The services at Rothesay on Sunday last was of a most interesting character and the successful result of the attempt will evidently ensure its being carried out in the future as one of the annual events of Rothesay. Up to the present time it has always been usual to make some reference to the fact that it was the last Sunday of the term at the evening sermon, but this year, partly owing to the fact that the two colleges have grown so large that when all are present it would leave very little room for a congregation, and partly to the fact that a very large class are this year graduating into the universities and business, it was thought necessary to adopt another method. A procession was formed at the Kinghurst college for girls in the following order; the college band, college hill company, old boys assn., Kinghurst college for girls, staffs of both colleges, friends. The visiting clergy together with Mr. Troop drove behind. The band played their march selection of sacred music in an admirable way many people remarking the fine state of efficiency shown. Arriving at the church the boys took up the whole of the pews on one side of the church and the girls of Kinghurst together with the "O. D. Boys" about half the other side. The congregation had to content themselves with the somewhat limited space left for them. Short form of evening prayer was read after the Rev. G. O. Troop of Montreal preached a splendid sermon to whom he aptly termed "the wealth of young life" before him. It made a great impression and will be remembered for a long time by those who were present. At the close of the service the principal Rev. G. E. Lloyd in his college academics went up and in a few words presented to Mr. Troop a noble looking class.
