MONCTON.

PROGRESS is for sale in Moncton at the Moncton Bookstore, at the Central Bookstore and by J. E.

MAY 9 .- Moncton people cannot complain of having no place to spend an evening, for we certainly had our share of entertainments this month.

On Friday evening the Fisk Jubilee Singers were in the opera house. This splendid concert was not as well patronized as usual, coming as it did immediately after two amateur entertainments; but those who heard it were delighted, and said they were even better than when they last visited

On Saturday evening "A Social session" was on the boards, and it was greeted with a crowded recital on Monday evening. The house was not as well filled as it might have been. Still it was a fair audience, and very appreciative. Miss Knox has visited Moncton before, and her second appearance but confirmed the favorable impressions already Mrs. Upham went to Truro last Thursday to

LADIES COLLEGE NOTES.

SACKVILLE, May 8 .- The dovecote was thrown into quite a flatter on Saturday afternoon by a visit from the McGill glee and banjo clubs. The young men were astonished at the size of the building and the number of students and expressed a good deal of admiration at the thorough equipment in the musical and art departments. Tiey said it was quite equal to any in Montreal. They were entertained for some time by listening to Miss Ayer's orchestra that was having its annual weekly drilling. The violin pupils have been putting in some very hard work lately and showed up well. So much so that the visitors said it was as goo i music as they had ever heard any where and they began to tremble for their own laurels. Their concert in the evening was a great success, with an appreciative and orderly audience. The McGill students are a gentlemanly, fine looking set of young men and were received with applause and given frequent encores. Their music was of a very taking character and well given but did not in any way excell that of our own students, apart from the fact that they possess more and greater variety of instruments. I hope next year the Mt, Allison boys' will start a banjo club for themselves, it is such a jolly, good fellowship sort of instrument. I do not advise their trying the guitar, it is almost as dangerous for students as the "spring variety" as it leads inevitably to a serenade and moonlight music beneath my lady's casement, and is not popular with the powers that be. On Sunday the "McGills" received some little attention from the towns people and were invited to sing with the choir of the Methodist church. One of their number who is studying for the English church, assisted with the services at St. Pauls. They departed on Monday for Truro, much pleased with their reception in Sackville and quite convinced that more things flourish in New Brunswick than spruce trees and bears. On Friday a baker's dozen of the young ladies were at a very enjoyable five o'clock tea at Mrs. Bedford Dixons. It was strictly a dove party and very informal. The girls took off their wraps, thereby displaying some very pretty silk blouses, and gathered in a cosy way about several little tables on which was served a dainty meal such as Mrs. Dixon knows so well how to give. The time passed so quickly that they were quite surprised when a teacher arrived for them and they regretted that a five o'clock could not begin some hours earlier.

This is such a nice way of entertaining the students, it is a pity that more people do not adopt it. It would do away with late hours, interrupted studies and expensive evening dress and yet the young people could have the good time they so dearly love. Of course the "other side" ought to be invited too if this form of party became general for even if young men dont care for tea, they do care for meeting the young ladies. Think of it ye hostesses. that were grievously perplexed last winter to get a clear evening to have an Academy party and issue your next invitations from five to seven.

I wish to correct a mistake made last week in regard to the Art department. Mrs. Miller's name was inadvertently substituted for that of Miss Alcorn. Miss Alcorn has been for some years the chief assistant teacher, Mrs. Miller takes lessons

Miss Bowal, one of the music pupils, was so unfortunate as to crush her fingers in a falling window. At first it was feared her hand was seriously hurt but it has been skillfully treated by Dr. Calkin and there will be no permanent injury. It was a very unhappy accident, for Miss Bowal was taking lessons on piano, organ and violin and as she is an excellent performer her music will be much missed at the closing exercises.

It is on occasions of this kind that Miss Fulerton, the matron, comes to the front. She reins supreme in the hospital, and with her long years of experience, she is to the girls, as mother, nurse and physician all in one, aided by her kind heart and cheerful manner. She has been at the college so long, they would hardly know how to get along without her, and old students, coming back for a visit, always look out for her familiar face and kindly greeting. Miss Masters, who has charge of the commissariat, always remembers the invalids with tempting dishes, and the others are also indebted to her skill for many a toothsome dainty. The tables are always abundantly supplied with good food three times a day, and the nine o'clock bread and butter before retiring, is a regular institution. There is no need whatever to hold buttercups under the fair chins of the students, the fact that the yearly butter bill comes to a thousand dollars, estifies that they have it good, and plenty of it. Of course there are always some who find fault with the food, but they must be those who live on bad terms with their digestion, and it has been truly said that "even in heaven, some people would Miss Agnes Knox (Mrs. Charlton Black) gave a grumbie that their cloud was damp, and their halo

WOODSTOCK.

After awhile its legs begin to grow out, Master Norman Stewart spent Friday and Saturthe hind legs coming first, The tail gets to be shorter and shorter, and when the tadpole is a complete trog it has no tail at all, but swims by kicking. When halt frog and half tadpole it still has a good deal of tail, and in addition big hind legs and mere sprouts of fore legs, so that it is really a very funny looking ob-

The tadpole eats water plants, but when it becomes a trog it teeds on animal lite, and has even been known to nibble at the toes of small boys who wade in pools where it abounds, Tadpoles eat the green moss that we see so often on logs in a stagnant pool, and they have a good appetite, for soft, decay-great amount of matter that would make it unhealthful to live near a stagnant pool, they are really useful creatures. In captivity they will generally eat meat as well as bran, and as a special relish, they will sometimes eat one another's tails. The common frog gets his final shape in the first season, but the bullfrog goes under the mud for the winter while still a tadpole, and it takes at least another summer and sometimes more before it has full right to be called a frog. He is some four years from the egg when in full growth, and does not become a bullfrog until two years more.

Herr Liebnecht, the leaderof the socialist party in Germany, has a son who is now performing obligatory military service in the army. On the occasion of the emperor's last birthday a theatrical entertainment was organized by the officers and men of the regiment in which young Liebnecht is serving, and he was cast for the part of Frederick the Great. He played his part as king with much success and cleverness that the offcers were enthusiastic in their praises of the royal bearing of the young socialist.

Ferida; the little daughter of Emin Pasha, the famous German explorer, who time I have been unable to straighten myself | lost his life in Africa, was baptized a few up. I was in bed for three weeks; during that | days ago in Berlin, at the home of her aunt, time I had leeches applied and derived no bene- Fraulein Melaine Tchnitzer. She is to be known, however, as Ferida Emin, and will not bear her father's name, owing to the fact that no record of the marriage of her father and mother could be found. They were married it may be remembered, in Africa. The child will enter school in Berlin this month.

Love Ever Constant and True.

Pastor (to peasant girl) - Why do you weep so much Peasant girl-Because my lover has gone to the army for three years. Pastor-But those will soon be over:

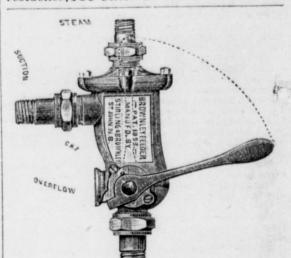

then he will return. Peasant girl-Yes: but in the meantime another man will marry me.

Pianoforte Teaching.

The following letter is self-explanatory. Miss Armstrong is one of my most talented pupils. She is an excellent pianiste, and fully understands the most modern methods of Pianoforte playing and teaching. Her touch is purely legate and of the best quality, and I know her to be a most faithful teacher."

Respectfully. Respectfully, S. B. MILLS,

Steinway Hall, New York, Oct. 15th, 1891. Miss Armstrong receives pupils at her residence, 141 Union Street.
