Frost.

An Arctic silversmith is he, Tracing in finest diagee, With fragile loop and slender line, Figures fantastic in design.

The hollow night his workshop is, Whereto, to heaven's harm-nies, With tools no mortal may behold He bends above his forge of gold.

Yet, at the arrowy touch of dawn, The fairy magic is gone, Like shadows cast upon a wall, As subtle and ephemeral.

THINGS OF VALUE.

There never was, and never will be, a universal panacea, in one remedy for all ills to which flesh is heir—the very nature of many curatives being such that were the germs of other and differently seated diseases rooted in the system of the patient—what would relieve one ill, in turn would aggravate the other. We have, however, in Quinine Wine, when obtainable in a sound undiluted state, a remedy for many and grievous ills. By its gradual and judicious use, the frailties of the system are led into convalescence and strength, by the influence which Quinine exerts on Nature's own restoratives. It relieves the drooping spirits of those with whom a chronic state of morbid despondency and lack of interest in life is a disease, and, by tranquilizing the nerves, disposes to sound and refreshing sleep—imparts vigor to the action of the blood, which, being stimulated, courses throughout the veins, strengthening the healthy animal functions of the system, thereby making a necessary result, strengthening the frame, and giving life to the digestive organs, which naturally demand increased substance—result, improved appetite, Northrup & Lyman of Toronto, have given to the public their superior Quinine Wine at the usual rate, and, gauged by the opinion of scientists, this wine approaches nearest perfection of any in the market. All druggists sell it.

A smart girl at Syracuse is going to pay her way through college by keeping bees.

'She ought to get an 'A. B.' degree sure enough.'

The great lung healer is found in that excellent medicine sold as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive S-rup

It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages, and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

'I'm vexed with Madge and Maud.'

'What's the trouble?'

'They might have had more consideration for their friends than to get married both in the same week.'

Sure Regulators.—Mandrake and dandelion are known to exert a powerful influence on the liver and kidneys, restoring them to healthful action, inducing a regular flow of the secretions and imparting to the organs complete power to perform their functions. These valuable ingredients enter into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, and serve to render them the agreeable and salutary medicine they are. There are few pills so effective as they in their action.

Mrs Bargainhunter seems to be dreadfully worried about the health of her children.

'Why, they looked to me exceptionally strong and well.'

'Yes, that's what worries her. A cut-rate drug store has just opened in the neighborhood, and she's crazy for an excuse to see what kind of bargains they have.'

They Wake the Torpid Energies.—Machinery not properly supervised and left to run itself very soon shows fault in its working. It is the same with the digestive organs. Unregulated from time to time they are likely to become torpid and throw the whole system out of gear. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills were made to meet such cases. They restore to the full the flagging faculties, and bring into order all parts of the mechanism.

Why do people have best clothes? They always look better in their every-day

Unacquainted.—Mr. Thos. Brunt, Tyndinaga, Ont., writes—I have to thank you for recommending Dr. THOMAS' ELECTRIC OIL for bleeding piles. I was troubled with them for nearly fifteen years, and tried almost everything I could hear or think of. Some of them could give me temporary relief, but none would eff at a cure. I have now been free from the distressing complaint for nearly eighteen months. I hope you will continue to recommend it

A Country Breath.

A hay-load in the city square. The sweets of a whole summer fair, In a crude wagon piled;

The fragrant breath of warm, still rains, The scent of strawberries in green lanes, Faint petals blown from roses wild.

And straightway all the bustling place Is filled with some enchanted grace, And tinkling with the notes

Of field-larks and of silver-streams, Of south winds, murmuring their dreams Through airy aisles of oaks.

My lady in the gilded shop Lays triest of magic on the drop, And through the magic sees

A dooryard sweet with mint and phlox, And pink with ruffled hollyhocks, That nod to belted bees.

The sooty laborer with a thrill, Plucks shamrocks on an Irish hill, A gamin cheers and chaffs;

All busy footsteps pause a bit, Somewhere is toll by clear skies lit, A sunburst world that laughs.

And long and long the sweetness stays, And cheers and cools the heated ways, Like happy news from home,

Till the pale moon and misty stars Look down as if, by meadow bars, Their rays touched clover bloom.

But little reck the countryman, Bound homeward on his empty van, Alone he closing marts,

What store he brought with him to-day, Or what, within a load of hay, Could touch so many hearts.
