

The first of a series of a's mblies was given in the Mechanics Institute last evening, and the affair may be classed with the most enjoyable events of the season thus far. It was managed with good taste and much tact on the part of the gentlemen in charge, as I believe there were about an equal number of ladies and gentlemen present, and as most of the latter were dancing men, the music excellent, and the floer in good condition it may be safely interred that everybody enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The sitting out room, cosily furnished was at one end of the supper room from which it was divided by screens. The supper tab'e decorations were in pick and white, and were enhanced, by the daintily arranged dishes provided for the delectation of the guests. The chaperons we re Medames McMillian, Keator, Holden and Skinner, and the committee was composed of the following gentlemen, Messrs. S, L. Fairweather, 1J. G. Harrison, A. McMillian, B. S. DEC. 8,-Mrs. C. F. Hanington gave a very enjoyable little dance on Monday evening at rooms on Botsord street. There were about thirty people present, and that the evening was pleasantspent is a forgone conclusion. Mrs. Hanington is not housekeeping this winter as she intends spending some months in Ottaws, but she is ever hospitably inclined, and a very great acquisition to our social circle. I have heard that Christmas Day is to be celebrated in rather a novel manner by a number of our young people, no less than six weddings being set down for that day. It is a most unusual manner of celebrating the church's festival, and one would imagine, a singularly inconvenient occasion for getting married, but of course it is new, and that is always a consideration; only it seems singular that (CONTINUED ON EIGHTH PAGE.)
