"The matrons ball"-that's how the event of Monday ev ning was spoken of, and the term simply conveys the idea of the ordinary dance, with its accompanying pretty gowns, good music, and a well served supper, doesn't it ? The social life of the smart set is always a source of deep interest to those outside the charmed circle, and next best to being one of the elect is in hearing tow the members manage to pass their time, the forms of amusement most affected among them, and in fact no incident in society's daily life, however small is without interest Mr. Gordon Blair, for the average individual. Even men, staid dignified business men, turn with unfailing regularity to the society colum is of the newspapers though they wouldn't have you know it for the world-if they could help it. It's the fashion with some people you know to disclaim against society papers, but-men and women-they read them just the same and can tell you much better than the one whose duty it is to glean such news, who are the mo t popular hostesses, what young ladies are going out most this winter, how many new evening gowns Mrs. or Miss Blank has exhibited during the season an i all the rest of it.

All this though has nothing to do you think, with the German at the beginning of the we k and though I've gone a long way around it to be su :e I | Mr. Geo. West Jones, wished to say that though one may be deeply interested in the movements, of society people and their amusements it grows just a trifle monotonous to read week after week the conventional description of a ball that differs in not the slightest particular from the one that preceded it. True there have been one or two departures from the usnal custom this winter, the ball poudre being an interesting innovation, but it was left to the matrons | Judge Tuck, to plan and carry to a successful issue one of the Mr. J. D. Spurr. brightest and most enjoyable functions that has | Mr. Morris Robinson, been given for a lorg time. It wasn't a very large Mr. Robert Thom: 03, affair, for of course it is undersood that at a danc | Mr. F. Stetson, of this kind the number invited must necessarily Mr. F. S. Barker, the red paper hearts, which the ladies wore. In the sion, and Mrs. Tilloston's pretty conservatory was sixth figure the sucflower was the favor. The seventh and last represented the seasons and in this every one took part. The flowers that bloom in the spring had something to do with the case, in this particular instance for in the snape of pretty wreaths th :y adorned the la lies and blossemed gaily as boutonoiers for the gentlemen.

Large pink hats trimmed with chrysanthemums, marked the summer girl whi e the gent emen wore roses. Autumn brought forth big yellow hats for the ladies and tiny apples for the men. The prettiest thing of all though was gim old Winter who fully sustained his reputation for v-riability, for while he raged and stormed outside he was represented in the ball room by the fairest of daintily gowned maideas who wore white tissue muffs trimmed with sprays of holly, and the most harmless and fluffy looking of snowballs worn by the gentlemen There was a veritable sterm of flowers when the ladies threw their wreaths in the air, and the effect was exceedingly preity and bright. The favors were made by the ladies and showed much taste, and originality and their manufacture was doubtless the source of much pleasant amuse mant. At any rate they furnished plenty of it at the ball and the lidies felt amply rewarded.

a source of admiration to the guests. The view from the dining room was particularly lovely, the Lumerous plants in full bloom, tail palms and ferns making an artistic mass of coloring. Mrs. Tillotsons home is fur sished throughout with exquisite cars and taste, and is admirably adapted to large nusctions.

The following marriage notice from the Boston Traveller of February 9.h. will be read with intere t here where the parties menticn :d are well known:

"The marriage of Margaret Maude only daughter o Mas. Catherine Cotter of 709 Tremont street, and Gilbert Patterson of Pitts, Kimball & Co., took place last evening at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. The ceremony was conducted by Rev Fatter Dolan, and was of the simplest form of the ( a holic ritual. The bride wore a skirt of wnite moire, with an overdress of embroidered mousline de soie,, and a white picture hat adorned with ostrich plumes. She carried a bouqet of bride roses. Miss Emma J. Moore of New Bedtord attended the bride. She was becomingly gowred in geranium pink taffets under while dotted pink muslin. She also wore a white picture hat with black plumes, and carried a large bunch of Lawson pinks. Caarles Fred Winter was best man. At the conclusion of the exercises at the Cathedral a brilliant reception was held at the home of the bride, 709 Treacht street.

An event of interest this week was the marriage of Mr. A. Gordon Cowie of the Bank of Briti h North America, Fredericton, and Miss Blanche Jones daughter of the Hon. T. R Jones, banker and broker, which took place in St. Pauls church on Tuesday after soon of the week. The ceremony which was performed by Rev. A. G. H. Dicker was witnessed oily by immediate relatives and friends, among them being Mrs. and Miss Cowie of Halifax, Mrs Thompson of Montreal sister of the bride and Miss Thompson. The bride who was unattended wore a very becoming fawn covert cloth travelling dress with turquoise trimmings, with hat to match and looked extreme'y stylish and pretty. Mr. D. Russel Jack and Mr. Bruce Scovil acted as ushers. After the ceremony lunch was served at the residence of the bride's parents on Elliott row and la'er Mr. and Mrs. Cowie left on a wedding tour of the Upper Canadian cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Belding of Pitt Street were given a pleasant surprise on Tuesday evening when a party of frierds invaded their cosy home and spent the hours in dancing and various popular games. The ladies had provided dainty refreshments and when the contents of the varicus baskets were spread the feast was a most tempting one. Among those present were.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Foster. Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Stamers. Mr. and Mrs. Will Simpson. Mr. and Mrs. Morris. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Foster. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Essington. Mr. and Mrs. Colwell. Miss Elliott, Miss Cunninghan. Miss Belding, Miss McFarlane. Misses Foster, Misses Austin. Misses Marsh Mr. Jack Kirk. Mr. Charles Everett, Mr. Aithur Foster. Mr. H. Un lerhill, Mr. Harry Darling. Mr. Will Darling, Mr. Will Audson. Ar. Walter Belding, Mr. Robertson. The marriage took place in Brussels street church last Wednesday evening of Dr. Howard D. Fritz, and Miss Ide Rootes, daughter of the late James Rootes. The bride who was attended by little Miss Jean McNaughton niece of the groom and Miss Kathleen Golding the bride's tiny niece, was attired in white satin and chiffon and looked extremely pretty and graceful. Rev. Dr. Carey performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by many friends of the contracting parties. Dr. and Mrs. Fritz are residing at 26 Crown street. Mr. Dancan R. Smith of this city and Miss Jean Tate daughter of Mr. Moses Tate of Calais were united in marriage Tue day at the home of the bride. After a tour of the large American cities Mr. and Mrs. Smith will return to St. John and make their home on King at eet. Mr. Smith has a very large circle of friends in this province and in Nova Scotia who will wish him and his bride every happiness in their wedded life.

Their enthusi ism communicated itself to the other favored matrons and maids, and everybody did what they Mr. Vroom, c uld to make the dance one to be long remembered.

The assembly rooms presented a bright appearance though there was nothing very elaborate in the way of decorations, but the music was particularly good, and I believe some of it was prepared espe iaily for the occasion, the favors lent a brightness and beauty to the scene that made up for the absence of the usual decost tons.

In the little alcove off the ballroom these brighthued trifles were in charge of Mrs. Grant who distributed them; they were made of various colored crepe papers and were different in each figure. The cotillion was led by Mr. George West Jones and Mrs. F. H. J. Ruel, and the former is spoken of as an ideal leader. As the dance was on the eve of St Valentine's there was a little touch of sentimentality apparent | Mr. Simeon Jones, everywhere, but more especially in the supper rocm were the table decorations had a decided tendency in that direction. In the centre were three large scarlet hearts outlined in smilax, and a large cupid lamp. Smilax was trailed over the table and on it were scattered numerous tiny crimson hearts. A pretty idea was carried out in regard to the selection of supper partners. A large tissue pie was provided, the filling of which consisted of valentines each one bearing the name of a lady guest. Attached to them were different colored ribbons, the ends of which were held by the gentlemen. At a given signal, the ribbons were drawn and the lady, Mr. Earle, whose name app ared on the valentize which came forth was taken into supper by the gentleman who

A description of the different figures and the favors will doubtless be of interest.

The first number was a general favor dance and in it the hadies wore crepe butterflies in their hair while poppies were the decorations worn by the gentlemen.

In the first figure large flaffy tissue ruches of different shades were worn by the lidies, and chrysan_ themums by the gentlemer.

A very pretty figure was the second-and was a Scotch reel, with a piper to help make things merry. The favors were tartan scarfs and buckles for the gentlemen; and tartan rosettes and eagle feathers adorned the ladies hair.
