presents, that from the groom being a handsome parlor organ. To the bridesmaids he gave gold pins. Among the other presents received was a silver service from the Christian church members, among whom Miss Wallace had long been an active worker.

FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.] Nov. 21 - The second party given by Mrs. Graham on Thursday night was a greater success than that of Tuesday. Mrs. Graham, assisted by the Misses Graham and Miss McKay, received their guests in the drawing room, which was a perfect bower of flowers. The floors of the large dining room and parlor were beautifully polished for dancing and the music, violin and piano, was of the best. The four brides were of course the attraction and they rically deserved the attention paid to them-Mrs. McColl, Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. DeVeher, wore their wedding dresses, handsome white satins. Mrs. Sutherland, who had been married in her ravelling dress, looked equally as charming in a pretty gown of pale green and pink. All the other guests seemed to vie with one another as to who should look the best and consequently the aresses were elegant. Miss McKay, of North Sydney, who is visiting Mrs. Graham, wore a sweet gown of pink chiffon with roses and was her usual attractive self. Among the other dresses were: -Mrs. Caultey, pale blue and white striped gauze with trimmings of ostrich feather-;

Mrs. Harley, cream silk; Mrs. S. Fraser, fawn and rose silk;

Mrs. H. Townsend, pink satin;

Mrs. Underwood, cream silk. Mrs. K ith, black lace;

Miss N. Carmichael, pale green silk gauze and carnations:

Miss Walker, mauve cropon with purple velvet; Miss McGregor, cream chiffon, crimson velvet; Miss McColl, black and yellow slik;

Miss Underwood, pink crepon; Miss T. McDonald, cream chailie, green ribbons. Miss S. McGregor, mauve cash here and velvet with rich lace; Miss Garvie, cream silk, crim on roses:

Miss Eastwood, cream and pale green; Miss Mitchell, pink muslin; Miss Ada Fraser, yellow crepon and silk;

Miss M. McColl, white muslin, yellow chrysan-Miss Eva Grant cream si'k;

Miss Laura McNeil, cream crepon. The gentlemen present were: Messrs. deVeber. McColl, Sutherland, Dr. Townsend, H. Townsend Jemnson, Lawson, Howe, T. McNeil, G. S. Jackson, Munro, Smith, Matherson, H. Graham, M. Graham, Musgrave, Dr. Wright, A. D. Grant, J. W. McKay and Nissin, Halifax. It was a difficult task to decide who was belle but the general opinion seemed to be that the honors among the brides fell to Mrs. McCoil and among the other guests to Miss Ada Fraser. Dancing was kept up without intermission until midnight when all repaired to the supper Or direct from the proprietor room where they found everything perfect. The cen re table was a gem of art and fairly groaned under the weight of the good things provided while round the room were small tables for the guests

DR. LAVIOLETTE'S

J. K. Foran, Editor of the True Witness, Montreal, says: During all the mouth of November, 1893, I have been suffering from a severe cold, a semi-attack of La Grippe (if I might so call it). It had worn me down very much, and as my work had been almost doubled during these past four weeks, I felt that before long I would suddenly collapse altogether. I have been so accustomed, in my capacity of editor, to read Dr. Laviolette's advertise. ments, that I paid little attention to them. You know the old saving about familiarity. I looked upon them with the eyes of ar editor glad to have s many as posible of these notices, but I never thought of them as announcing a remedy that might require. However, so severe were my attacks of coughing that I determined to try Dr. Laviolette's Syrup of Turpentine I bought a twenty five cent bottle, used it, bought a second one, and before I had taken the half of the latter I was completely and entirely well; all traces of the cold had disappeared and the accompanying weaknessand pains were gone. the happy couple who certainly appeared to have residence on Havelock street was all aglow with indications of pleasure for the youth and beauty, spacious drawing rooms devoted to dancing. The was furnished by the Moncton orchestra. Up stairs rooms were arranged for cards and other games for those who wished to retire for a time from the merry dance which at times was just a little limited for space but thoroughly enjoyed to the last number, when the jolly host tripped the fantastics as lightly as if his silver wedding were a quarter of a centray in the future. The charming hostess displayed narvellous culinary skill which was greatly appreciated at twelve o'clock, when a delicious supper was served. She wore an elegant toilette of black satin with trimmings of jet that was exceedingly becoming, and was assisted in the many duties of the evening by Miss Hillson, who wore a very pretty gown of pale green silk with ribbons of same shade and trimmings of silver cord. The souvenirs of the occasion were very pretty; conspicuous among the number was a handsome silver service and salver, the gift of "Bally Nooly club" with the following names upon the card: J. M.
