Tuesday's wedding was of course the chief event of the week, and pleased indeed were all interested that the sun was kind enough to shine brightly on the fair young bride. The wedding was not, comparatively speaking, a very large one, for Mr. and Mrs. Franklyn limited the invitations solely to their most intimate relations and friends and the more youthful acquaintances of the bride and bridegroom. In fact it was a young people's party, more or less. All brides are interesting, and this one was especially so on account of her extreme youth and delicate dark beauty. The bride's dress was in all white made a pretty picture, Miss Story looked particularly well. At the conclusion of the ceremony the young couple came down among the loud cheers, surrounded with congratulations on all sides. Lieut. Castens was married in his uniform, and his groomsmen were in similar attire. Many of the officers of the garrison were in uniform as well as the naval officers present, and the French admiral with the officers of his staff, and Mrs. Franklyn held a reception afterwards at Emascote; Mrs. Franklyn looking very stately and handsome in violet corded silk; Mrs. Story, her sister, in grey and violet, and Mrs. Slayter in violet and black. Mr. and Mrs. Castens will return from their honeymoon about Christmas to spend the festive season at Emascote, later they will reside in Bernadua where Mr. Castens is at present stationed.

Sur-Major Dorman will have Halifax this November. Many changes are being made in the Army medical staff. Surg-Major Hill and Surg-Major Kelly also go home by the Trooper expected to arrive before Christmas.

The death of Mr. James Fraser, of Fairfield, North West Arm, has caused universal sympathy for poor Mrs. Fraser. Mrs. Fraser's illness has been giving her great anxiety for the past couple of years and this final blow has quite prostrated the sorrowing lady. Mr. Fraser, as well as being a distinguished business man and a singularly successful one, was an ardent yachtsman and owned one of the finest and fastest ever seen in these waters, the twelve-ton schooner "Uvira," now owned by an American gentleman. Mr. Fraser's illness has been attributed to his over-attention to business matters, and should be a warning to many who are too apt to be over-attentive to amuse a fortune and provide for their families at the expense of their constitutions.

On Thursday afternoon the officers of the Royal Artillery held their annual sports on the Wanderers' grounds, loaned them for that purpose. The afternoon was a particularly fine one, with just enough chill in the air to warrant the ladies wearing new and heavy frocks. A few fans appeared, and many smart new hats. The most amusing event of the day was perhaps the officers' race, in honor of the Lieut-Governor and Admiral. Erskine were among the competitors, and a very exciting dash was made for the winning post. Mrs. Hodson received for the regiment, and wore a becoming dress of dark blue and grey, with edging of fur. Mrs. Duffus wore dark blue; Mrs. Faunce was in black, with sleeves of grey brocade; Mrs. Norris in dark fawn blue, with a large black hat; Mrs. Collier wore a very handsome dark blue cloth, with facings of astracian; Mrs. Drew, moire black velvet; Mrs. Erskine, a bicycling habit of dark green cloth. A great many ladies arrived on wheels during the afternoon. The band of the Berkshire regiment played on the grounds.

On Wednesday evening of last week Mrs. Erskine gave a small and very successful dance at Admiralty House. About a hundred guests were present.

Mrs. Clarkson is expected to return from England shortly, and will no doubt be pleased with the new house Capt. Clarkson has purchased in South Park street.

Miss Kate Foss Hill returned from her summer's sketching at Herring Cove, with a number of sketches of that picturesque place. Miss Hill will have an exhibition of her summer's work, later on.
