A wedding in which many St. John people will be interested took place in Sussex this week and an account of the event will be of pleasant interest to the triends of the bride who was a pupil in the Sacred Heart Convent here at one time, and who has a very large circle of friends in the city. The brides wedding trousseau was made here and was particularly elaborate and elegant. The following has been forwarded to FROGRESS for publication. "Eliza Ann Lydia, the only daughter of Andrew McAfee, was married at St. John's Church in Waterford Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock to Rev. Allan Smithers, rector of Waterford. The morning was all that cculd be desired. Flags flaated from the home of the bride to the buildings across the street. There were many public indications for the popularity of the bride. Rev. A. A. Slipper performed the marriage ceremony, by Rev. Scovil Neales, rector of assisted church, Sussex. and Rev. Mr. Trinity Lockward, rector of the Episcopal church of Clem_ entsport, N. S. The bride entered the church upon the arm of her father as the choir sang the hymn The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden. She was attended by Miss Maisie Smithers as bridesmaid and little Annie Slipper as maid of honor. The groom was supported by Rev. C. P. Hanington, rector of Norton. The bride was married in a travelling suit of gray fawn box cloth with hat to match, and carried a prayer book. The bridesmand, Miss Maisie Smithers, wore a very pretty gown of pink organdie muslin with hat of black and white chiffon trimmed with ostrich plumes and pink roses, and carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations. The maid of honor, Miss Annie Slipper, wore a white frock with loops of blue ribbon and white hat trimmed with white chiffon and lilies of the valley, and carried a basket of carnations. The ushers were Robert Seely and Arthur Patridge of St. John who acquitted themselves admirably. The church was filled to the utmost, many being present from Sussex to witness the event. After the marriage ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, where lunch was served, at which Rev. Mr. Slipper, in proposing the health of the happy couple referred in a very neat manner to the loss the parish of Waterford was sustaining in losing one who had been an earnest worker. What is Waterford's loss is Albert's gain. The groom replied in a very sutiable and pleasing manrer The bride and groom left for their home in Albert by the I. C. R. t his afternoon, were followed to Sussex station by a large number of friends who did not forget the customary shower of rice an the train pulled out. The teachers and Sunday school children decorated the church for the occasion. The following is a partial list of the presents received by the bride, many of which were costly and handsome. The deposit slip of $ 1,000 was properly certified by Mr. Moore, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Sussex. "HARK, the herald Angels sing," "WELCOME SOAP is just the thing, "Strong and pure, its action mild," "GOUD FOR BEAST, OR MAN, OR CHILD."

We regret that we are unable to reproduce here the very clever and well drawn sketches that illustrated the last line of above extract from the prize Essay of Master A. Cameron Vanbuskirk of Bridgeport, N. S., 11 years old.

The boy reflects exactly the verdict of all housekeepers that have tried it :--

Strong and Pure, Its Action Mild Good for Beast, or Man, or Child. But Best of All For The Laundry and all Household Uses.

The Border Bullock Dray. Oh, it's shift along' you bullocks, down the ranges For wool is up and rising still away in London

t)wn. And those bustling city buyers, they would sign their souls away.

For fleece like we carry in our jolting bullock dray. Oh, it's creak ! creak ! creak ! that is what the axles say To the teamster tramping westward down the dusty Border way: But you mustn't heed their creaking, for with such a precious load You should make a Border record for the back-block road.

With the wombat range before me and another league of plain, These twenty bales of bogen wool are bound to miss the train. So it's move along, you leaders, or that lazy skulker, Dan,

Will raise the very devil in this patient bullock man.

And it's creak! creak! creak! but the pace is awful For we should have passed the mallee flat a half an hour ago; And the overseer would curse us if he knew his precious load

Was a mile, at least, behindhand down the backblock road.

With his buttocks out to starboard and his muzzle in the dust,

Your off-side poler's skulking and you're swearing fit to bust, And your morals drop to zero, while you curse that poler's brand.

And watch the wagon sinking nearly ax'e-deep in With its creak! creak! creak! yes, you wish they'd creak again, For you've run into the doldrums on a dry and dusty plain, And it strikes you rather sudden, standing staring at your load, That it's mostly dust and blowflies down the back-

But your throat is dry with cursing and your lips begin to crack

And you know that Murphy's shanty lies a league along the track; So you trail your whip behind you while you take

Where you print the bush commandments on that stubborn bullock hide.

Ob, it's creak! creak! creak! you are under way again, There's nothing like a bullock team for raising dust and Cain; So it's gee off, Dan and Traveller, and shift along

We shall never reach the township with our backthe road, block load

When the wool is landed safely and you're on the homeward tack,

You feel a kiad of sorry from that off-side bullock's For it's something worse than Hades on a blazing summer's day For poor half-stifled polers in a jolting bullock dray.

With its creak! creak! but the wind has made a change. You can hear the banjo twanging down along the phantom range, You can see the station children racing out to meet the dray When they sight the bullocks swaying down the back block way.

The Man Who Made The Guns.

The men who trad the steel-clad deck, Afloat on the flowing brine, And the gallant lads at the Colonel's beck Along the firing line Have won their stars and chevrons, Our loyal, patrict sons, But never a word have the people heard

Of the men who made the guns.

In the smoke and dust of the workshop's must, Yet theirs the cunning and skill we trust For the deeds the fighters do— The master mind that fashions the bore, The moulder down in the rounded pit; heir lives are know The force and science that turn the core, Logic and stuoy to make them fit.

No magazine in the world gives such big value for so

This choice Cocoa makes a most delightful beverage for Breakfast or Supper. Being exceedingly nutritious, easily digested and assimilated, it forms a valuable food for invalids and children.

These sturdy, silent and plodding ones, On the turn of their skill in final test, These grimy toilers who made the guns, The fate of a ration oft may rest We trust their skill and the fit of things, These sturdy, silent, plodding ones, When a flag at the peak the order brings-Them and the men behind the guns.

Then here's to the salts on the water bl ue, And here's to the salts on the water of ue, And here's to the gallant s · ders, too And here's to valorous deeds they've done, With help of the men who made each gun.

Every one has opportunities, but only he that im-proves them calls our attention to them. Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Prince leave today for Montreal from whence they will sail for England good, honest friends-his hands.
