Much surprise and regret was felt on Sunday morning last, when it was announced that the Rev. Richard Simonds had died quite suddenly that morning: Mr. Simonds was with his son, boarding at Windsor hotel and a few days previously had been suffering with pleurisy which terminated in congestion of the lurgs. Mr. Simonds was highly esteemed and much beloved by all who knew him. He leaves a family of three daughters and four sons, the daughters are Mis Henry Wimot of Belmont, Mrs. A. P. Tippet of Montreal, and Miss W. C. Simonds who with Mrs. Wilmot were with their father at the time of his death, the sons are C. E. A. Simonds, barris'er, of this city, R. H.

Simonds, N. S. Consular at Moncton, and Rev. James Simonds of Richfort Vermont, and F. E. Simonds, C. E., of Gladstone, Manitoba. Mr. Simonds lost his wife more than twenty years ago. Funeral services were held in Christ church on Tuesday morning, after which the remains were taken to Oromocto were services were held in St. John's church and the interment was made in the cemetry adjoining the church.

On Monday evening the friends of Miss Clara Casey, who is a neice of Messrs George Howard and the chief movers in the entertainment, there is James Crangle, and who has been visiting Fredericton for some weeks past the guests of Mrs. James Crangle, Charlotte street entertained the young lady at a social in the Masonic Hall. Ine hall was tastefully decorated and the pretty costumes worn by the ladies all added to the attractive ness of the occasion. Miss Casey has made numerous friends during her stay in Fredericton and has proved herself a most pleasing companion. Among the guests present were the following:

Following is a list of the guests present: Dr. and Mrs. B. M. Mullin, Misses McGoldrick, Mis. and Misses Donshue, Mrs. and Miss Laforest, Mr. and Mrs. J. D, Shes, Mr. and Mrs. E. JAN. 26.-Mrs. I. Miller entertained a number of her friends at a very pleasant whist party last week, the guests numbering about thirty, but apart from that it has been a very quiet week in society circles. Several entertainments of a public character are on the tapis in the near future, however the first of which comes off this evening in the opera house. It is a performance given by the Amateur Dramatic club, for the benefit of St. George's church yourg Women's Guild, and as Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Paver are understood to be little doubt that it will be a marked success. Prof. Watt's orchestra have charge of the musical part of the programme, and as Miss Alice Wetmore has kindly consented to sing, there will doubtless be a crowded house. The piece to be presented is Byron's comedy, "Not such a Fool as He Looks."

I believe another dramatic event comes off on the 31st when the celebrated "Box of Monkeys" which made such a hit in Dorchester some time ago, will be presented in the opera house, with several of the original cast taking part, and this, together with an excellent musical programme should draw a large

Mr. J. E. Almon of Halifax, junior clerk in the bank of Montreal, received notice last week of his transference to Halifax, and left town on Tuesday for his new position. Mr. Almon has made many friends in Monctor, who will sincerely regret his departure. Mr. R. G. Thompson of St. John takes Mr. Almon's place in the Moneton branch.

Mrs. Hennigar's many friends are giving her a warm welcome home, after a visit of several months to relatives in St. John and Fredericton.

Music lovers are looking forward with great icterest to the concert to be given in the opera house on Tuesday evening February eighth when Miss Beatrice Harrington the English soprano will make her first appearance before a Moncton audience. Miss Harrington possesses a beautiful clear soprano voice of great compass, and has achieved great success in her numerous appearances at the principal concerts throughout England the musical from "Faust" and other operatie gems varied with some of the charming old ballads in the singing of she has won great distinction. Miss Alice Lillian Butcher leader of the Emmerson school of oratory, is another of the attractions, and although Miss Butcher has never before appeared in our city she will be sure of a very warm welcome, coming as she does, heralded by flattering notices. Dr. Emmerson principal of the college speaks in the following terms of this young elocutionist-"She is a worthy graduate of the Emmerson college and is naturally well qualified for the work she has undertaken, She possesses a bright and attractive personality and great energy and enthusiasm, to which she has

What can the children in cities do. The children shut in from wholesome sport-The children that live, all winter through, In the dark little room at the end of the court?

Yet a comfort they have (and a beautiful one !), Though the days are chill and the days are snort At noon, for a moment, looks in the sun, In the dark little room at the end of the court.

Then, the dazzled baby drops his toys, Down tumbles the four-year-old's tottering fort—
"Sunshine!" they all cry out, in their joy,
In the dark little room at the end of the court.

TOTALLY FEARLESS.

How Grest Coolness and Bravery does much in a time of Peril. One of the 'grips' that enables England to hold India is the fearlessness of British officers, civil and military. There are other 'grips,'-the bravery of British soldiers, the justice of English administration and the equity of the taxes,-but the natives, prince, ryot, pariah, know that what the English officer thinks ought to be done, that he will do, even, if it costs him his life. Two illustrations of this fearlessness are shown by Colonel Pollock in his 'Reminiscences of India:'

D'Oyly was an assistant of the deputy commissioner of a province in Burma where Moung Goung Gee, a rebel leader, gave much trouble. An attack on the leader's camp caused the Burmese to bolt. and Goung Gee's state elephant, a magnificent brute with splendid Tusks escaped. D'Oyly determined to capture or kill it though he knew that the elephant had killed several keepers.

He had no experience in hunting elephants, but he started to find the brute, accompanied by a mahout (an elephantdriver) and a plucky Burman. Thinking that the elephant was in the neighborhood, he put only a biscuit or two in his pocket, and armed himself with nothing but a double-barrelled gun, toaded with sphercal bullets.

The elephant had wandered so far that or two days and nights his pursuars followed his trail, subsisting on what they could find to eat in the jungles. On the third day they came up with the beast. and tried in vair for hours to capture him. At last D'Oyly determined to shoot him.

As the animal charged on him, he knelt down, waited until it was within a few yards and fired for the bump between the eyes. The bullet struck a little to high, and did not check the elephants rush; but penetrated the brain and the monster fell dead at the hunter's feet.

One day, while D'Oyly was busy with his civil duties, he received information that several of Goung Gee's lieutenants were in a house a few miles off. He thought he would ride out and capture them, and would have gone unarmed had not Pollock persuaded him to take a hunting-knife. Their revolvers were in Prome, and he would not be bothered with a gun. He was accompanied by eight scwars of the calvary, and they rode eighteen miles before they arrived at the house.

D Oyly, guided by a mounted man, led the way, and soon left the escort behind. Arriving at the house, he jumped off his horse, rushed in, and found himself confronted by four Burmese, armed with two handed swords. Nothing daunted, D'Oyly stood in the narrow doorway, with the hunting-knife in his hand.

The Burmese, awed by the resolute bearing of the Englishman, hesitated for a moment. That hesitation saved D'Oyly. A shot was fired-a Burmese fell dead there was the flashing of a sword, and another man tell, while the other two leaped head first out of the veranda into the long

A gallant sowar, little more than a lad, On Wednesday evening a party was given by outstripping the other cavalrymen, had ridden up just in time to see his leader's jeopardy. Unslinging his carbine, he shot one man; then, jumping into the house, he disabled another-and did not think he had done anything out of the common.
