The First One

THE PRATTE PIANO COMPANY worked eight years perfecting their first instrument, and that it was a success, many testimonials from the biggest critics will prove. Every one since is as good, no imperfect instruments being allowed to leave the factory. Not only has the high standard been maintained in the PRATTE PIANO, but many important discoveries and improvements have been embodied, which make them even better, if possible, than the first instrument. An unprecedented fact in the history of piano making, is that the first No. 1 piano, which was critically examined by such great and celebrated artists as Albini and Lloyd, was pronounced a perfect gem of an artist's piano. The latest products of the factory are now to be seen at the Show Rooms. Prices reasonable. First ad. on piano making is No. 1
