JUNE 19 .- Until q tite lacely it has looked as it tennis was going to be as much a forgotten sport this summer as the Olymipic games, so far as Moncton was concerned! The usual meeting which has assembled the members into one unharmonious whole every May, since the organization of the club, was not called, the nets remained unstretched, and the courts unmarked, till the lovers of tennis were in despair. Indeed it would seem as it the original club were defunct, but another one appears to be rising Pacaix, like from its ashes, and the new club which will be a branch of the Moncton Amateur Athletic association promises to grow and flourish. The M. A. A. A. has thrown gits doors open to ladies and invites their presence both as spectators and members, without money, and without price. Indeed this gallant body of athletes re cognized the interest the ladies have always staken in its proceedings, and the good work they have done for it, reall / solicits their presence on the grounds, as a favor, and offers them all the priveleges of membership, and as there are three or four very good courts on the grounds this year, it is probable that the fair ones will not be slow to take advantage of the opportunity.

The tennis courts were formally thrown open to the ladies of Moncton on Thursday, by Dr. O. J. McCully, president of the M. A. A. A. who kindly provided the visitors with a dainty tennis tea. Miss Dora Dickson, formerly of Moncton, but

Miss Frances Willard believes in system everything and orders her life accordingly. Divid ing the day into three periods, she devotes eight hours to work, eight to sleep, and the remainder, as she phrases it, "to doing as I please"

There never was, and never will be, a universal panacea, in one remedy, for all ills to which flesh is heir—the very nature of many curatives being such that were the germs of other and differently seated diseases rooted in the system of the patient-what would relieve one ill, in turn would aggravate the other. We have, however, in Quinine Wine, when obtainable in a sound unadulterated state, a remedy for many and grievous ills. By its gradual and ju hous use, the frailest systems are led into convalescence and strength, by the influence, which Quinine exerts on nature's own restoratives. It relieves the drooping spirits of those with whom a chronic state of morbid despondency and lack of in-terest in life is a disease, and, by tranquilizing the nerves, disposes to sound and refreshing sleepening the healthy animal functions of the system, thereby making activity a necessary result, strength ening the frame, and giving life to the digestive organs, which naturally demant increased substance-result, improved appetite. Northrop and Lyman of Coronto have given to the public their uperior Quinine Wine at the usual rate, and, gaged by the opinions of scientists, this wine approaches nearest perfection of any in the market.
