Aim

The True

in piano making is to make the BEST, though the actual aim of the majority is to make the CHEAPEST. The aim of the Pratte Piano Co. has always been to make an artists' piano, and not one merely to sell. There seemed a good opening for some firm who could build pianos on bonor, of first-class quality, and show could do.

THE PRATTE PIANOS have had unbounded praise from the start, Campbell's many friends will sympathize deeply and the reasons why are simple. Not a single Piano was ever of tered to the public until, after 8 years of hard work and careful experiment, then the PRATTE PIANO came forth - just right. We now have a few of the latest Found What She Wanted.

A young lady, who is well known in Montreal as a brilliant pianiste, was recently married to a New York gentleman. While in New York he took her to look around the city and pick out any upright piano the might choose, giving her carte blanche as to m ke and price. She accordingly spent the day visiting various stores looking for the best piano she could find. When she returned home she was asked it she found what she wanted. "I have found several very fine pianos.

but if you give me my choice, I would prefer a 'Pratte.' "What is a 'Pratte' ?"
