Colonel and Mrs. Collard entertained a large number of guests at five o'clock tea last Wednesday, the occasion being not only the welcome presence of Miss Collard, who is finishing her education in Windsor, but also that of their elder son, who arrived from Kingston to spend the Christmas season with the family. Mrs. Collard also extended her hospitality to three of the present season's brides. Col. Kingscott was one of the chief guests, looking quite well after his stormy Atlantic voyage.

Of course the event of last week was the marriage of Capt. and Mrs. Craske. The Garrison chapel was more than crowded and the fair bride bore herself well and modestly. A little pale, perhaps—what woman with true woman heart is not pale on her wedding day?

The gallant young soldier husband held himself well and responded to the solemn service, read most beautifully by the chaplain, in a firm and manly manner. The bride's "I will" was heard distinctly all over the church.

The service over, the bride left the church on the arm of the young husband, going down the opposite side from the one she had entered. At the house the scene was most beautiful, many fair women and brave men all giving congratulations to the newly wedded pair. Capt. and Mrs. Craske received under the arch of flowers, Mrs. Oliver, of course, first receiving the guests as they entered.

The speeches were happy and appropriate, the reverend rector of St. Luke's proposing the welfare of the bride and groom. The bridesmaids' health was then drunk and the "best man," Mr. Cochrane responding, his only grief being that he had not claimed the privilege of the best man in the vestry—according to tradition—the second kiss from the bride.

Other speeches followed and the bride left the table (after cutting the cake with her husband's sword) to change her bridal garments for a travelling dress.

Among the many beautiful dresses worn by the guests on this occasion, I may mention first of all Mrs. Oliver's violet satin, with black and white lace; Miss Craske's smart gown of grey cashmere and seal skin and a most beautiful hat; Lady Seymour's pale grey costume and her daughters likewise attired.

Mrs. Stewart wore black and violet; Miss Stewart grey and white; Miss Daly a blue tailor made costume; Mrs. Uniaque, fawn color; Mrs. W. Hill, dark blue relieved with white; Mrs. Clarkson black velvet, the bodice striped and finished with a white satin cravat; Mrs. Trench a lovely gown of blue silk, with beautiful embroidery about the neck and sleeves; Mrs. A. E. Jones ("Lallah Bell") black satin with gold embroidered front, hat of white chiffon and Red and white roses. Mrs. Jones' two little girls were in red velvet frocks red hats with white plums. Mrs. G. Morrow looked very well in an exceedingly well-fitting tailor-made gown. Mrs. James Morrow was in blue and pink; Mrs. M. R. Morrow in red brocade; Mrs. McWaters was in black relieved with white; Mrs. J. J. Stairs was very smart in dark blue with a white vest. Many other ladies wore most beautiful costumes.

Another event of equal importance in society took place this week in the marriage of Miss Blanche Wickwire, daughter of Dr. W. N. Wickwire of this city, and Captain H. M. Elliot of the Royal Artillery.

The ceremony took place at St. Luke's Cathedral, and before the hour the building was crowded. Mrs. Wickwire entered the church on the arm of Mr. Huddleston, her brother-in-law, accompanied by Mrs. Huddleston and Miss Keith in beautiful costumes. The bride followed on her father's arm. Simultaneously the groom with his best man entered.

The bride wore a magnificent court gown of white satin, a mass of silver embroidery and Brussels lace. Her train was enormous and her veil graceful and becoming. Her ornaments, besides the wreath of orange blossoms and garniture of the same flowers, consisted of diamonds and pearls, the gifts of father, mother and groom. The pearls were most beautiful, one being a special antique design of a shell of pearls, presented by the groom's mother, also a very lovely star, the gift of Mr. Turner, Bank of Montreal. The bridesmaids wore white satin costumes, being the bride's gift to them, and large royal blue hats trimmed with ostrich plumes and three lovely knots of blue chiffon. They carried bouquets of blue, trimmed with white feathers, and wore opal and gold grenade pins, gifts of the bridegroom. The bride was attended by two pages, Master V. and H. McWaters, sons of Colonel McWaters. Their costumes consisted of white satin and velvet trimmings of blue. The groom was attended by A. M. Cayley, R. A., as best man, and J. H. Jones, R. F. Jones and O'Devaine, R. A., as groomsmen. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. P. Crawford, rector of St. Luke's, assisted by Rev. W. H. Bullock, chaplain of the forces. The wedding presents were very numerous and costly. Captain and Mrs. Elliot left for New York, en route to England. They had a special car.

Mrs. B. D. Best, Mrs. J. I. Bent.

Behind every great man you will find a great mother. Behind every great man you will find a healthy mother. A child's physical and mental welfare depend to a tremendous degree upon the mother's condition during the period of gestation. If, during these critical months, the mother suffers from weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs that bear the burdens of maternity, the chances are that her child will be weak, puny and sickly, with the seeds of serious disease already implanted in its little body at birth. If the mother, during the interesting period, suffers from the abnormal mental states which recur periodically with women who are weak in a womanly way, these conditions will impress themselves upon the mind of the child.

Every woman wants children who are both physically and mentally healthy. Every woman may have that kind of children if she will take proper care of herself in a womanly way. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all medicines for prospective mothers. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs that bear the brunt of maternity. It makes them strong, healthy, vigorous, virile and elastic. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones and builds up the shattered nerves. It banishes the usual discomforts of the critical period, and makes baby's introduction to the world easy and almost painless. It insures the little new comer's health and a bountiful supply of nourishment.
