

to just that many people-for life another month. Think of it; a hunthousand men, women and chil dred dren in India saved from starvation for a whole month, through a single remittance. Was there ever so unselfish a charity as this' for people we shall never see and whose very thanks in a language strange to us shall never reach our ears P Truly this is a Christlike charity, and un less every word of the bible be untrue, the people of our own country will not go without the blessing promised to those who consider the poor.

But famine's deplorable work still continues. Only last month a man at Thana, a relief station 25 miles from Bombay, was arrested for having buried alive his two children. His story was pitifully sad. He and his wife and two children went to the Relief Works. There his wife died. He himselt caught the fever. He could not shake it off. At last driven to despair he took his children one right and left the station. His sufferings were fearfully intensified by those of his little ones. They finally reached a point where they could no longer walk. Death was staring him in the face. It he did not get where help could be found, they must all perish. His children helpless, unable to continue the journey, blocked bis progress. He dug a grave, threw them in and filled it up. The fever had made him irresponsible and Government will probably act leniently in his case, but the incident demonstrates the fearful deaths which the helpless famine victims have reached, during this terrible dispensation of Providence.

In a recent interview Dr. Klopsch said that he was under an everlasting obligation the press of this country for to their hearty co-operation in this great work; and that India could never repay the debt she ows to the journalists of the continent. During his stay in India he never missed an opportunity of expressing himself freely on this subject and many of the leading papers of India directed the attention of the people to the extent of their indebtedness to the newspapers for the tremendous assistance they had rendered in awaking public interest in the suffarings of India's starving millions. Indeed, nine-tenths of all the contributions were the result of newspaper work and never was the beneficent influence of the press more manifest than in this particular

WILD WEST SCENES.

Episodes That Indicates That the Element of Danger Has Been Exaggerated.

It was midnight as a thundering knock came at the door of room No. 48, Phenix Hotel.

'What is wanted ?' asked the occupant as he sat up in bed with furiously beating heart.

'We want you ! Open this door !' 'Never !'

'Then take the consequences.'

The man sprang out of bed and hurriedly dressed bimself. His face was pale and his hands trembled, but he shut his lips with a determination to sell his life dearly. He heard footsteps moving in the hall, and presently the door was burst from its hinges and a doz in men burst into the room. They found him standing with a r volver in each hand and the light of battle in his eyes.

"You may hang me," he said in a low, tense voice, "but twelve of you will go into the other world before me."

"Who said anything about hanging ?" inquired a voice.

But you have come for that. Twelve years ago in this town I killed four men. You have recognized me and have come for revenge.'

'Not much stranger. We don't know anything about the four men and don't want to, You live in Missouri, don't you you ?'

'I do.'

'Well, what we wanted to ask was whether three of a kind beat a straight in your State '

'They do not.'

'Then that's all, and you can go back to your snooze. Sorry to have disturbed you but we had a dispute and wanted to settle

The Bear and the Berries.

'Talking about bears,' said a well known business man, 'I have just returned from a fishing trip in upper Michigan, and I tell you the bears were very many' up there. They are fond of blackberries, too, judging from the story the section boss's wite teld. One day we had been wading and fishing up the river and saw the woman and her little boy running towards us for dear life. She said they had been picking berries in a patch, and that she had just started on a big bunch that looked as though the bushes had been tied together, they were so close and thick.

"Suddenly she heard a grunt, and thinking her little boy was trying to scare ther, told him if he did it again she would spank him. Turning to continue her picking she heard another grunt, and discovered that it came from the other side of the bunch of blackberries. It came from a bear and the bear had gathered the high blackberry bushes together and was baving his lunch and the woman had been picking them right out of his arms.

'One of the men who heard the section boss's wife tell the bear story tried to repeat it for the rest of the party after he had been out fishing all day. He claimed te caught 700 fish; and it was certainly true that his bait jug hadn't a drop in it. Perhaps this may account for the fact that he endeavored to explain that the bear picked the berries out of the black woman's arms and lunehed on the bushes. Correct ed in this he immediately asserted that the woman berried the pickings in the black bushes and lunched on the bear.

'He tried it just once more and fixed it this way : 'The bear picked his black arms in the bushes and the woman berried the lunch.'

'He was then carefully led away by his sorrowing friends and held under the pump for a beneficial period. The next morning he had forgotten the entire combination. But it's a great country for bears.'

'The hostess is a lovely woman and she gave us a fine dinner. But why did she seem in such a nervous hurry? Really, was the swiftest feed I ever sat down to.' 'Then you didn't know her before she

'I never thought he had. Any new proof of it ?'

'Yes. He was calling on Daisy Swinner ton. You know Daisy, Little thing, but full of poetry. Swigsby said he wondered where they met the first time, and Daisy in her poetical way said she guessed it was in the gloaming. Swigsby looked puzzled and then what do you suppose he said ?' 'Give it up.'

'Said he guessed she was mistaken, be cause he couldn't recall any apartment house by that name.'

The Escape of R. S.

When the United States Cruiser Rattlesnake was captured during the War of 1812 her crew was sent to Dartmoor Prison, situated in a lonely waste of Devonshire, England. The second officer, who concealed his identity under the initials R S, succeeded in bribing on of the guards, and wrapped in a cloak, with an umbrella hanging beneath it, after the manner of a sword descended a rope hung from his spatch. window, and was almost clear of the prison when he was betrayed by the very guard he had bribed. He was taken before the warden of the prison and as he was reman led to his cell, he announced that he
