The death of Dr. G. H. Raymond, of consumption, occurred at the Knoll Saturday afternoon. The doctor had been in failing health for some time, last fall he gave up his practice here and moved to Montreal thinking that the climate and city practice there might benefit him. He remained there until January when the doctors advised him to return to his native air as he had not gained at all there. He and Mrs. Raymond came here and boarded at the Knoll, the doctor did not gain any but gradually sank until death came to relieve him of his sufferings. He was only thirty-five years of age and gave promise to rise to prominence in his profession. The funeral took place from the Knoll on Tuesday morning and was one of the largest ever seen here. The floral offerings were very fine. Among them was a very handsome I. O. O. F. emblem of white and pink roses and carnations from Valley lodge, of Sussex, of which deceased was a member, also beautiful wreaths and boquets from loving relatives and friends. Service at the house was conducted by Rev. A. W. Smithers, of Waterford, and at the church and grave by Rev. H. W. Little. The mourners were the five brothers of the deceased, Rev. W. O. LADIES COLLEGE NOTES.

SACKVILLE, April 18 .- Friday evening was stormy and the roads bad beyond description, but these drawbacks did not prevent a good attendance at the elocution recital given by Miss Landor's pupils. The stage was made very attractive by the addition of flowers, pictures, a screen, and wicker table with a much beruffled lamp on it. The affair opened by a piano selection from Paderewski, played by Miss Burbank in a pleasing and melodious manner. The young pianist's appearance in a simple cream cashmere, with no ornament but her abundant brown

Miss Butcher, looking the personification of spring in her primrose colored dress, recited "Washington's Kiss" very effectively. "A Russian Christmas" was a long selection, and showed great memorizing ability on the part of Miss Cole, but her manner was rather too artificial to be quite pleasing. She wore an empire gown of pale pink, with white lace trimmings. The vocal duett by Misses Goodwin and Harper was very pretty, both young ladies possessing sweet voices, and giving a good interpretation of Schubert's weird music. "Mice at Play" by Miss Atkinson was capital. It was a comic piece, as the name indicates, and the dramatic action was most realistic.

The dialogue between Miss Walton, as Queen Elizabeth, and Miss White, as Marie Stuart, was one of the best things of the evening. The black velvet dresses and caps, the big cuffs, the pearls and powder were very becoming to both. Miss Walton carried out her part extremely well, looking and speaking all throughout in a manner most queenly and severe. Miss White's elocution was perfect, but she appeared a trifle too cosy and serene, for the much-afflicted person she represented.

Miss Robb played one of her always acceptable violin solos, and then Miss Hay recited "The first Christmas" from Ben Hur, which she delivered with the dignity and grace befitting the sacred Miss White, prettily attired in blue and cream, told a pathetic little incident of the American war, and to dit so well that there was a perfect silence over the whole building, the highest compliment anyone can receive.

A very taking waltz air was sung by Miss Deacon with good expression, and her costume of black with pink flowers was stylish and tasteful. The curtains were then drawn (wi.h extreme difficul.y, the wings being apparently too small for the pole,) and the platform arranged for a spectacular piece. Miss Wotten took the part of a young girl, who is supposed to have been changed by an unkind fate into a statue. She appears on a pedestal, comes to life, a la Galatea, and tells the story of her

A Mission school under the control of the W. C. T. U. is to be started May 1st to clothe, school and This ought to have been a beautiful thing but it was not, unfortunately. The curtains hitched apart in a very balky way and "Laureann' looked far more like someone's "remains" than like a statue. Her awakening to life and speech was well done, but the effect of it was spoiled by the boys' laughter and encouraging chirps. Her self possession in the face of these distractions was wonderful, but she gave her selection in a high wailing voice that was

The last piece by Miss Hay, from "Josiah Allen's Wire," displayed great versatility, but it was an unsuitable reading, being nearly as broad as it was good work is being done in this department. The very good about responding. The audience was pupils all speak distinctly, have some knowledge of dramatic action and move on and off the stage with ease and grace.

The audience at the athletic concert was neither as large or select as was hoped for, which is a pity is one worthy of patronage. But when good things are so numerous people can't spend their pennies on everything and besides a great many (not having flannel ears) object to the unearthly racket the boys in the audience keep up.

That they thin out their own houses in this way is strictly there own affair but a great deal of hot in lignation is expressed at their behavior at the Tor ett concert. Good manners among the young men of the institutions are the exception not the rule and the conduct of many is such as to make it almost impossible to be eve that they could here been brought up in respectable homes by respectable parents. They must have "grown up promiscuouslike." They so far forgot themselves on this occasion as to greet the charming and talented Miss Tor-

a third class circus and received a sharp rebuke from the pianist. The authorities say the boys are " put on their honor" to behave well, and therefore they do not send a teacher with them. But apparently they keep their honor (?) at home with their manners in some hermetically seeled casket. The only remedy can suggest is that the faculty invest in, not twenty live cent bottle, but several hogsheads of the soothing syrup of which the sextette sang so Then before every entertainment a large dose should be administered (as Mrs. Squeers gave in 1853. He was also editor and proher famous sulphur and molasses), not only to the freshmen but the tresh boys likewise.

I wish I could have space to do justice to this beautiful concert, but can only say that in every way it came up to the expectations of the listeners and every one feels grateful to Dr. Bordon for bringing the Torbett Company here.

Curiosities of House Moving.

"The moving of houses, either of brick, stone or wood, for long distances is a very simple matter nowadays," said Judge Robert Campbell, of St. Louis, "While at Wichita, recently, one of the citizens told me, 'We are improving very fast houses are being moved into the city every day.' He referred to the fact that during the mad and frenzied days of the Wichita boom streets with granite walks were run away out into the cornfields of the prairie. and handsome villas were built several miles from town by the suddenly enriched populace, who imagined that their suburban sites would in a few years be centrally located. The boom collapsed, Wichita lots again became farms, and these suburban villas bought for a song are now being hauled into town, to its vast improvement.

"The most remarkable case of house moving that I ever heard of was at Nauvoo, Ill. When the Mormons were driven out of Missouri by an armed force they built the town of Nauvoo on the banks of the Mississippi. Here they erected their temple and constructed a thriving town. Then the Illinois people arose, burned the temple, murdered the prophet, Joseph Smith, and the entire community fled to Utah. Mennonites from Russia came along and bought the land. They had no use for the three hundred and fifty buildings in the town. They wanted the land to plant vineyards upon. They sold the houses to a Missourian by the name of Boyd for a trifle. The next winter he began to put rollers under the houses, slid them down the banks to the frozen river, and then slid and rolled and pushed them six miles up the river, and founded the town of Fort Madison, Ia .- all except about forty of the houses which are to-day on the left bank of the river, opposite the site of the extinct town of Nauvoo."

There are two sorts of pressure which tend to shorten life, blood pressure within and atmospheric pressure without. The latter is a specially important factor in a humid climate. In advancing age the circulation of the blood and lymph tends to become slow, and the enfeebled heart finds its embarrassments increased by this condition. Especially do the more vascular organs, such as the lungs, the liver and the kidneys, put skids on the wheels of the blood circulation. Plainly then, an important condition of cardiac easement, and therefore, of life prolongation, is the maintenance of an uncongested state of lung, liver and kidney. Thus are internal pressures relieved and thus is cardiac energy are plentiful it usually forms part of the "Gentlemen:-I feel that I cannot say enough | conserved. Rather Tough Food. "Did you ever hear of wood being used for food " inquired a man of Pensacola, Fla. "I traveled rather extensively through Siberia a few years ago, and found that among the natives along the northern coast wood in a certain form is a most common and constant article of diet. The natives eat it because they like it. Even when fish people know by experience that the fact of their eating wood arouses the sympathy of strangers, and shrewdly use it to excite pity and to obtain a gift of tea and tobacco. They scrape off thick layers immediately it fine, mix it with snow. It is then boiled milk or butter is mixed with it."-St. Louis
