A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time—She Makes a Statement.

TORONTO, ONT.—"I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came over me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to bilious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the advice but I was prevailed upon and procured one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottles and also several boxes of Hood's Pills. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from nervousness, weakness or general debility." Mrs. H. F. PARM, Degross Street.

A STRANGE NERVOUS DISEASE.

Mali-mali, Which Afflicts the Natives of the Philippines. Among the natives of the Philippines, according to a correspondent of the Medical News, New York, there is occasionally found a peculiar nervous disease called mali-mali, the victims of which seem to be impelled by an uncontrollable impulse to imitate the movements of any one they see before them. Sometimes the disease will lie dormant while the victim goes quietly about his work, but if frightened or excited in any way he will immediately begin to imitate every motion of any person who attracts his attention. If a person suffering from this disease becomes angry he shrieks and raves like a maniac, at the same time continuing his mimicking performances. Old women are the most common victims of mali-mali, though men are sometimes attacked. Some people believe that the imitation-mania, as it is sometimes called, is always assumed and that the pretended victims can control their antics if they try, as they are often attacked in the presence of Europeans from whom they hope to obtain alms; but there is no doubt that the symptoms of this disease are generally real, and that such a disease exists is certain.

NO MAN INDISPENSABLE.

A Limit to the Value of Even the Valuable Man's Services.

'It's a mistake for a man to think he's indispensable,' said Mr. Nozzleby, 'for no man is. Men are valuable, and they may easily make themselves very valuable, but when a man comes to think that the business can't get along without him, or can't get along so well as it does, which amounts to the same thing, why, he's wrong, that's all. More than one man has found that out when he has set his valuation too high. And it is very probable that when he began to dwell on his own value, his value in reality began to decline; it is certain that one of the things that contributed most to increase his value was his forgetfulness of himself.'

'As a matter of fact, a man's interests, if he is really a superior man, up to a certain point, and that a high point, too, will take of themselves, or rather other people will take care of them if he will supply the motive. There is a fixed low price for the run of people of average ability, but none for the man of really superior ability, that is, if he is a 100 per cent. man, which is to say not only of high ability, but of perfect forgetfulness of self and absolute devotion to business. Any break or flaw or lack in these qualities anywhere knocks a man's value down wonderfully. Nothing less than the whole thing will do, but that will command a price anywhere and every where.'

'Still no man is indispensable; it isn't in the nature of things that he should be. No matter who dies, the world keeps on turning just the same, and it would be just the same with the business if you should go out of it.'

The Little Brother was Urgent.

A Cleveland youth called the other evening on a young woman who resides not far from his home, and when he rang the bell her little brother came to the door relates the Cleveland Plain Dealer. 'Good evening,' said the youth. 'Is your sister at home, Georgie?' 'Yes, sir,' replied the boy, 'she's home. Do you want to see her?' 'Yes,' said the youth. 'Please tell her I am here.' 'Won't you come in?' inquired the boy. 'No, thank you,' said the youth, 'I'll wait on the porch.' 'Better come in,' said the boy. 'No said the youth.' 'Better said the boy.' 'No,' said the youth. 'Well, maybe you know best,' said the boy.

'Yes, smiled the youth. So the boy went in, and the youth sat down on the porch and propped himself against the post.

'Pretty soon, with much rustling of skirts, Miss Alice appeared in the doorway. 'Mercy? Mr Skimpie, is that you? Didn't you notice the porch had just been painted?'

And then poor Skimpie remembered with a sickly smile how urgent her little brother had been. But that wouldn't remove the paint.

No Stand.

'Where does Zeb Smith stand in his political views?' asked a citizen of Brambleville, referring to a late arrival in the town. Mr. Ozias Rankin had been deputed to find out the newcomer's politics, as was the custom of the place. Mr. Rankin was the mode for all Brambleville in tact and diplomacy.

'Well,' said the commissioner slowly, 'I call him consid'radle liberal in his ideas, and yet with a conservative bias, as you might say. His ideas on the tariff seem to be firm. He thinks labor ought to be protected, but says free trade would be a good thing if we could get it.'

'He thinks gold's the best money, but believes in bimetalism, and don't think we ought to ask anybody's lief to coin silver if we want to. Then he's all for reform, I should judge, and yet he allows things in Washington go just about as he'd have 'em at this present time.'

'In fact,' concluded Mr. Rankin. 'I reckon

A GREAT REMEDY.

Greatly Tested.

Greatly Recommended.

The loss of the hair is one of the most serious losses a woman can undergo. Beautiful hair gives many a woman a claim to beauty which would be utterly wanting if the locks were short and scanty. It is almost as serious a loss when the natural hue of the hair begins to fade, and the shining tresses of chestnut and auburn are changed to gray or to a faded shadow of their former brightness. Such a loss is no longer a necessity. There is one remedy which may well be called a great remedy by reason of its great success in stopping the falling of the hair, cleansing the scalp of dandruff, and restoring the lost color to gray or faded tresses. Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor is a standard and reliable preparation, in use in thousands of homes, and recommended by everyone who has tested it and experienced the remarkable results that follow its use. It makes hair grow. It restores the original color to hair that has turned gray or faded out. It stops hair from falling, cleanses the scalp of dandruff, and gives the hair a thickness and gloss that no other preparation can produce.

Mrs. Herzmann, of 356 East 68th St., New York City, writes:

'A little more than a year ago, my hair began turning gray and falling out, and although I tried ever so many things to prevent a continuance of these conditions, I obtained no satisfaction until I tried Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor. After using one bottle my hair was restored to its natural color, and ceased falling out.'—Mrs. HERZMANN, 356 East 68th St., New York City.

'I have sold Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor for fifteen years, and I do not know of a case where it did not give entire satisfaction. I have been, and am now using it myself for dandruff and gray hair, and am thoroughly convinced that it is the best on the market. Nothing that I ever tried can touch it. It affords me great pleasure to recommend it to the public.'—FRANK M. GROVE, Faustdale, Ala.

Why Heads are Bald.

Discussing the causes of baldness, a medical man remarked—

'I have heard of baldness attributed to high breeding (generally by people who were themselves bald). But that, of course, is absurd, for hairlessness is not confined to the aristocracy.'

'While it is true that such conditions as bad health, excessive mental work, worry, hot rooms, and badly ventilated hats have much to do with baldness, I regard these as simple secondary causes. The primary cause is undoubtedly a microb, the growth of which is conceivably fostered by the unhealthy factors I have quoted.'

'Why, yes, it is unpleasant to think of one's head as a sort of preserve for microbes; but experiments show that they are the cause of baldness. These particular microbes are minute colourless bodies and are found in a sort of sac or cocoon in the upper parts of the hair follicles, just below the skin.'

'The cure? Well, that has yet to be found; but it is something to have discovered the cause.'

Idiomatic English.

Mrs. Fremont, in a sketch of her father, Senator Benton, tells the following story of the French bishop at St. Louis at the time of the purchase of Louisiana. She says: 'It was a point of honor among the older French not to learn English, but the bishop decided that it would be better to acquire it, especially for use from the pulpit. To force himself into the familiar practice of the language, he secluded himself for a while with the family of an American farmer, where he would hear no French. The experiment proved very successful. Soon he had gained a sufficient fluency to deliver a sermon in English. Senator Benton was present when it was to be given, and his feelings may be imagined as the bishop, a refined and polished gentleman, announced: 'My friends, I'm right down glad to see such a smart chance of folks here to-day.'

A Million-Pound Palace.

The Royal palace at Madrid is one of the most beautiful structures in the world, being built by an Italian architect in the early part of the last century at a cost of close upon £1,000,000, and intended to be a rival to the French palace at Versailles. The material is white marble. It is 470ft. each way, with a court 240ft. square, roofed with glass. When a man's opinion has weight nowhere else, he gets up in prayer meeting and delivers it.
