Physician is Blood Poisoned

Performing Delicate Surgical Operation.

How He Cured Himself

A Matter of Interest to All Whose TroublesArise From Impure Blood.

Some time ago the celebrated and eminent Boston physician and surgeon, Dr. A. W. K. Newton, while performing a very delicate surgical operation, was unfortunately blood poisoned. This was to him a most serious matter; it demanded the use of a medicine that would quickly and effectually remove every trace of poison from the vital fluid.

Dr. Newton, having a thorough knowledge of the cleansing and invigorating virtues of Paine's Celery Compound, im-Wilmot, Allen Wilmot, Symonds, W. E. Smith, | mediatlely began its use, and the results A. R, Tibbitts, Geo. Black, R. Wetmore, Yorston, were so pleasing and satisfactory, that the worthy doctor deems it fit and proper to say something reguarding a medicine about which thousands are daily speaking. He writes thus:-

"Paine's Celery Compound, is not a patent medicine, and it must not be confounded with the ordinary nervines, bitters and sarsaparillas. It is as much superior to them in formula and results as the diamond is superior to glass. It purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, and is nature's food for the brain.

"I had some trouble myself, from blood poisoning, received in a very delicate surgical operation. The formula of Paine's ing Mrs. D. D. Johnston Celery Compound led me to try it, and l was much pleased with the result. I prescribe it for men and women who have no appetite, cannot sleep, and are weak and run-down. For this condition, and for disorders of the blood and nerves, it has no equal.

"When a man or woman has lost appetite, lost sleep, and teels that lite is a burden, that person is in a serious condition. I prescribe Paine's Celery Compound for my patients who have these common and dangerous symptoms, with invariably satisfactory results. It is the best possible remedy to keep up one's strength and energy during the summer

Slightly Misunderstood.

We were talking of wrecks at sea. I have been in several, and am still alive to tell the tale. The most remarkable of all was the loss of the Oregon. Mystery stiil hangs around it. Its sinking was like the sinking of an island city off the coast of Spain. There was one incident connected with the going down of this magnificent steamship that invariably causes me to laugh when I think of it. Mr. and Mrs. Collis P. Huntington were among the passengers, returning from a tour to Europe. In the excitement of getting off in the boats they were separated, Mrs. Huntington, with other ladies, being hurried away in one of the large boats forward of the second cabin. The sea was almost calm, but the boat was so heavily loaded that the gunwales were within an inch or two of the water, and a slight movement caused it to dip. Suddenly Mrs. Hnntington, who had kept up her courage well, sprang up and shouted in a tearful voice: "My Collis! Oh, where is my Collis ?" She clasped her hands and looked anxiously toward the fast sinking ship. "Sit down!" roared one of the sailors as the water ran over the side. "But my Collis! Oh, where is my "Sit down, I say !-your collars! You ought to be glad you saved yourself!"-New York Press.

Got in His Ten Words.

A few years ago a prominent oil producer of Pittsburg was putting down a well in a territory that had never been tested for oil. He was keeping the fact a profound secret, in order that in case he got a good well he might without difficulty secure all the leases he desired in the vicinity. He was on the ground himself, watching with great interest the indications. Everything pointed to a success. Two days before the well was expected to "come in" he was called home. Anxious about the result, he arranged with his contractor to telegraph him as soon as he reached the

He knew, however, that secrets will sometimes leak out of a telegraph office, and so he told the driller that the sentence, . Pine trees grow tall," would mean that he had struck oil. The driller promised to do as he was ordered. The mingled satisfaction and vexation of the producer may be imagined when two days latter he received the following telegram: "Pine trees grow tall. She's spurtin' clean over the derrick." His hope that he should have no competitors for leases was disappointed .- San Francisco Argonaut.
