The death of Mrs. T. B. Millidge which took place on the 25th inst, marks a period which connects the past with the present, and which to the older inhabitants of St. John was once full of interest when the city and its society were full of life and prosperity. All the older inhabitants will recall to mind the late Thomas B. Millidge, husband of the deceased lady when connected with the Commercial Bank; she was the daughter of Mr. Ward and granddaughter of the late Major Ward, known as the "father of the city" and who was a brother of the wife of one of the three men who arrested Major Andre of Revolutionary fame. An aunt of the late Mrs. Millidge married a Captain Wallop of the regiment then stationed in St. John, a nephew of the Earl of Portsmouth, and had two sons, Masters and Newton, both of whom are well remembered by the older citizens but both of whom are now dead. As Miss Ward, Mrs. Millidge was in her girlhood days probably the handsomest lady in St. John and highly accomplished. Her life has been spent amongst all classes and she has passed away leaving a most noble record behind.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Webster, E. R. McDonald acted as best man, while the bridesmaids were Miss "Terrie" Fishwick, sister of the bride and Miss Lily Adams of St. John. The bride wore a handsome travelling dress of dark grey material, with hat to match, and the bridesmaids costumes of green cloth trimmed with satin and chiffon. After breakfasting at the residence of the bride's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Chipman left by the C. P. R. on a trip to Niagara and the upper provinces, after which they will return to St. John where they will reside.

Another nuptial event occurred at the residence of Mrs. William Quinler of the North End on Wednesday when her daughter Miss Annie Parker Quinler was united in marriage with Mr. Charles Marven, Rev. Mr. McKim officiating. The bride was dressed in blue brocade poplin with pink silk and chiffon, and her attendant Miss Margie Quinler, and little maid of honor Miss Helen McConnell were both charmingly gowned. The groom was supported by Mr. C. B. B. Raymond of Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Marven left the following morning for a trip through Nova Scotia.

Among the many beautiful presents received by the bride were the following: gold watch and chain from the groom; silver service, Geo. Quinler, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. C.
