CONTRACTOR SAFETY AND AND AND AND AND ASSESSED OF

After the gaiety, incident to the holiday season society seems to have settled down to its usual quietude with nothing but rumors of social events undecided upon. Perhaps such pleasant reunions as that held every evening in the Up Town rink where one or two hundred ladies and gentlemen erjoy that most exhiliraling of winter pastimesskating-has something to do with the apathetic indifference to dancing. For you know one cannot be skating and dancing every night in the week, enticing as those pursuits may be. I understand that the skating parties in the Up Town rink have been particularly successful this year; the ice has been in splendid condition and the 62ad band music sil that was necessary to complete these evenings of unalloyed enjoyment.

In this connection one might almost mention the proposed carnival of the Neptune Rowing club in the old Victoria, which is sure in a great measure to be a society event. This organization seems to be even more active in the winter season than in summer. We have already had a most successful ball under its auspices and there have not been wanting athletic young men to form a hockey team which, by the way, was fortunate enough to win its first game against the Victorias. And now there is to be a carniva.

The "at home" given in the Trinity church school room on Tuesday evening was a most enjoyable affair. It was given by the Young Women's Guild and the Young Men's association of Trinity church to the members of the various guilds and associations of the Episcopal churches in the city. The room looked very dairty and pretty in its tasteful decorations. The guests were received by Miss Grace McMillan, Miss Annie Tingey, Miss M. Johnston, Dr. Scammell, Mr. Harrison Kinnear, and Mr. J. E. Rourke. A somewhat informal programme was carried out. 11 Valse; Archdeacon Brigstrocke gave an address of welcome, then there was a chorus led. by Rev. A. G H. Dicker; a sextette from St. Paul's church choir; a reading by Miss Knowlton; solo by Father Davenport; gramaphone selection by H. C. Tilley; and a recitation by Miss Armstrong; interspersed with selections by St. Mary's church orchestra. After the conclusion of the programme ice cream and

The second of the series of assemblies of which the first was held in the Institute rooms on Dec. 10th last was held on Thursday evening. The affair was highly enjoyable and nothing transpired during the hours of dancing to mar in the least degree the pleasure of those present. Tastefully decorated in dainty tints, contrasted by dignified palms and plants of sombre hues, the rooms of the historic old Institute never looked prettier. The doors were richly hung with portieres and in the various corners of the bail room and reception apartments home. like cosy corners were arranged with the furniture. A most delicious supper was served at the proper
