JUNE 10 .- Trinity church was the scene of a very pretty wedding yesterday afternoon, when Mr. John Walker Scovil and Miss Lenna Leota Markee, were united in matrimony by Rev. Mr. While of Trinity. The church was most beautifully decorated for the occasion by the ladies of the young peoples association, and assisted by the choir of which Miss Markee was a valued member. The flowers used for the decoration were purple and white lilacs, an arch was erected at the entrance of the chancel from which hung a marriage bell made of white flowers. The pulpit and reading desk were hidden from view with flowers, and the pews were adorned with bouquets of lilacs tied with bows of white satin ribbon. A few minutes before three o'clock the re latives and guests entered the church. The groom with his groomsman who was Mr. Fredric Wickwire of the bank of Nova Scotia came from the vestry and took their position at the foot of the chancel steps. In a few minutes he bride entered Among the guests were Mrs. W. F. Todd, Mrs. the church leaving on the arm of her father, Mr. Leonard Markee. She was attired in a lovely gown of cream coloured talma cloth, made en train, and Beard, Mrs. William H. li, Miss Ellen Nelson, Miss stylishly trimmed with rich lace, pearl embroidery and orange blossoms, she wore a veil of tulle wita a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of brides roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Ida Smith, looked charming in a pretty costume of pale yellow silk trimmed with lace. She wore a large picture hat made of yellow tulle and adorned with yellow plumes and yellow roses, she carried a beautiful bouquet of yellow and white carnations. When the bride entered the church, and during her progress up the aisle, the choir sang that lovely hymn "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden." After the marriage ceremony the the choir sang "O Perfect Love", and when the bridal party were leaving the church the organist Miss Kate Bradnee played the wedding march The brid-l party returned to the home of the bride where supper was served and congratulations offered. The bride then changed her bridal costume for a handsome gown of navy blue and white novelty cloth, and the happy young couple Treve to the station, and left in the train at a quarter gast five o'clock, for Boston where they will spend a week. They will then return to Shediac and remain a fortnight visiting Mr. Scovil's parents, in that town. There were numerous elegant and valu able wedding gifts, the bride having many friends. The choir and young people's association of Trinity church presented her with a handsome brass and onyx lamp. The gift of the groom was a costly gold chain. Among the guests from out of town were, Mr. and Mrs. Scovil of Shediac parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Belyea of

It could scarcely be described as a formal opening, since the ceremony itself was singularly devoid of any feature which the most enterprising journalist would be tempted to speak of as "impressive." But the doors of the rink were thrown open at seven o'clock in the evening, and the general public understood from that circumstance that they were welcome to enter, provided their appearance betckened respectability and they possessed ten cents. Once entered, the rink certainly presented a scene of almost fairy like beauty, and if the knewledge that one's work is thoroughly successful is any compensation for the labor expended, then the members of the M. A. A. A. and their lady friends who have toiled unremittingly for the past week at the decorations, must feel amply repaid, for the immense rare build ing is completely transformed. Amongst those who have taken a leading part in the designing and constructing of the different booths and the decoration of the rink and stage are Mr. A. C. Seleg, and Mr. R. W. Simpson, of the I. C. R. engineering department, Mr. A. C. Stead of the bank of Montreal, Mr. Grant Hall, Mr. J. H. Abbott, Mr. G. W. Daniel, Mr. H. Morrison Mr. Rippy, Mr. Condon, Mr. E. W. Givan, Mr. J. Cocorar, and Mr. Irvine ladies belong the credit of draping and decorating the individual booths; but the committees have evidently worked in rare harmony, and the result is charming. Spruce trees of large size and in pertect groves form screens and background for the stage, ice cream, and novelty booths, and others, surrounded by seats in triangular form, invite the weary to repose beneath their shade, and give almost the appearance of a sylvan park; flags, bannerettes and portraits of the Queen, Sir John Turper and Hon. Wilfred Laurier also find a place amongst the decorations w. ich far excel anything we have seen in Moncton before, for originality and

Amongst the booths, the first to attract the eye on entering the rink are the paper table presided over by Mrs. J. W. Y. Smith and Miss Urquhart, at which everything made of p-per, or cardboard is sold, and the flower booth in charge of Mrs. L. N. Bourque and Mrs. A. E. Holstead, assisted by Misses Alice Wetmore and Bessie Holstead. These booths alone occupy the centre of the rink, the others being all built upon the promenade; they are charming in design and decoration, the former being diamond shape, and the latter octognal. The only suggestion that could be made is that the brilliant scarlet of the flags with which the paper booth is draped, tends to kill the delicate tints of the articles displayed, and a less conspicuous background would have shown off the dainty lamp shades, and crepe paper trifles to better advantage. The flower booth is decorrated with moss, spruce and potted plants arranged in pyramidal form, the booth itself wreath' ed in pale pink crepe paper.

The caudy booth and peanut stand presided over by Mrs. E. W. Givan assisted by the Misses W. Y. Schwartz and Jennie Rippey, is the first to the right on entering, and it is artistically decorated in pale lilac. In the kitchen just behind the candy is manufactured, and then worked and pulled, in the special attraction for her booth in the shape of a velvet shield in a glass case, on which are mounted the twenty. seven gold and silver medals won by Moncton's own "Jimmie" Humphrey. Close beside the candy booth, Mrs. A. C. Chapman, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Bishop, and Miss Taylor pre ide over and laden with good things, from golden orange, to delicious hot coffee.

Mrs. George H. Pick assisted by her guest Miss Harper of Shediac, and Miss McKay occupies a booth on the right gracefully ornamented with portiers, flags and lace drapery. The booth cortains an immense variety of art work, both in oils water colors, and pastelie, all the work of Mrs. Pick and her assistants, there are pane's, screens, placques, in fact every description of decorative art work. A particularly beautiful three panel screen, by Mrs. Pick is being disposed of by ticket.

The fancy work booth is directly beneath the band stand ot the right, and is presided over by Mrs. Newton Benedict, Mrs. C. A. Bradley, Mrs. O. J. McCully, and Miss McKean, with the Misses Bradley, Miss Grace Busby. Miss Jessie Dowe, and several other young ladies. The fancy work is ex ceptionally beautiful, and the booth most gracefully decorated with lace curtains and flags. I beleive a quantity of the fancy work was sent to the ladies in charge by friends in the United States.

Perhaps the very most graceful and dainty of the booths, in its fairy-like lightness, is the lemon booth in charge of Mrs. J. S. Benedict and Mrs. George McSweeney with Miss Greta Peters, Miss Winnie Williams, Miss Mary Cooke, Miss F anagan, and Miss Harris, as assistants. The root represented a lemon, being in conical shape, and composed of lemon colored art muslin, it is bo: dered with spruce and draped with lace curtains. Everything into the manufac ure of which lemons entered, was so.d, lemon water ice, lemon cake, lemon jelly, and lemon candy. By way of an additional attraction lemons were sola, then cut, and the seeds counted, the person getting the lemon with the largest amount of seeds gaining a prize. In close connection with the booth was a "Jacob's Well," at which Miss Sallie Benedict, robed as a patriarch dispensed lemonade, and a fish pond in charge of Miss May Benedict, and Miss Agnes Peters. Mrs. F. W. Givan and Mrs. C. A. Murray inhabit for the time being a delightful grove of spruce, approached by an imposing avenue of tall spruce trees powdered with snow, where with the assistance of Miss Hippey, and Miss Stronach, they dispense delicious ice cream. It is one of the prettiest spots in the rink, and the small tables grouped socially about, the inviting chairs, and the bright red lamps make it attractive as well. The draping s all ln white and is most skilfully arranged.

Opposite the door at the extreme left of the rink s the gorgeous territory of Mrs. George W. Daniel who is indeed monarch, and-I had almost saidmanufacturer of all she surveys. It was a remark commonly heard as one passed the boths, by people well qualified to judge, that they had never seen anything so beautiful at a bazaar. Mrs. Daniel's territory is large, occupying one small and two large compartments, as well as a goodly share of the main floor of the rink, and it would need to be large, in order to display the immense stock she presides over. It is called the Novelty and is indeed both novel and original. The booth proper and a counter running out on the floor of the rink are loaded with valuable articles which have been given to Mrs. Daniel by the merchants of Moncton and St. John in return for advertising cards advertising the goods. These cards are attached to the articles donated, and contain the name of the firm or individual giving them. They are all Mrs. Daniel's own work ard are really beautiful paintings. The articles given are sold at reasonable rates, or disposed of by ticket. On the counter of the booth itself is displayed a pile of packages tastefully wrapped in bright colored tissue paper, which are sold at ten and twenty cents each, and contain articles which are worth sometimes nearly twice that price. The small booth contains a peep show so excellent that no one should miss seeing it, and is in charge of Mr. G. W. Daniel and Mr. A. E. Wilkinson. The booths are draped in white charmingly decorated and lighted with numerous colored

When it is remembered that nearly every article in the prize packets as well as the peep show, and the fifty seven advertisement cards, are the work of Mrs. Daniel's own hands, and that numerous other specimens of her work appear in the other booths, the magnitude of her undertaking will be partially realized. Mrs. F. A. Jones of St. John, Miss Nicholson, Miss Marks, and Miss Molly Harris, are Mrs. Daniel's assistants. The Frast of Days, was another new and attractive and other members of the association. To the feature, and one in the management and carrying out of which great credit is due Mrs. Addy, who has had the organization and arranging of it, though a recent family affliction prevented her f om taking any active part at the last. It occupies a large share of the left side of the rink and is divided into booths representing the different days of the week, and the occupations which are supposed to engage the attention of housewives on those days.

> Monday, washing day, is in charge of Mrs. George D. Willett, assisted by Misses Nellie Crossdale and Georgie Cole. It represents a kitchen or laundry, and besides containing the latest improvements in wasn tuos and wringers it is adorned by a beautiful Hig. land grand range and a quantity of shining tinware. The charming laundry maids have their wnite arms immersed in soap suds, and wash, soap and wring, as though to the manner born drawing a constant crowd of admiring spectators. Sosps, starch, clothes pins, laundry bags etc. all for sale. Mrs. J. M. Lyons and Mrs. R. A. Borden presided over the Tuesday ironing day booth, which is most tasteful y arranged to represent an old fashioned kitchen, nothing is wanted, from the grandfather's clock in the corner, to the blue willow pat terned plates on the high shelves, and quaint valances of cimity over the windows. The ironing table stands well to the front, and in the pauses o their ton the ladies dispose of aprons, towels, pillow cases in fact almost anything which can be ironed. Miss Borden is assistant.

> Wednesday is mending day and is in charge of Mrs. B. J. Smith and Mrs. C. W. Robinson, with Neme Smith and Miss Beatrice Harper of Shediac, as assistants. These ladies are not only busily engaged in darning and patching, but also sell darn. ing bags, mending baskets, work baskets, pin cus hions, needle books and emery cushions. Their booth is pre tily arranged as a dining-room and is very attractive.

Thursday, is a large and handsome boo h representing reception day, and is inrnished as a drawing room. It is presided over by Mrs. F. W. Sum presence of the admiring public. Mrs. Givan has a ner and Miss Campbell, with Miss Ance McEwen and Miss Ethel Sumner as assistants. These ladies are all in houday attire apparently having nothing to do but entertain their visitors; nevertheless they manage to manufacture delicious, tea coffee, and chocolate, which they serve-for a slight consideration-together with whipped cream and cake to their guests. The booth is beautifully decorated by Mrs. Sumner's skilfu. fingers, and is a cosy resting place. Tiny cups and saucers and drawing room ornaments are for sale.

Friday is sweeping day, and is presided over by Mrs. D. I. Welch, and Mr. R. L. Botsford, assisted by Miss Ada Wallams, and Miss Laura Newman. This booth also represents a dining room and is prettily decorated. When not engaged in sweeping, the ladies sell oust caps, sweeping aprons, whisks, brocms, dust pans, dusters, etc. They wear smart caps and aprons, and look charm-

Mrs. P. S. Archibald, and Mrs. H. A. Price, are the presiding geniuses of the New England Kitchen which the Saturday booth represents, assisted by Miss Lyons and Miss cadie Borden. The arrangement of the booth is perfect, the high brick fireplace, tall wooden dresser, with old china liberally displayed upon its shelves, the wooden settle and immacuiate kitchen table loaded with old fashoned dainties formed a p.c.ure of old times whichwas most attractive, and the quaint and simple dresses of the ladies in charge, harmonized with the surroundings. Tempting dishes, with direct tions for compounding them, formed the staple of

In spite of the very unfavorable weather, the attendance was remarkably good, and the sales at the different booths, reported excellent. The Citizen's band furnished an attractive programme of music, and for the rest of the week, in addition to the bands, there will be a special attraction each even-
