May 20.—The ball given by the members of the Curling club in the curling rink on Thursday evening was one of the pleasantest given here for some time, although the attendance was not so large as was expected from the number of invitations that were issued. The rink was very prettily decorated with flags, bunting and Chinese lanterns. The pillars that support the rink were trimmed with red and yellow bunting and crossed brooms, the curlers emblem. The ladies were nearly all attired in handsome gowns of muslin and print, the gay colors making a pretty effect as they moved through the dances. Supper was served at twelve o'clock, and afterwards dancing was resumed and continued until an early hour in the morning. The music was extremely fine, and received many compliments from the dancers. The gentlemen, who arranged the details of the ball were: Messrs. Julius T. Whitlock, J. E. Ganong, Lewis Dexter, J. M. Murchie, and Henry B. Eaton. Every effort was made to make the ball a brilliant and successful one, and many pleasant comments have been made in regard to it by those who had the pleasure of attending.

The entertainment given in the Curling rink on Friday evening by the Misses Webbing was largely attended by the scholars of the different schools and their parents and friends. The entertainment was not exactly what was expected and was rather disappointing to nearly all who were there.

MONCTON.

Progress is for sale in Moncton at the Moncton Bookstore, by W. G. Standfield, S. T. Hall and M. B. Jones Bookstore.]

MAY 20.—I don't think I have heard of a solitary festival for the past three weeks! I suppose people are too busy at this season of the year, to think much about entertaining their friends, and therefore the society columns are less interesting than usual.

I report say that we have had a great many invalids in town just now, the cold and variable weather of the spring months having proved very trying to all who are not cast in nature's strongest mould. Mrs. J. H. Newman's many friends will regret to hear that she is still a great sufferer having been confined to her room all winter with that most cruel ailment inflammatory rheumatism. It is hoped that the warm weather will have a beneficial effect upon her health, but those who remember "Mrs. Harry Newman" as one of the brightest, and gayest of Moncton's society ladies, find it hard to realize the change wrought by illness and pain; and to recognize the active woman of affairs in the patient invalid who bears her terrible suffering so bravely.

Mrs. A. B. Atkinson of Sackville is spending the spring months with her mother, Mrs. Blair Bosford of Covertale.

The many friends of Mr. J. H. Nase of the I. C. R. shops, will regret to hear that he is dangerously ill, suffering from congestion of the lungs.

June, and Mrs. Landry of Dorchester, spent last Saturday in town.

Miss Dora Dickson of St. John is visiting her aunt Mrs. J. H. Nickerson of Covertale. Miss Dickson's many friends in Moncton will be glad to hear that she intends remaining all summer, as Covertale is so close to Moncton that it is almost a suburb of our lively city.

I am sorry to say that Mr. W. D. Forster of the I. C. R. general freight agent's office, is amongst the invalids I spoke of, and is quite seriously ill, though I do not think any danger is anticipated now. Mr. Forster's many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

Mr. S. T. Hall former manager of the Central book store, left town last week for British Columbia where he has accepted a position with former employer, a well known business firm. Mr. Hall was an active churchman and will be missed in Moncton. He will be joined by Mrs. Hall and family in the course of a few months.

Solid Consolation.

A late settler in a thinly populated place in the west had just returned from the funeral of a near and dear relative and was silently weeping alone in her darkened parlor, when one of her new neighbors, a plump, good natured and kind-hearted woman came bustling in.

"Now, now, this'll never do," she said. "Cryin' won't be a bit of good. Now, you just open up the shutters and I'll help you brighten things up some, and then you go home with me an' I'll cook you up as nice a mess o' string beans as ever you et."

Knew the Psalmist.

Good Rev. Dr. Fyhtly beamed upon the boyish faces upturned intelligently before him.

"Now," he said, pressing the ends of his fingers together, "what little boy can tell me who the Psalmist is?"

Little Johnnie Woodie's arm went up.

"I know," he shouted, boldly.

"Well," said the Rev. Doctor, "please inform us."

"He's the feller what looks in yer hand and tells yer fortune," roared Johnnie.

IS THIS STONE WORTH A MILLION.

That's About the Value of Nelly's Find According to sample Assays.

SPOKANE, May 2.—One morning lately Martin Neilly was returning to Roseland, B. C. after an unsuccessful prospecting trip into the Salmon River district. He reached the Columbia River at a point about six miles north of Trail Landing, B. C., at noon on that day, and selecting a spot on the bank of the stream at the foot of Lookout Mountain he sat down to eat his dinner. As he did so he noticed a huge boulder half buried in the sand in a dry portion of the river not far from where he sat.

When he was through with his repast he shouldered his pick and sauntered over to ward the huge boulder. He examined it at first in a casual way, and then his experienced eye told him that it was promising-looking quartz rock. He struck his pick into it several times and dislodged a piece of the decomposed rock. Great was his surprise when upon picking up the fragment he saw traces of gold and copper. He walked around the boulder and knocked off piece after piece, and as he did so his excitement increased with each succeeding disclosure. In speaking of the circumstance to the correspondent, he said: "It was some time before I fully realized what a fortune I had discovered, but when it dawned upon me that at last I was a rich man I am afraid I made such demonstrations as would justify anyone who might have seen me in believing that I had lost my senses. For several years I have been 'grubstaking' in prospecting these mountains without success, and many is the time I have gone hungry for the want of the price to get something to eat, and can you blame me for going nearly crazy when I realized that I was no longer poor?"

When Nelly had demonstrated to his satisfaction that the huge mountain of rock before him was full of rich metal, he proceeded to locate his discovery by posting the usual notices taking in the ground upon which the boulder rested. He then selected a number of the specimens of rock that he had chipped off, and, putting them in his pocket, he started for Roseland, arriving there late in the afternoon. He went by several assays and left some of the rock to be assayed.

The next morning one assayer's report showed that the ore contained $53 in gold to the ton, besides being rich in copper. The other two assays showed $47 and $68 in gold and also copper.

From the position of the boulder, lying as it does on the dry bed of the river all by itself and at the foot of Lookout Mountain, which rears its crest several thousand feet up in the air, it is evident that at some period this huge body of rock has become dislodged from the mountain and rolled down with a awful momentum to the point where it now rests.

The boulder, as near as can be estimated, contains in the neighborhood of 20,000 tons of rock. As yet Nelly is undecided what he will do with his boulder. He says he may conclude to have it mined and shipped to the Trail smelter for reduction, or he may decide to dispose of it to some syndicate or capitalist for a good round figure. He has set no price on it, and says he will not until he has time to think the matter over.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Very Much Cut.

The rising young politician had prepared an elaborate speech for the occasion. He rose in response to loud calls for him, and felt in his inside pocket for the manuscript. It was gone. It had slipped through a hole in the bottom.

The situation was a terrible one, but the self-possession of the rising young politician did not forsake him. Letting his hand remain in the breast of his coat he looked less than over the assembly.

"My fellow-citizens," he said, "I have no word in which to express my thanks for the honor you have done me in selecting me as one of your standard bearers in this campaign, and I will simply ask you to join me."

He was interrupted by deafening cheers, in which the other orators on the platform heartily joined.

The situation was still more terrible. He had intended merely to propose three cheers for the ticket, but the audience had jumped to the conclusion that he was extending an invitation of an other kind.

Still he did not lose his head.

"I see, fellow-citizens," he resumed with a smile, as soon as he could make himself heard again, "you understand me. Come on!"

He seized his hat and the meeting adjourned at once to the saloon on the floor below. He had made the hit of the evening.—Chicago Tribune.

A Dialogue in the Night.

The man in the upper berth leaned over its edge, and, jamming his frown firmly down on his brow, cried in a harsh, coarse voice that was audible above the rattle and rumble of the engine:

"Hi! you, down there. Are you rich?"

"Heh?" ejaculated the man in the lower berth, almost swallowing his Adam's apple.

"Whizzer mezzaz?"

"I say, are you rich?"

"What's that, sir? Rich? What do you mean by waking me up in the middle of the night to ask me such a question as that?"

"I want to know—that's why."

"Well, then, confound you, I am rich. Now I hope your curiosity is satisfied and you let me go to sleep."

"Very rich?"

"Well, then, why in torment don't you charter a whole train to do your snoring in?"

Death of Niagara.

Slowly, year by year, one sees the cataraet wearing back and suggesting the time when the river will be turned into a series of rapids; but another silent cruise is at work, and one not easily seen—namely, the effects of the changing level of the earth's crust. From the computations already made it was found that for the first twenty-four thousand years of the life of the river only the Erie waters flowed by way of the Niagara River, and for only eight thousand years have all the waters of the upper lakes been feeling the falls. If the terrestrial movements continue as at present, and there appears no reason to doubt it, for the continent was formerly vastly higher than now, then in about five thousand years the rim of the Erie basin promises to be raised so high that all the waters of the upper lakes will flow out by way of the Chicago Canal. Thus the duration of Niagara falls will have continued about thirty-seven thousand years. But the lakes will endure beyond the calculations of the boldest horologist. Fifteen hundred years ago the terrestrial movements raised the Johnson barrier to the Erie basin so high that the waters of that lake reached not merely the level of Lake Michigan, but the point of turning all the water of the upper lakes into the Mississippi drainage by way of Chicago. But the falls were then cutting through the ridge, and when this was accomplished, before the change of drainage was completed, the surface of Lake Erie was suddenly lowered by many feet, and thus the falls were reestablished for some time longer.—Popular Science Monthly.

Relics of Louis Seize.

The sale of Louis Seize relics has just taken place at Rouen. The articles which formed part of the Cleary inheritance, realized the sum of $20,000 francs. The shirt worn by Louis on January 20, 1793, the night before the execution, was sold for 2,800 francs. The wedding dress of Madame Royale, Duchess of Angouleme, was purchased at 610 francs for a member of the Austrian family. Some of Marie Antoinette's hair went for 310 francs. None of the actual buyers are known, as they were represented at the sale by their agents.

The Queen's Scottish journeys cost her about $5,000 a year for travelling expenses.

Agitation in the world of non-occupational medicine is the very soul of progress, as in politics and religion—the difference of opinion and the individuality of men have been parents of the disagreements by which the standard of these bodies has been elevated. So with most of our famous preparations—for most of illustration of which truth stands the world-famous remedy for general debility and languor, "Quinine Wine"—and which, when obtainable in its genuine strength, is a miraculous creator of appetite, vitality and stimulant, the general fertility of the system. Quinine Wine and its improvement has, from the first discovery of the general virtues of Quinine as a medicinal agent, been one of the most thoroughly discussed remedies ever offered to the public. It is one of the great tonics and life-giving stimulants which the medical profession have been compelled to recognize and prescribe. Messrs. Northrup & Lyman, of Toronto, have given to the preparation of this medicinal wine the great care due to its importance, and the standard excellence of the article which they offer to the public comes into the market purged of all the defects which the skillful and scientific opinion has pointed out in the less perfect preparations of the past. All druggists sell it.

Chronic Derangements of the Stomach, Liver and Blood, are speedily removed by the active principle of the ingredients entering into the composition of Farmiee's Vegetable Pills. These Pills act specifically on the deranged organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease and renewing life and vitality to the afflicted. In this lies the great secret of the popularity of Farmiee's Vegetable Pills.

Electricity lights Berlin carriages.

As Farmiee's Vegetable Pills contain Mandrake and Dandelion, they cure Liver and Kidney complaints with unerring certainty. They also contain Roots and Herbs which have specific virtues truly wonderful in their action on the stomach and bowels. Mr. E. A. Calkins, of New York, writes: "I consider Farmiee's Pills an excellent remedy for Biliousness and Derangement of the Liver, having used them myself for some time."

There are nearly fifteen thousand miles of rabbit-proof fencing in New South Wales.

Still Another Triumph—Mr. Thomas S. Bullen, Sunderland, writes: "For fourteen years I was afflicted with Piles; and frequently I was unable to walk or sit, but four years ago I was cured by using Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. I have also been subject to Quinsy for over forty years but Electric Oil cured it, and it was a permanent cure in both cases, as neither the Piles nor Quinsy have troubled me since."
