THE MODERN ACHILLES.

From Germany we hear of an invention of one, Hensich Dowe, a tailor, of a bullet-proof coat, well calculated to arouse more interest than the biggest iron-clad that modern skill could float.

In the abstract this new acquisition to wartare is really more interesting than at first notice. For instance, in its application to man-of-war vessels it means another revolution in naval equipment. The fact that this new armor weighs but a small fraction of what would be its equivalent in steel for protection, means more seaworthy ships, both in buoyancy and speed : that the cost is but a small traction, means

ST. STEPHEN AND CALAIS.

[PROGRESS is for sale in St. Stephen by Master Ralph Trainor, and at the book store of G.S. Wall. In Calais at O. P. Treat's. MAY 30 .- The days of tennis have again returned and on the Queen's birthday the first game was en. joyed by the Wildwood tennis club, on Mr. W. F. Todds tennis lawn. Mrs. T.J. Smith on Monday evening entertained most pleasantly a number of triends who were invited to meet Mr. Carleton Lerick, music and tennis were the chief amusements.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Nellie Smith to Mr. Charles Beard, of Boston, has been one of the happy events of the week, and is most pleasantly discussed among their numerous friends. Miss Smith is now in Brooklin , Mass., visiting Mr. Beard's parents.

Miss Anna Eaton entertained on Friday evening a party of young friends, dancing and a variety of lively games made a most charming evening. Refreshments were served at midnight.

Mrs. Howard McAllister gave a most pleasant tea party last evening at her pretty home on Elm street.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lord, gave a most desightful whist party at their residence on Wednesday evening, for the entertainment of their friends Mr. and Mrs. S. Webb, Rockland, Maine.

The first meeting of the recreation club for this season was held at the residence of Mrs. James L. Thompson last evening. There were a large number of ladies present, and a most jolly and happy evening was spent. Ices and cakes were served at eleven o'clock.

A very delightful reception was given by Mrs. W. T. Black, at her residence on Thursday evening to meet her aunt Mrs. Howard, of Charleston, New Hampshire. Those who were guesst were, Mrs. George King, Mrs. Maria Harris, Mrs. Joseph Rockwood, Mrs. Charles King, Mrs. Ellen Cony, Mrs. Henry Copeland, Mrs. D. E. Seymour, Mrs. Henry Woods, Mrs. S. G. Davis Mrs. A. V. Dexter, Mrs. Elwell Howell, Mrs. W. H. Nichols, Mrs. George Lord, Miss Mary Lamb, Miss Lowe, Miss Annie Holmes and Miss Knight.

Mrs. Martha Downes gave a pleasant little whist party on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Charles Neill gave invitatious on Monday to an "at home" this afternoon, it being Decoration Day, and as her residence is opposite the Memorial park, her lady friends can enjoy both the memorial with its pleasant accompanients, and the memorial exercises at the park. Mrs. Neill is a charming hostess, and her reception to-day was most enjoy.

The Queen's birthday passed most pleasantly here, although there was no celebration beyond the sports at the park, and Trinity church supper, which was so pretty and so novel, as well as delicious, I must describe it. There were four supper tables. The first, on the right, as one entered the door, was in charge of Mrs. Henry Graham and Mrs. Waterbury, is was decorated most heautiful, everything in violet and silver, all the flowers, dishes and doilies, were in violet, and the ladies wore violet caps and bouquets. Opposite was a yellow table, where Mrs. Hazen Grimmer and Mrs. Fred W. Grimmer, were found, this table was generally admired and was most prettily arrayed. Near the yellow table was the pale green and white table, where Miss Vanstone and Miss Kate Bradnee wai'ed on their guests in a most graceful style, everything on this table looked so cool and inviting, and was much admired, Across the room was a pink table at which presided Mrs. T. J. Smith and Mrs. George E. Sands, this table as very showy and most lovely to look at. All the tables were filled with the most dainty dishes, for which the ladies of Trinity are famed. In the centre of the school room, was an ide cream stall made of flags, where Mrs. W. F. Todd and Mrs. N. Sederquest, sold a variety of sherberts an creams. At the top of the room Mrs. John E. Algar and Mrs. R. K. Ross, sold fancy articles of which there were a large variety. There was als a refreshment table loaded with good things, and ehind it stood Mrs. John Ryder, who most pleasantly waited upon her numerous patrons. t was a most charming affair, and was greatly enbyed by every one who had the good fortune to attend. The amount of money realized was a hundred and thirty dollars. Mrs. Alfred Lindon, gave a very pleasant party yesterday alternoon and evening for the entertain-ment of her daughters, Daisy and Winnefred and their young friends Calais is alive with showy turnouts, bicycles and great economy of a nation's money.

We read of men defending themselves with shields of toughened leather, then with shields and armour of metal to be afterwards entirely discarded as only an encumbrance and now we have armour with all its old time pestage. One wonders when this alternating advantage, this race between positive and negative force is going to end or will they like dual components of the rest of nature remain practically equal.

The old Scotch rule of "main strength and stupidity" in modern armaments has now been rendered as visible as ever when from the standing of steel armoured vessels at the civil war naval engineers have been heaping great masses of metal on their vessels until even with a huge load of coal and engines and boilers underneath they remained top heavy,

The secret of Herr Dowe's covering is not made public but it evidently embodies a little principle persistently overlooked for so long. Simply a yielding, springy resistance with tough covering and lining. Who would not feel safer behind a breast work of cotton bales than of steel when being fired at with a dynamite gun? Those acquainted with the action of high explosives on hard unyielding substances would not be long in deciding.

The receipt of several letters from subscribers asking for an opinion upon the Bellinger treatment for those addicted to the use of liquor and morphine, shows what an interest has been awakened in this really wonderful remedy. It is no wonder that people are skeptical, no wonder that they write for information. Before the editor of PROGRESS investigated the treatment, saw it administered, talked with both morphine and liquor patients for hours, he was, perhaps, as skeptical as any of those who now ask for information. But when men who a few weeks ago were] physical and mental wrecks are now returning to the enjoyment of a tranquil mind and vigorous health, freed from the thrall of temptation with no appetite for liquor or drugs, there must be something in the science that can bring about such a result. We are glad to answer the questions of anyone, to give any intormation that may result in renewed life to any man or woman and, perchance bring happiness to their homes.

It is not often that so pleasing an incident is recorded by our correspondents as that which finds its way this week into the letter from Weymouth. This thriving town can boast of a lady who celebrated the hundredth anniversary of her birth a few days ago, dispensed hospitality to her many deaths of his wife to whom he was most tenderly attached, and of his son-in-law the late James E. Rvan, were shocks that hastened his decline. Yet his interest in affairs and in literary compostion did not abate. So passes "one of the best and most widely known of the Scottish lyric poets of this century." The following brief account of him is contained in The Brooklyn Times, of Monday, May 14th

"Mr. Latto was born at Kingsbarns, in the East Neuk of Fife, Scotland in 1818, being the eldest son of Alexander Latto. the village schoolmaster, whose memory is lovingly embalmed in the "The School Examination." He was graduated at St. Andrew's University, and after graduation he removed to Edinburgh and entered a law office, intending in time to practice before the Scotch courts. But literature had more attraction for him than law, and, as several of his poems in local publications attracted wide attention, his future prospects as a lawyer were thereby impaired. He became one of the group of literateurs who contributed to Blackwood's Magazine in its balmy days and helped to make it famous. Christopher North (Prof. Wilson) was one of his warmest friends, and the late Hew Ainslie, of Louisville, the author of "The Ingleside," The Ettrick Shepherd, Lord Macaulay, Lord Jeffrey, Sidney Smith, the late Lord Neaves, Henry Glassford Bell and Sheriff Alison, author of the ponderous "History of Europe" were among his warmest admirers and most congenial associates.

'For a time Mr. Latto acted as private secretary to Prof. Aytown, author of "Lays of the Scottish Cavaliers;" and in literary men in Scotland. In 1847 he published his first volume of poems, "The Minister's Kallyard," and it was well received by the press and reviews of Great Britain ; while some of its pieces, notably, "The Kiss Ahint the Door," and "When We Were at the Schule" have long been given a place among the favorite poems of Scotland.

"Mr. Latto came to this country (the Inited States) in 1857, and for many years was engaged in literary and journalistic work. He was one of the tounders and the first editor of the Scottish American Journal, and afterwards held editorial position on The Times, and other Brooklyn papers. In 1892 he published in Scotland a volume containing a number of his most recent poems on Scottish and American subjects, and several translations from the Danish. He was especially fond of verse poetry, and spent many hours in its study and translation. His latest literary work was the editing of the poems of his old friend Hew Ainslie, of Louisville, which he prefaced with a well-written and interesting memoir.

"Mr. Latto's declining years were spent in happy retirement; and, surrounded by his books and family, he often used to say

Brown-Adams .- There were no wedding bells Tuesday evening but there was a very pleasant wedding at No. 27 Ruggle St., Westborough, Mass., the principals being Adams Franklin Brown, of Westborough, Mass., to Miss Mahalah Annie Adams, of Houlton, Me., The wedding ceremony took place at eight o'clock, Rev. Dr. W. H. Aldin officiating. The party was not large, comprising only near relations and friends. The bride entered leaning on the arm of John P. Brown, the groom's brother, followed by her sister Lettie A. Adams, and was met by the groom attended by his brother, Ulric Brown. A weeding feast followed the ceremony together with a session of social com-mingling. The bride was handsomely attired in cream satin and lace. There were numerous and and some gifts from friends, and many good wishes were extended to the newly wedded for a happy, and prosperous future. Mr. and Mrs. Brown were married at the home in which they will commence their new life. On Wednesday morning one of the nisters leading to the Law office of Adams Franklin Brown was ornamented the entire length and at intervals was a bouquet of roses. Rice was reely scattered along the stairway; the door to him office being also ornamented with the same material ogether with a quantity of old shoes, and upon opening the door a shower of rice greeted him)ver the door was an emblematic square and compas, Mr. Brown being very prominent in Masonic circles. The Southern Cross.

The only way to discover the so-called Southern ross is to remember that the two prominent stars in Centaurus point directly to it, and let imagination do the rest. Though I have never yet met a perthat capacity and by the strength of his own son who, looking for the first time upon writings, became one off the best-known this celebrated cluster, did not express great disappointment; it somehow grows upon one's fancy, like the sleepy trade winds of the southern seas, and the strange phosphorescent gleams by night, which crest every wave with r.pples of hquid fire one never tires of watching. As the night wanes and the Cross, which guided the Conquistadores to their discoveries and astrocities, slowly assumes an upright position, one remembers that passage in the saddest of romances, in which the faithful servant warns Paul and Virginia of the approach of midnight by the position of the constellation : "Ill est tarde, il est minuit ; la croix du Sud est droit sur Thorizon."

The Fisk Jubilee singers gave two delightful entertainments in the hall Mon . ay and Tuesday evenings of last week. It was a great treat to hear their wonderful music once more, almost every number of the programme being encored. Mrs. Porter-Cole sang two brilliant solos and Mr. Payne gave two beautiful songs "Mona" and "Madeleine." As for the "one and only" Mr. Caldwell with his marvellous voice and his love of fun he is the delight of every one in the audience from the veriest boy to the wisest sage. I think the male quartettes deserve special mention, but if one attempts to particularize they will enumerate almost every number and include the encores. Mrs. C. M. O'Dell and family returned home on Wednesday.

Mrs. Greener returned Tuesday from a visit to Sydney. There was a small dance in the hall this vening at which the following guests were present Evening at which the fo lowing guests were present: Mrs. II. B. MacPherson, Miss MacPherson, Mrs. C. M. O'Dell, Miss Vooght, Miss Mullins, Miss Treen, Miss Bedwin, Mrs. R. H. Bridge, Miss Moore, Miss Musgrave, Miss McLelian, Messrs Boreham, Creeiman, Earle, Cann, Cliff, Robertson, MacKay, L. MAY 30 .- We have the pleasure again this week,

to announce the marriage of another of Summerside's fairest daughters. This pleasant event took place at the residence of Mr. Thomas Beattie last Wednesday evening, when his third daughter,

Sarah, was united in marriage to Mr. Maynard

Schurman, of Kensington. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Bently, assisted by Elder D.

Crawford. The bride looked lovely, in a beautiful dress of cream bengaline with orange blossoms and veil. Miss Hannah Beattie, sister of the bride.

acted as bridesmaid. She wore a delicate costume of pale pink cheviot. The groom was ably supported by Mr. John MacNiell, druggist of Kensington

Supper was served at nine o'clock, after which the happy couple drove to Kensington, with the unded
