

CERTAIN CURE FOR CATARRH FOUND AT LAST!!

Fort years I have been suffering horribly from a severe attack of catarrh, and after having tried many remedies without success, one of my friends recommended to my notice Dr. Lavolette's Anti-Catarrhal Balm. To-day, thanks to this excellent remedy, which I used in conjunction with Dr. Lavolette's Syrup of Turpentine, I can say that I am perfectly cured. I recommend it to all those who are troubled with catarrh as the best and most efficacious preparation that exists, and I have to thank you, doctor, for the great good and perfect cure your remedies have effected in my case.

CHATHAM.

[Progress is for sale in Chatham by Edward Johnson.]

Dec. 12.—The much talked of rainbow tea came off on Tuesday evening in Masonic hall, and was one of the most charming affairs ever held in Chatham. The ladies of St. Mary's congregation are to be congratulated on the brilliant success of their novel entertainment. Part of the hall was divided off, by an immense rainbow and flags, for the tea tables, of which there were five—rainbow table, blue pink, yellow and red. The young lady waiters looked charming in caps and aprons of the prevailing color of their tables over dark dresses. The waitresses for the rainbow table were Mrs. Boyson, Miss Ullcock, Miss Goggin, Miss Desbrisay, Miss Susie Gillespie; red table—Mrs. S. Benson, Miss Hocken, Miss Constance Winslow, Mrs. H. Pallen; pink table—Mrs. Burt, Miss Blair, Miss Lena Goggin, Miss Jessie Ullcock; blue table—Miss Gillespie, Miss Rice, Miss Kethro, Miss Staples; yellow table—Miss Fannie Gillespie, Miss M. Anderson, Miss Reid, Miss S. Benson. It was difficult to decide which was the prettiest table, but the prevailing opinion seemed to be in favor of the pink table for daintiness, but perhaps the red table was the most brilliant. I sincerely hope it will not be a very great while before these enterprising ladies afford us an opportunity of again patronizing their charming entertainments.

ANAGANCE.

Dec. 10.—The "Ship Social" which was held in the "Public hall" here on Wednesday evening of last week for the purpose of raising funds to paint the hall, was a grand success in every way. The stage decorations were gotten up very nicely indeed, presenting all appearance of being a full rigged ship in mid-ocean. The name of the ship was "After Money." George Stockton was the pilot captain, C. Smith, the brave and noble pilot at the helm, Miss C. Smith, the captain's wife. Miss Elsie Steens, and Master Aubrey Kinnear, the captain's children, while Mrs. Willis Dunfield, known as "Jack," Miss Ida Smith, "Pete" by name, and Miss Julia McNaughton, under the name of "Ned" composed the "Tars," while Mrs. George Davidson, ably assisted by the blue sailor suits and Tam O'Shanter and ably filled their respective places. "Pete" was on the lookout, while "Jack" and "Ned" climbed the rope ladder, scraped the masts and attended the sails, the pilot at the wheel fully showed his capability of holding the position as we encountered a heavy storm and got in a collision with the "Big High Tiger." Capt. Stockton felt his position, and in a stern-like way looked after the "Tars" to see they were attending to their work and by the frightened look on the "Tars" bright and happy faces clearly showed his authoritative sway. The voyage was across the broad Atlantic to Dublin, and while "Pete" weighed anchor the ship started to the tune of "Waves of Ocean" and when under full headway "Pete" sang a song entitled "The Tar's Farewell" and to help while away the time "Ned" gave a recitation entitled the "Leap for Life" while the captain's handsome little son climbed shroud and spar and there upon the main deck rose and stood and leaped far down in his father's arms; the "Pilot" then becoming hungry asked the Captain to bear a hand at the wheel while he went below for a smoke, also telling him to see that his "lookout" kept his weather eyes open, then followed a few sea terms between captain and "lookout" and "Jack" then favored the passengers with "Nancy Lee" after which "Pete" exclaimed "sail ho! a sail! the captain asked, "where away?" and when "Pete" answered "Two points to the starboard bow," the pilot rushed on deck to his wheel, while the captain did some hustling, and "Jack" brought a speaking trumpet which enabled the Captain to carry on a conversation with Capt. Jim Baxter on the Big High Flyer hailing from Stockton's Cove with Brown Bros' cheese and Fred Davidson's salmon for their cargo, and which was bound for Calamity's Inlet. Roars of laughter and loud applause. Then we came in close contact with the vessel and a grating took place, sailors grabbing life preservers and getting ready for further disturbances, but it was such a slight collision that peace reigned again within the ship and after a few sea phrases and some jocular remarks between pilot and captain (one remark from the pilot was that these "ere land lubbers had no business on the high seas, which brought forth peals of laughter) the crew rendered the song entitled "The Tempest," which was considered very appropriate while the storm was raging around and about us but the Capt. here asked the audience (passengers) not to have any sea-sickness on board, then after the storm had subsided, the stars above studding the sky, and the turbulent billows had become smooth as glass, and in the distance land could be seen, the "Tars" rendered the dear old song "If the waters could speak as they flow" and then such grand time had been made that we were now entering "Dublin Bay" and the "Crew" sang that old and familiar song, and while we were anchoring and getting prepared to disembark "Jack" rendered the solo "Anchored" and then the life boat was launched and the crew went ashore to dine with their friends and "Fall for the Shore" was sung while they left the abandoned ship for fair Dublin land to partake of the delicacies that had been prepared for the occasion and which were distributed to all present by a committee of ladies. After the inner man was well satisfied, Miss Ida Smith rendered a solo, Mr. Smith gave a reading and then the performance.

THINGS OF VALUE.

Jimmy and Jane, sweetheart and swain, Never had drunk a glass of champagne.

The reason is plain, both came from Maine, Where all the folks are obliged to drink rain.

There never was, and never will be, a universal remedy, for all ills to which man is heir—this is the very nature of many curatives being such that were the germs of other and differently situated organs, which nature's own restoratives, it would relieve one ill, in turn would aggravate the other. We have, however, in Quinine Wine, when obtainable in a sound undiluted state, a remedy for many and grievous ills. By its gradual and judicious use, the frailties of the system are gradually and steadily brought under control, and the system, thereby making activity a necessary result, strengthening the frame, and giving life to the digestive organs, which naturally increased substance—result improved appetite. Northrop & Lyman of Toronto, have given to the public their superior Quinine Wine at the usual rate, and, gaged by the opinions of scientists, this wine approaches nearest perfection of any in the market. All druggists sell it.

He was one of the live-saving corps Who guarded at all times the shores. Due night at a quiet hour He fell from a yawl And never was seen any more.

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, a day to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooling, and green fruit, is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

"Twas half past nine. "Oh, Jack," she cried, "I thought you 'ner come!" And then her blushing face she hid In his prize chrysanthemum.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, of Yarmouth, N. Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything I could hear or think of, I purchased your 'Vital Food.' I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money."

Never yet Share of truth was vainly set In the world's wide below; After hands shall sow the seed, After hands from hill and mead Reap the harvest yellow.

The Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, etc., act as so many waste gates for the escape of effete matter and gases from the body. The use of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery helps them to discharge their duty. Mr. W. H. Lester, B. C. Customs, Toronto, writes: "I have personally tested the healthful properties of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and can testify as to its great value."

If there is anything that keeps the mind Open to angel visits and repels The vain spirit of ill, this human love! God has made nothing worthy of contempt.

Unequaled.—Mr. Thos. Brunt, of Tyndings, Ont., writes: "I have to thank you for recommending Dr. THOMAS' ELECTRIC OIL for bleeding piles. I was troubled with
