Oct. 17.—Lovers of music had a great treat in the concert given in the city hall on Thursday evening last under the auspices of the Women's Aid Association of St. Peter's church, Kingsclear, which was especially interesting from the fact that little Olivia Pearl Murray, the five-year old daughter of Mr. Ranney Murray, of Kingsclear, was heard for the first time in public. The little tot is undoubtedly a musical prodigy, her musical genius having been discovered about a year ago by Mr. J. Fraser Gregory, who has since taught her to play the violin.

She also gave two selections with orchestra accompaniment and the admiration of the audience was unbounded. Miss Emily Macdonald also made her debut as a singer. Miss Macdonald has a sweet voice and was well received. Mrs. John Black, who is always a favorite, fairly outdid all former efforts and completely charmed her audience. The quartette, Messrs. Massie, Tibbitts, Cooper and McGarrath, next had a selection, and it is safe to say they never sang better, all appearing to be in unusually good voice. Mr. W. H.
