JULY 27.—Moncton's latest and most charming bride, Mrs. Robert Clark, appeared in St. John's presbyterian church on Sunday morning, and in St. George's church of England in the evening. Mrs. Clark looked very sweet in a handsome gown of dark heliotrope silk, with yoke and full vest of white chiffon, and hat of violet and white. Mrs. Clark is receiving her friends this week.

There is very little going on in society circles the midsummer dullness having set in with full force, and the heat and the absence of so many society people conspiring to make entertainments of a social nature a great rarity. The ever present Sunday school picnic offers a decorous form of dissipation to those who are suffering for amusement, and judging by the number who attend these mild but exhausting festivities there must be some enjoyment derived from them. A few energetic spirits indulge in tennis as a distraction, and the tennis tea which is getting to be almost a weekly occurrence forms a very pleasant break in the monotony of life.
