THE CARDS.

Can you tell fortunes ?' she asked, leaning her elbows on the table and shuffling the cards.

Some people's Shall I try your mother's ?' Her mother was de zing in the armchair by the fire.

'Oh, don't be silly ! Mum's fortune is told.'

·Poor mamma!'

'Well, you know what I mean-all that's worth telling. She refused the fair man and married the dark one; wasn't very rich and wain't very poor-quite poor enough !' She shrugged her shoulders and made a dainty grimace-alas ! unnamable. 'Had two tiresome boys and one very nice girl-voila moi !

'Who was an incorrigible little firt and tease,' I suggested bitterly.

'Fortunes don't go into such details about secondary persons, even if they happened to be true, which they aren't."

'Oh, yer, they do.'

"Since you know so much about if, you can tell mine.' She scattered the cards toward me with a crash. 'It's all right, mum; I'm only throwing the cards at Cousin Harry.' Her mother gave a sleepy smile, and returned to her slumbers.

'You mustn't blame me if the cards are unfavorable.'

'I shall know you've made it up if they are.

'I wouldn't dream of jesting upon such a subject,' I assured her. 'Fortune telling follows certain essential principles, which are immutable and-'Should be practiced, not preached. Go on.'

'To start with, then, you are the Queen of Hearts.

"Wby."

Because the Queen of Hearts represents feminine beauty and charm."

'Oh !' she leaned back and laughed. 'If you are only going to flatter me I won't listen.'

'I merely state a fact. You are the Queen of Hearts.'

'No, I'm not. I'm spades or clubs because I am dark.'

'Excuse me, it is not a matter merely of complexion, but of general appearance. Spades represent plain people, diamonds passable people, and hearts very nice look-

'Well. you know it isn't trne. It's only'-she looked over her shoulder to see that her mother was still asleep-'mamma's silliness. Why, he's as cld as dad; and 1 wouldn't. You know I wouldn't.' Well ? The King of Hearts ? What does that mean ?' I considered a moment. 'The King o Hearts,' I pronounced slowly, 'means handsome young fellow who paid you a great deal of attention when you were staying with the Queen of Clubs. a dark relative-probably your aunt.' 'I won't listen to another word !' she cried, indignan ly. 'It's a nasty, horrid fortune, and quite untrue. There !' 'Very well.' I made as if I would sweep They were taken to the mouth at the river the cards together. 'Don't be disagreeable.' She looked at

. What else do they say ?' 'The next point is money. The seven of diamonds, next to the knave of clubs probably your uncle-indicates a legacy; and-

'No, no!' she interrupted. 'I don't want to know about money.'

' That doesn't matter,' said she quickly,

ing people. Therefore you are the Queen ot Hearts.'

'Lots of people wouldn't consider me good-looking at all.' Her tone invited contradiction.

'Very likely not.' Ste flashed an indignant glance at me, 'But the fortune tel ler is the sole judge on these occasions.'

'I'm glad the tortune-teller is so appreciative. Of course, I know you're only pretending.' She looked at me for denial. but I busied myself with the cards. 'Go on !' she cried.

'First, I shuffl' the cards-so. Then I cut them-so. Now I place my hand on them-so. You place your hand on top of mine.' She did. 'Now I place my my other hand on top of yours-so-and you put your other hand on top of mine.'

'I never heard of this before,' said she, doubtfully. Neither did I, but it had occurred to me as an improvement.

'Now you must sit quite still and silent for a full minute.'

'I know I shall laugh.'

'Then the fortune will be spoiled.'

'I don't believe it's necessary.'

'Yes, it is-to place the teller and the tellee en rapport.'

'But we aren't, you know. We always quarrel-at least, you do.'

'Couldn't we be, just for a minute, Milly ?' I didn't mean to speak seriously, but I did.

She nodded gravely, and I sat looking at and watching the pink color steal over her pretty face. I think it must have been two minutes that we sat like that, during which I forgave her all her little wickedness.

'There !' said I, re'uctantly. 'Now for the fortune. Cut the cards, Milly. The fortune must be your own making."

'You have made me feel quite serious,' said she with a nervous little laugh. 'It is going to be a serious fortune,' 1 meant it to be.

'Then-then won't you cut, too, Harry? To represent other people? I don't like all the responsibility. Please!' So I cut, too. It didn't matter, you see, because I looked at the cards before I put them down in the shape of an open fan round the Queen of Hearts. Of course, I don't know anything about fortune-telling, really. 'The disposition of the cards,' I said gravely, 'indica'e many possibilities of happiness and good fortune; but much is left to your own decision.'

'What a nuisance ! Don't they say how I shall decide ?' I shook my head.

'The hearts near the queen show that you are and will my much liked and admired.'

'I believe you're making it up '

'The three kings next to her indicate three admirers-perhaps lovers.'

"Whoever can they be?"

•The King of Clubs, with the other clubs close by, I take to be a soldier-good looking, dashing, and, from the diamonds in the same line, not bodly off. The hearts at the end of the line denote that you have given him some encouragement.'

shrugging her shoulders. . Then I hardly know what else there is to tell.' I looked at her doubtfully. There was one thing only that I wanted to tell her. 'What do you want to know, Milly?' She put her elbow on the table and rested her head on her hand. The she laughed uneasily, and I held my breath for a moment.

'Isn't there-I mean did you finish with -the-the-admirers, as you call them ?' 'There is another,' I told her, 'but he is haraly worth mentioning."

'Why not? because he doesn't care for -doesn't admire, or whatever you call it -much ?'

'Ob, no! But he's pocr, you see. Being only the King of Spades, he has to work for a living, so he admires at a distance. There are two cards between him and her, you see.'

'But,' said she very gently, 'they are hearts.'

'Yes,' said I, 'they are hearts ; being two, they show that he is distantly relatlated.' We are second cousins really.

'They indicate that he is very fond of her, but leave it doubtful if she is more than slightly attracted to him.' I looked appealingly to her, but her eyes were cast down. 'How do you make that out ?' she asked at length.

'The card next to her is the two; but that by him is the ten, which means great affection.'

'What does the rest of the line mean ?' 'The nine of spades, on the other hand of the king shows that he has a good deal Sprin hill, March 1, to the wife of Joseph Moss, a more work to do before he can be in a position to ask the brave of hearts-her father-for her hand. Meanwhile the eight of spades and the ace of clubs show that he must toil at some risk in a land across the sea.'

She clasped her hands suddenly and looked up.

'Ob, no, no !' she cried.

'Yes,' I said quietly and eadly.

"Where ? Her dainty mouth was quivering.

'The cards do not say. But it is the Cape, I believe, where a relative has offered him a good berth.'

We looked at the cards in dismal silence for a while. Then she smiled at me ever so brightly.

'There is the ace of hearts at the end of the line, Henry,' she whispered. What does that mean ?'

I took the hand near me gently in nine. 'I think, Milly,' I said earnestly, it must be my heart because it is over by you. Will you have it , dear ?'

She looked down for a moment, then pushed it gently toward me. 'I think,' she said, 'it must be my heart-which is going over the sea with you.'
